POLICE BREAK UP HUNGER PARADES

Today

Chicago Never Stops.
Beating a Rap.
Assorted Women's News.
So Much Russian Money.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

CHICAGO, Jan. 14.

CHICAGO ALWAYS has something to reveal, even after a short absence. Today gigantic new buildings block several canyons through which the horizon was visible last time.

Samuel Insull's new opera house and office building reaches up toward the sky on the south side of the river. Opposite on the north side stands the "merchandise mart," recently completed by James Simpson, head of Marshall Field. It is the biggest commercial building in the world, the greatest floor area and contains among other things, the biggest restaurant in the world.

THE NEW Palm Olive Building, near the lake, highest tower in Chicago, eclipses William Wrigley's building, which formerly dominated. On the Palm Olive Building, far up toward the clouds, a searchlight to guide aviators reaches 100 miles in all directions.

CHICAGO IS cheerful today, with bright sunshine, and a wind from the lake with oxygen that would burn all the pessimism out of Jeremiah himself. Everybody, fat people especially, should remember that, as carbon heats us, so oxygen burns within us, destroying unnecessary tissue. Breathe fresh air to get thin.

M. W. Cresap, who runs one of the biggest businesses in Chicago, distributing all over the United States, agrees with Herman Black, publisher of the Chicago American, that conditions are turning upward.

CHICAGO'S POLICE force thinks it has captured the killer of Alfred J. Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter. But the accused man, Leo V. Brothers, his photograph taken with his mother's arms around him, says "if an innocent man can't beat that rap, there's no use living."

A "rap," you must know, is a sentence to prison or a trip to the electric chair, which is the biggest "rap."

SOME NEWS about women, always interesting. Hungary hangs a wife for poisoning her husband and the spectacle is "enjoyed" by crowds that fought to see it. A New York lady, running what she describes as a very gentlemanly speakeasy with miniature golf near the bar, is driven to the roof of the speakeasy in "flaming red" pajamas by government agents. She really "does not know what the world is coming to."

IN ITALY where Mussolini takes literally the Pope's encyclical on morals, a famous actress, Wanda Orlandini, is sent to jail for three months, because she did not take Mussolini's warning seriously.

Rome is said to be "the cleanest, purest city in the world." Even the nobility, outraged by the Orlandini incident, have stopped saying "they can't send you to jail for that."

Mussolini is determined that Italians shall not only work hard, but also set an example of high morality before the world, and threatens to jail the nobility as he would jail anybody else, for violation of marriage vows.

AGAIN YOU ASK, "Where does Russia get the money?" Her annual budget is sixteen and one-half billions, much bigger than ours, biggest in the world, and she has a surplus of $750,000,000, while we face a deficit.

The Swedish Krupp works receive from Russia an order for military supplies amounting to $14,500,000, and Germany has just shipped into Russia thirty carloads of machinery and equipment for a large ammonia factory, one of several such shipments sent by Germany to Russia within the last few years. German engineers and chemists will erect and supervise the factories which can be used, and probably are intended to manufacture POISONOUS WAR GAS. Perhaps we underestimate Russia. The Allies may have made a mistake disarming Germany and making her worthless as a buffer between Russia and Western Europe.

THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE of the United States finds outrageous the suggestion that government should operate power plants at Muscle Shoals, built with public money.

Suppose gentlemen of that chamber had built Muscle Shoals with their money and the people tried to take it from them for their own benefit. What would the chamber say about that?

"OUR BEST MINDS," those that very intelligently exploit the country's resources, have had their way since the big war and before. And they have landed temporarily in the ditch. Why not give the government a chance? It may not be as inefficient and dishonest as some "best minds" think.

Muscle Shoals could supply cheap fertilizers to farmers,

'32 RACE ON FOR HOOVER, RITCHIE

'Defend President,' Appeal Of G. O. P. as Maryland Democrat Assails Dry Law

The battle for the presidency in 1932 is under way.

Opening guns in the two party campaigns were fired today by President Hoover in the Republican camp and by Gov. Albert C. Ritchie in the Democratic camp.

Launching of the Hoover drive for renomination and re-election was revealed in an appeal to Republican precinct workers throughout the country to start working immediately for 1932, by Robert H. Lucas, executive director of the G. O. P. National Committee.

The Lucas letter asserted that due to the efforts of Mr. Hoover, described as "an expert in handling big things," the country had been saved from a panic during the last 18 months, and urged vigorous efforts to "defend the President" against attack.

RITCHIE MAKES BID

Ritchie made his first formal bid for the Democratic nomination in his inaugural address at Annapolis, Md., when he assumed the governorship of Maryland for the fourth consecutive term. Ritchie's views, regarded as the platform upon which he is resting his political future, included a demand for repeal of prohibition and a return of the liquor problem to the states; an appeal for protection of "states' rights" against federal encroachment, and an assertion that more national energy should be devoted to solu-

SHIP HITS REEF, 61 IN PERIL

VICTORIA, B. C., Jan. 14.—(AP.)—With a hole in her starboard bow where she crashed on a reef off Helmcken Island, the motorship Northland, carrying 31 passengers to Ketchikan, Alaska, today grounded on the beach off Salmon River. The steamer Salvage King left Victoria to go to her assistance.

The Northland was en route from Seattle. She carried a crew of 30.

In proceeding up Johnstone Straits she ran close to Helmcken Island and hit a sunken reef.

Capt. Leonard Williams, as soon as his vessel had shaken clear of the reef, turned and raced for the sloping beach off the mouth of Salmon River, two miles distant, on the Vancouver Island side of the channel, and drove her aground.

The motorship is owned and operated by the Northland Navigation Company, of Seattle.

Reports of the accident said there was no panic on board. It was not determined whether passengers were in any immediate danger.

Pershing Reveals Dire Plight of U.S. When War Began

MY EXPERIENCES IN THE WORLD WAR

By JOHN J. PERSHING,

Commander-in-Chief, American Expeditionary Forces.

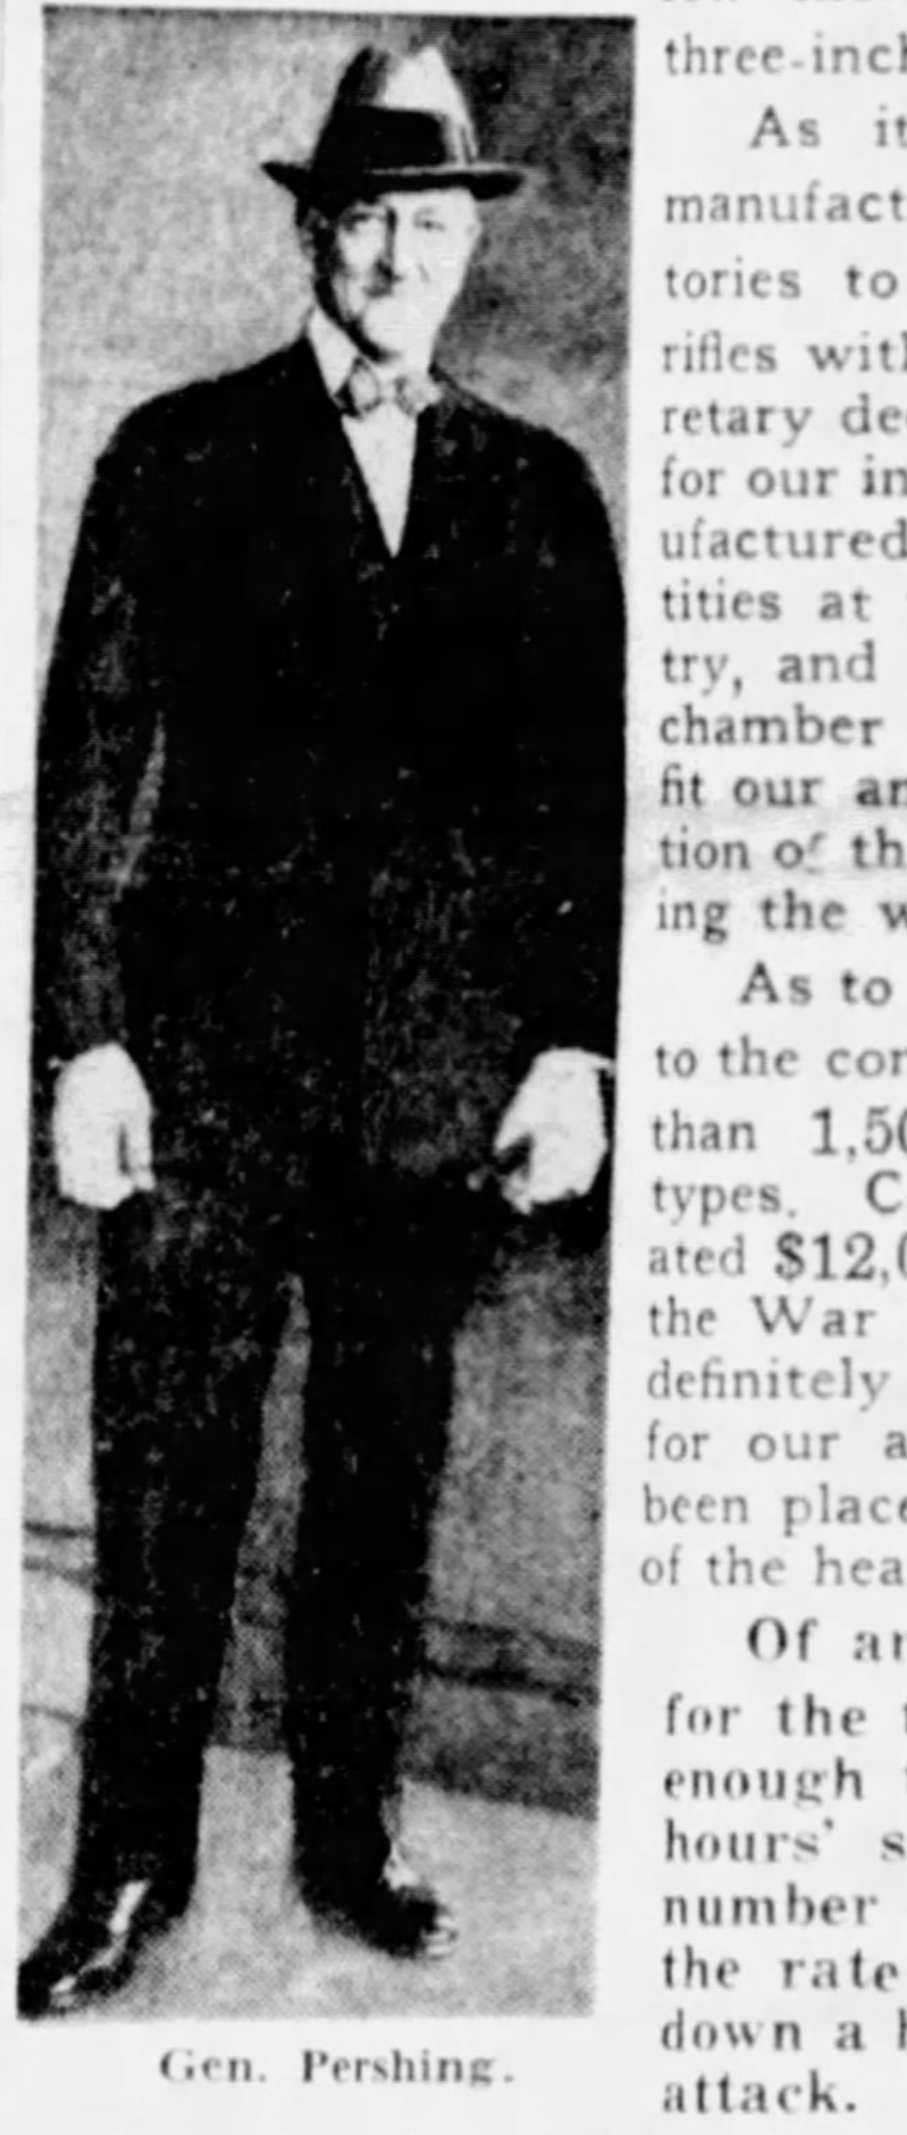
CHAPTER III.

Succeeding chapters of "My Experiences in the World War" will appear daily and Sunday exclusively in the Sun-Telegraph.

Our deplorable situation as to munitions was fully discussed at a conference called by Secretary of War Baker, May 10. A general survey of our requirements for the immediate future was made as to rifles, machine guns, light and heavy artillery, ammunition and airplanes.

It was brought out that we had for issue, not in the hands of troops, fewer than 285,000 Springfield rifles, cal. 30, only a few more than 400 light field guns, three-inch, and 150 heavy field guns.

As it was impossible because of manufacturing difficulties for our factories to turn out enough Springfield rifles within a reasonable time, the secretary decided to adopt the Enfield rifle for our infantry. It was then being manufactured for the British in large quantities at private factories in our country, and a slight modification of the chamber only was necessary to make it fit our ammunition. The total production of this rifle exceeded 2,000,000 during the war.



Gen. Pershing.

As to machine guns, it was reported to the conference that we had a few less than 1,500, and these were of four types. Congress in 1916 had appropriated $12,000,000 for machine guns, but the War Department had not decided definitely to adopt any particular one for our army, although an order had been placed late in 1916 for a quantity of the heavy Vickers-Maxims.

Of artillery ammunition, except for the three-inch we did not have enough to provide more than nine hours' supply even for a limited number of guns on hand, firing at the rate ordinarily used in laying down a barrage for an infantry attack.

The situation at that time as to aviation was such that every American ought to feel deeply chagrined to hear it mentioned. Of 65 officers and about 1,000 men in the Air Service Section of the Signal Corps, there were 35 officers who could fly.

With the exception of five or six officers, none of them could have met the requirements of modern battle conditions and none had any technical experience with aircraft guns, bombs or bombing devices.

We had some 55 training planes in various conditions of usefulness, all entirely without war equipment. Of these planes, it is amusing now to recall that the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, which had been conducting an alleged scientific study of the problem of flight, advised that 51 were obsolete and four others obsolescent.

French Appeal for Aviation Aid

Request Brings Realization of Deficiencies In Air Forces of United States.

We could not have put a single squadron in the field, although it was estimated that we should eventually need at least 300 squadrons, each to be composed on the average of some 24 officers, 185 men and 18 planes, besides a large reserve of planes for replacements.

The expectations of the Allies as to aviation are shown by the following cable, May 24, from the French Prime Minister, Alexander Ribot, which formed the basis of War Department effort:

"It is desired that in order to co-operate with the French Aeronautics, the American Government should adopt the following program: The formation of a flying corps of 4,500 airplanes—personnel and material included—to be sent to the French front during the campaign of 1918. The total number of pilots, including reserve, should be of 5,000 and 50,000 mechanics.

"Two thousand airplanes should be constructed each month as well as 4,000 engines, by the American factories. That is to say, that during the six first months of 1918,

CLARA BOW'S LOVE NOTES REVEALED

Star Weeps as Telegrams Are Read at Trial of Secretary She Accuses

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 14.—(AP.)—Affectionately-phrased telegrams to Clara Bow, introduced in evidence, intensified interest today in the trial of Daisy De Voe, her former secretary, charged with theft from the red-headed flapper of the films.

Miss Bow

Miss Bow took the stand yesterday and alternately wept, smiled, wrung her gloved hands and powdered her nose during the reading of the messages baring mementoes of her past romances. She testified her one-time secretary wanted $125,000 for the telegrams before they were recovered by prosecutors from Miss De Voe.

The telegrams contained such endearing expressions as:

"An elegant gift like yourself. None other superior. Love and loneliness. "Earl."

"Swiftly my love flies back to you, my own sweet darling. "Earl."

"Be a good girl and don't stay out too late with the boys. All

BEATEN WOMAN NEAR DEATH

ALIQUIPPA, Jan. 14.—While her six children slept upstairs a woman was beaten to the point of death in her home here today by a man who then tried to commit suicide, police reported.

Indications were that the man, who was a roomer in the house, used a hatchet and knife in his attack.

The mother, Mrs. Freda Corry, 30, of 146 Station street, and the roomer, John Carlisle, 31, were reported in critical condition in Rochester General Hospital.

Mrs. McCormick Visits President

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—(AP.)—Representative Ruth Hanna McCormick (Rep.), of Illinois, paid a short visit to President Hoover today.

After her conference she said she had talked about the Illinois election, not having seen the President since she was defeated for the Senate in November.

Will the Senate Defend The Rights of the Public?

NOW that the new Federal Power Commission has shown by its dismissal of Auditor King and Solicitor Russell that, instead of being the faithful and fearless servant of the people, it is only a subservient creature of the power trust, the duty of the Congress becomes plain and imperative.

Not another dollar of the people's money should be appropriated by the Congress for the continuance of this commission until its membership has been purged.

It cannot be purged until Chairman Smith and Commissioners Garsaud and Draper have been eliminated.

These are the three commissioners who are responsible for the removal of King and Russell.

These are the three commissioners who penalized two brave and devoted federal employes for exposing, condemning and doing their best to prevent the power trust from stealing valuable properties all over the country that rightfully belong to the people.

IF THEY did not know that they were doing exactly what the power trust wanted done when they dropped the chief accountant and the solicitor of the old commission, then Smith, Garsaud and Draper are INTELLECTUALLY deficient and consequently unfit to serve on a regulatory body created by Congress to administer the Water Power Act in the interest of the people.

On the other hand, if they did fully realize the sinister significance and the vicious effect throughout the whole federal service which their summary discharge of King and Russell was bound to have, then Smith, Garsaud and Draper are MORALLY unfit for service as members of the new commission.

Congress created this commission to administer the Federal Power Act in the public interest by enforcing its every provision with a vigor that would protect the natural resources of this country against the raids of the power trust and every other tyrannical minority attempting to steal public property.

Congress did NOT set up this commission to provide another "fence" behind which the theft of public property could be concealed and the thieves permitted to get away with their swag.

NOT until these three commissioners are driven from office, and the vicious standard of official conduct which they set up when they dismissed King and Russell is repudiated, can its official acts deserve the confidence of the people or command the support of public sentiment.

As long as Smith, Garsaud and Draper remain in office, the commission will deserve the countrywide contempt in which it is now held as the proven creature of the power trust.

Instead of being a defender of the people's property, a power commission contaminated by the membership of Smith, Garsaud and Draper will only be a "nesting place" for the dummies or the dupes of one of the most tyrannical minorities that ever attempted to overthrow the visible government of the Constitution and subject the American people to an invisible government of, by and for the evil forces of special privilege.

If President Hoover persists in his refusal to appoint a federal commission honest, brave and competent enough to defy the dictates of the power trust and protect the property of the people, then the Senate should keep on rejecting his nominations until Mr. Hoover has a change of heart.

IF THE Senate finds itself prevented by legal technicalities from receding from its confirmation of the Smith, Garsaud and Draper nominations then the House of Representatives should join the Senate in refusing to appropriate any more money for the commission while these three dummies or dupes of the power trust continue to discredit its membership.

President Hoover has defied the action of the Six Arrested, Including Girl, 15, as Officers and Firemen Stop Marchers

BULLETIN.

Three unemployed miners of Burgettstown, Pa., were reported arrested in front of the City-County Building late today when they refused to move at request of police, increasing to eight those arrested in the "Hunger Parade" demonstration.

Police this afternoon broke up several attempts to stage a "Hunger March" on the City-County Building, arresting half a dozen persons, including a 15-year-old girl, and seizing banners.

Frustrated in their attempts to parade, seven leaders of the local council, Trades Union Unity League, headed by Harry A. Woods, secretary, entered the City-County Building singly and later appeared as a committee before Council.

The committee was granted a hearing. Woods declared many women and children of the unemployed were "eating out of garbage cans."

DEMAND FOOD

The committee submitted demands for free food, clothing and gas for families of unemployed.

Pupils of several schools, in the Hill district, called upon in Communist circulars to cut classes this afternoon and join in the heralded procession, generally ignored the request, according to the school

LINK BONUS SUIT WITH WALL ST.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—(INS.)—Wall street awaits with considerable interest the outcome of the suit brought against officers and directors of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation to compel an accounting and refunding of $36,493,668 in bonsuses distributed to the officers since 1911.

Though the suit filed yesterday is brought in the name of four stockholders with only nominal holdings of stock, from 10 shares to 500 shares, it is believed that a powerful Wall street group is backing the test case.

The defendants comprise another powerful group, including the presidents of Wall street banks, financial houses and industrial concerns.

NEWARK, N. J., Jan 14.—(INS.)—Vice Chancellor John H. Backes today granted a rule directing officers and directors of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation to show cause why he should not grant the application of four stockholders that the sum of $36,493,668, paid in bonuses to officers and directors, past and present, be restored to the corporation.

NYE HOLDS DAVIS RESPONSIBLE FOR $700,000 VOTE FUND

QUIZ REPORT READY FOR SENATE

Ex-Secretary Benefited by Huge 'Machine' Sum, North Dakotan Declares

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS
Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14—The report to the Senate by which Senator Gerald P. Nye hopes to oust Senator James J. Davis for alleged excessive campaign expenditures will hold him directly responsible for every cent spent in the Pennsylvania primary on behalf of the Brown-Davis ticket. The amount totals between $600,000 and $700,000.

The foregoing was revealed today by Senator Nye, North Dakota Republican, chairman of the Senate's special campaign expenditures investigating committee.

REVEALS CONTENTS

Senator Nye revealed the contents of his forthcoming report after it had been reported that he had found between $150,000 and $200,000 was spent solely in Davis' behalf in the primary.

He indicated he believed the expenditures made solely in Davis' behalf were of relative unimportance and that when he made his report he would point out that he should be charged up with all the money spent in behalf of the Brown-Davis ticket. He asserted:

"As was testified before the committee by William Douglas, an employe of the state-wide Brown-Davis committee, that money was spent to keep the political machine going industriously. Senator Davis was a part of that machine, and that machine was working just as industriously to nominate him as it was working to nominate the other candidates on the ticket. Therefore Davis received as much benefit from the expenditures as did the other candidates."

ENDS UNCERTAINTY

Senator Nye's statement ends the fog that has beclouded the report he will make. Until now he had said that in not splitting up the funds he would allow each member of the Senate to decide how much should be charged to Davis as his share of the campaign costs.

Today, however, he showed he expects to make a strong fight to hold Davis accountable for a gigantic fund, which is certain to cause a determined fight to unseat the former steel puddler.

Senator Davis, in the meantime, today was making his own determined fight to be held responsible for only a small part of the expenditures. He wrote Senator Nye, accepting an invitation to appear before the committee Friday and attempt to convince it that Nye's philosophy is unsound.

SENATOR FLAYS RED CROSS, HOOVER

Caraway Defends Food Loan Bill; Wheeler, Thomas to Demand Probe Into Funds

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14—President Hoover and the American Red Cross were jointly attacked on the floor of the Senate this afternoon by Senator Caraway (Dem.), of Arkansas, for opposing the $15,000,000 food loan relief measure at a time when thousands of persons are going hungry in drought-ridden states.

INQUIRY DEMANDED

The food loan provision, already stricken from the administration's drought relief bill by the House, probably will be abandoned by the Senate. Its elimination undoubtedly will result in a senatorial inquiry into the financial condition of the Red Cross, as two Senators, Thomas (Dem.), of Oklahoma, and Wheeler (Dem.), of Montana, have threatened such an inquiry.

Thomas and Wheeler criticized the Red Cross for spending large sums on "marble palaces" while withholding relief from hungry citizens in the drought states. They claimed the Red Cross had many millions of dollars in reserve, Thomas stating that a Red Cross official told him the organization had $26,000,000 in reserve.

Caraway made an impassioned plea for the $15,000,000 food loans and tears came to his eyes as he described the suffering and misery in Arkansas. He continued:

"The President is posing as a defender of children—to give them a chance to grow up to be better than the present generation. Yet he refused to let children of 22 states get enough food to sustain life."

MILLIONS FOR RICH

He referred to huge appropriations being asked and obtained for less important matters than feeding starving women and children, asserting:

"We see $120,000,000 paid back to rich corporations, and more money was turned back to the estate of one man than is asked for in this appropriation."

Criticizing charges made in the House that the food disorders in Arkansas were a part of Communist agitation, Caraway declared:

"They are just as good Americans as the President who had eight Christmas trees—they did not have even one."

John Barton Payne, chairman of the Red Cross, said today "we invite an investigation."

He declared the organization has only a little more than $4,000,000 in its treasury and is spending this at the rate of $200,000 a day for drought relief.

tion of economic problems, particularly unemployment.

Lucas Launches Hoover Drive for Re-election

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14—(Universal)—The campaign for the renomination and re-election of President Hoover is under way, it was learned today, with the disclosure of a letter sent by Robert H. Lucas, executive director of the Republican National Committee, to Republican precinct leaders throughout the country.

The letter appeals to them to "defend the President" and to aid the National Committee in "an aggressive, active, determined campaign from this day until the polls close in 1932."

Extolling the President for preventing a "disastrous panic," the letter declares Mr. Hoover "has sustained the American scale of wages, maintained the American standard of living, prevented a nation-wide money panic and kept thousands of men and women at work in every community who would otherwise have been listed among the unemployed."

Republican leaders are urged to combat "Raskob's 'smear Hoover' campaign," the letter adds, continuing:

"By subtle innuendo and insidious propaganda which is being carried on by Raskob's organization in every community in the United States, they hope to break down the people's confidence in Herbert Hoover and thereby elect a Democrat in 1932."

Ritchie Gives Platform, Demands Dry Repeal

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 14—(INS)—Albert C. Ritchie, whom many regard as a Democratic presidential possibility in 1932, assumed the governorship of Maryland today for the fourth consecutive term—an office to which no other man has ever been re-elected once, let alone four times.

In an inaugural speech, he outlined with characteristic vigor and directness his philosophy of government, and gave what inevitably must be considered a platform of principles upon which he rests his political future.

RITCHIE'S PLATFORM

Briefly summed up, they were:

Tolerance in all things.

Repeal of prohibition and the return of the liquor problem to the states.

Less encroachment by the Federal Government upon the rights of the states.

Less meddling by the Federal Government in business.

More national energy devoted to the solution of economic problems, particularly unemployment.

JOB RELIEF CENSURE

The growth of centralization in the federal government and the loss of power by the states has been steady since the Civil War, he said.

Without seeking to place the blame for the economic depression, Gov. Ritchie did severely censure the federal government for not scenting it and taking protective measures while there was yet time.

Instead, he said, all that was forthcoming was a "series of inflationary statements, which intensified the crash of 1929," and later "unsupported and misleading statements promising an early return to prosperity."

DRY REPEAL URGED

Then, turning to prohibition, he said:

"There has also been developed the conception that law is no longer a barrier protecting the rights of the individual against any who would invade them, but that it is a scheme of social control to regulate human conduct and to secure the moral well being of the individual by forcing upon all the people the social precepts and ideas of some of them."

Characterizing this as "a strange and un-American doctrine," he continued:

"The high water mark of all this was national prohibition. No matter what the findings of the Wickersham commission may be, they cannot end, nor can they minimize, the injury to the cause of reasoned temperance, the unhappy temptations to the youth of the land and the lawlessness which have resulted from putting prohibition into the Constitution, where it ought not to be, instead of leaving the question to the states, where it ought to be."

LYNCHING QUIZ UP TO STATE

MARYVILLE, Mo., Jan. 14—(INS.)—Official investigation into the lynching of Raymond Gunn, Negro slayer of Velma Colter, today rested with the attorney general of Missouri, according to reports received here.

In Nodaway County, where a frenzied mob tore Gunn from Sheriff Harve England and chained him to the ridgepole of the frame schoolhouse where Miss Colter was attacked and slain, no action has been taken against leaders of the lynchers.

Sheriff England offered to name leaders of the crowd who burned the confessed slayer on the schoolhouse pyre. The sheriff said any action taken would have to come from higher officials.

Threats against another Negro, Paul Smith, whom Gunn named as an accomplice in the murder, were heard here, according to police. Smith was arrested in Omaha, but was released when he proved an alibi.

PINCHOT NAMES D. J. DAVIS

HARRISBURG, Jan. 14—(INS.)—Col. David J. Davis, of Scranton, today was appointed adjutant general of Pennsylvania by Gov.-elect Gifford Pinchot.

Col. Davis is chief of staff of the Twenty-eighth Division, the Pennsylvania National Guard, and was lieutenant governor of Pennsylvania during Gov.-elect Pinchot's first term.

Yesterday Pinchot named Oliver M. Deibler, Greensburg, as commissioner of fisheries, and Lewis E. Staley, state forester of South Carolina, as secretary of forests and waters. Earlier in the day Pinchot had named Charles F. Armstrong, Leechburg, as insurance commissioner, and Richard J. Beamish, Philadelphia, as secretary of the commonwealth.

Deibler will succeed Nathan R. Buller, who has been commissioner of fisheries since 1911, with the exception of two weeks in 1917, when the Senate failed to confirm his appointment and Gov. Brumbaugh reappointed him after adjournment of the Legislature.

Sixth Seeks Chicago Mayor Nomination

CHICAGO, Jan. 14—(AP.)—Another candidate for the Republican mayoralty nomination, making six in all, was presented to Chicago voters today, with the announcement of George K. Schmidt, city comptroller in Mayor William Hale Thompson's cabinet, that he would make the race.

Schmidt will contest for the nomination at the primary next month with Thompson, Judge John H. Lyle, Charles V. Barrett, Thomas F. Houston and Alderman Arthur F. Albert.

PINCHOT P. S. C. PLAN PERILED

HARRISBURG, Jan. 14—A plan to defeat Gov.-elect Pinchot's desires with respect to organization of the Public Service Commission, on the eve of his inauguration, is on foot here, according to reports from reliable sources.

The scheme, backed by the Philadelphia anti-Pinchot forces, is to obtain confirmation of Gov. Fisher's appointees to the commission, James M. Benn and Samuel Walker, by a majority vote, instead of a two-thirds vote of the Senate.

The Senate is scheduled to meet next Monday night. The newly-elected governor will take office Tuesday noon.

THREE MEN NAMED

Three men whose names have recently been linked with Miss Bow as having been those of "boy friends" are Dr. Earl Pierson, whom Miss Bow visited in Texas, several months ago; Harry Richman, of New York, and Rex Bell, motion picture cowboy actor and business manager for the actress.

Frequent pauses in the taking of the actress' testimony were necessitated by the action of Miss Bow in applying her powder puff. During these intermissions questioning attorneys leaned on their elbows or sat down and jurors and spectators relaxed or tittered.

The district attorney had ready for introduction today a long statement made recently by Miss De Voe in which details were given of how Miss Bow spent approximately $350,000 on "necessities" in less than two years. The statement details expenditures made for Miss Bow by her erstwhile secretary-confidant, who is charged with 37 counts of grand theft, totalling $16,000.

DRY LAW REPORT AGAIN DELAYED

The commission was scheduled to meet, but only three members appeared. The session lasted little more than 10 minutes.

Another meeting was set for tomorrow, but it was problematical whether a quorum could be gathered at that time.

No indication was given at the White House or at commission headquarters as to when the report would be presented.

CLUE TO FLYING WIDOW FALSE

PONTA DELGADA, Azores, Jan. 14—(AP.)—The steamer Norfolk, which for two days has been searching the seas about the Azores Islands for the missing monoplane Tradewind, and the Swedish steamer Nuolja, which also has been looking for the missing plane, today reported that their search had been fruitless.

The Norfolk steamed about the island of St. Michaels, with flashlights playing on the water, but found nothing to indicate that an object which inhabitants saw falling into the sea at about the time the Tradewind should have been in the vicinity was anything but a rocket fired by a British cruiser maneuvering nearby.

Modern Machines Benefit Workers, Coolidge Says

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 14.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

Extending the use of machinery has always made it difficult for the shortsighted to reconcile the interests of groups immediately affected with the interests of society.

Calvin Coolidge

One of the fundamental reasons for this is the misleading name that has been given to the introduction of mechanical devices for doing work. We call it labor saving machinery. In reality it is labor-making.

One of the machines most recently developed on a large scale is the motor vehicle. Directly and indirectly it has furnished employment for several millions of people. If both the workers and the tools engaged in the wagon industries became displaced, more remunerative employment was found in other and allied fields.

The machine by increasing the productive power of the workman raises his wages and standard of living. Transferring and absorbing displaced wage earners with the least possible loss is a problem industry must solve. The process is indispensable to the progress of labor. Concerns and countries that fail to adopt the most modern machinery have the least work and lowest pay for the wage earner. It is only modern equipment that promises the most work and the highest wages.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

authorities. Bundles of circulars were seized.

Police reserves were assembled downtown awaiting the expected parade, but had little to do except disperse throngs gathered in and near the City-County Building. Firemen laid hose lines in anticipation of trouble, and extra policemen were stationed at the office of Mayor Kline and the Council chamber.

RIOT CALL SOUNDS

A riot call sent a dozen motorcycle patrolmen and two patrol wagons to Fernando street and Wylie avenue, where a group of paraders were forming. The police dispersed the marchers after arresting two men and a girl.

Those arrested were lodged in Central station. They are Ernest Rymer, 22, of 2002 Webster avenue; Pauline Jurich, 15, of 511 Penn avenue, Wilkinsburg, and Frank Haues, 18, of 544 Spiral street. Haues is alleged to have interfered with police when they stopped the parade by arresting the girl and Rymer.

The marchers were carrying banners which read: "Free Clothing for the Children of the Unployed in the Schools" and "Free Milk, Not Five Cents."

Patrolman Howard Caldwell, single handed, dispersed a group of Negroes as they formed at Webster avenue and Kirkpatrick street, carrying banners, "Millions for Pittsburgh Police. Not One Cent for the Jobless," and "The Unemployed Council Does Not Tolerate Eviction."

One man was arrested and a crowd of several hundred persons dispersed by police at Fourth avenue and Grant street at 1:30 this afternoon. According to police, Harry C. Love, aged 42, of 315 Kelly avenue, Wilkinsburg, refused to obey orders to move. He was arrested by Patrolman Thomas Abbott, charged with violating a city ordinance.

HINDU ARRESTED

A Hindu, Masire Ahmat, 32, of 2231 Humber way, was arrested by Patrolman John Mahazen, charged with disorderly conduct. Police say Ahmat became abusive and argued with the patrolman concerning opposition to the parade.

Secretary Woods, of the Unity League, gave out a statement following an ineffectual attempt to see Walsh this morning in which he declared:

"Mr. Walsh has consistently refused to receive the representatives, or make any attempt to meet with the league."

Whatever trouble may result will rest on Walsh's shoulders, the statement set forth.

Walsh went to Center Avenue Police Station this afternoon when he heard there was trouble on the Hill. He said:

"I was informed a committee wants to see me. I am going home for lunch now and will be back in my office shortly. My office will be open to any committee. I'll be there all day."

As a precaution against a possible attempt to damage property, Superintendent Walsh ordered a detail of plainclothesmen to guard leading downtown office buildings.

Arnold Scott, 43, a Negro, of Wylie avenue, arrested last night at Sixth and Wylie avenues, where he was passing Communist propaganda, was fined $5 this morning in Central station for violating a city ordinance.

TO DEMAND "MILLIONS"

Meanwhile members of the League—a Communistic organization—were advertising the four parades of unemployed to march on the City-County Building this afternoon. Secretary Woods of the league, last night announced:

"We will march into City Council and make them turn over to us the millions that will keep us from starving."

Woods delivered his defiant address to more than 1,000 men and women gathered in North Side Carnegie Music Hall to hear William Z. Foster, their acclaimed leader, speak. Other leaders, every bit as fiery, voiced their defiance of so-called capitalistic laws, police clubs and the hated "bosses," while blue-coated officers, plainclothes men and city police officials looked on unperturbed. Foster left the city for New York following the meeting.

SPEAKERS UNDISTURBED

Several times during the harangues for mass protestation of unemployment and "starvation" wages, the police and their officials were referred to as "tools of capitalism" and "bludgeons of capitalistic law," but the speakers went on unmolested and the audience cheered and booed.

Foster spoke of world-wide revolution as an exemplification of the workers' protest against oppression. He called attention to the recent upheaval in Spain; Poland's present condition which he declared needed only a spark to set it off; revolutions in South America, China and in almost every section of the world. He said:

"These workers are tired of oppression just as you are and they are rebelling. You must do likewise."

He spoke of world business depression and declared conditions were becoming worse every day. He decried the need of immediate relief which he declared could come to the worker only by fighting and called attention to Europe's ever-increasing army of unemployed which has reached 4,500,000 in Germany and more than 3,000,000 in England. He continued:

"In the Soviet Union today there is no unemployment. There are 2,500,000 jobs open today and the great Soviet five-year program is almost completed, two years ahead of schedule."

CHICAGO, Jan. 14.—(AP.)—William Popielsky, wholesale confectioner, has a sweet tooth.

SEEK BARONET GONE 18 YEARS

LONDON, Jan. 14.—(AP.)—British radio systems today urged Sir Francis Barrow, English baronet, who mysteriously disappeared 18 years ago and has not since made his whereabouts known.

A broadcast carried the urgent appeal of friends to come home immediately since his eldest son, Wilfred John Wilson Croker Barrow, heir to his title, is seriously ill.

The broadcast was the first revelation to the general public that the baronet, who is the fourth of his line, was missing. Lady Barrow, his wife and other members of the family, declined to discuss the disappearance or other circumstances of the case.

The first baronet, Sir John Barrow, for many years secretary of the Admiralty and founder of the Royal Geographical Society, was highly distinguished as an author and traveler.

MEXICAN REBEL, WIFE REUNITED

MONTREAL, Jan. 14.—(AP.)—A marriage annulment suit has been settled amicably between Gen. Jose Gonzales Escobar and his wife, the former Concepcion Goeldner, of El Paso, Tex. John A. Sullivan, attorney for the general and Gilles Gadbois, attorney for Senora Escobar, announced today.

The general and his wife, their misunderstanding settled, will live in Montreal, Sullivan stated. The whole action, in which Mrs. Escobar requested annulment of her marriage to the general, came about because she had been "misinformed," Sullivan added.

He denied reports that the couple and Senora Escobar's brother had left Montreal.

Senora Escobar began her suit several weeks ago, charging that her husband had a legal wife living when they were married in 1924. She asked a division of $200,000 which she said Escobar had in various banks.

Escobar came to Montreal soon after the collapse of the rebellion he led in Mexico in 1929.

At the afternoon session, George Thomas, of Glenshaw, son of the owner of the company, testified that he had checked arrival and departure schedules of the Harmony Short Line Transportation Company now serving the highway involved and that the schedule was not being maintained. Women testified that the present service was inadequate and complained that it interfered with their shopping.

ASK RECEIVER FOR SONG SHOP

Writing the nation's songs may be more important than penning the nation's laws, but peddling those same tunes apparently isn't so profitable.

Joe Hiller, cabaret and music man, indicated that much today when his Joe Hiller Music Corporation filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy.

The petition recited that the liabilities amounted to $15,900, of which $11,000 was unsecured claims. And the assets were set at $16,500—$11,400 in stock and $5,000 in fixtures in the two Hiller stores in Smithfield street and Penn avenue, East End.

Federal Judge Schoonmaker named R. H. Coleman receiver on petition of a creditor, the Samuel Weinhause Company.

MAN LOSES JOB; HANGS SELF

Despondency over the loss of his job was believed by deputy coroners to have prompted John Neuss, 43, of 830 Vista street, North Side, to hang himself to a bedpost with a belt in his home last night.

Neuss, released from a hospital Monday after being confined there for two months with injuries suffered in an automobile accident, learned that his old job had been taken by another, according to the coroner's report. His mother Mrs. Louise Neuss, who found the body, told deputy coroners that her son had threatened to take his life because of the loss of his job.

Westinghouse Builds New Type '2 in 1' Elevators

Designed to keep pace with modern industry and business, a new and unique type of elevator has been built by the Westinghouse company. A yearly saving of $35,000 to $85,000 in floor rental space value is promised by the designers.

The new elevator is known as a "dual" elevator with express and local service made possible by two elevators in the same shaftway. It has been installed and placed in regular service in the main office building of the Westinghouse company at East Pittsburgh.

In describing the two-car elevator H. D. James, engineer, said:

"The upper car of the two is the express car. It starts from street level, runs without stops to floor 11 and serves the floors from that point to the top. It is entirely unrestricted as to its operation except that it is automatically prevented from running downward while the lower car is running upward.

"As soon as the express car is out of the way, the lower or local car, rises from the basement and serves the lower 10 floors. Operations are timed so that both cars reach their limits of travel about the same time.

"Safety is assured by the use of three independent safety systems."

Paris Tour Winner Back, Tells of 'Wonderful Time'

Happy beyond imagination, Miss Anna Nydes, who won the title "Miss Pittsburgh" and represented this city in a group of Gloria Swanson girls on a trip to Paris, will be home tonight. She left New York this morning and will arrive at the Pennsylvania Depot at 9:30 o'clock.

Miss Nydes, a Squirrel Hill girl, employed in the Law Department of the City of Pittsburgh, won the trip in a contest recently conducted by the Sun-Telegraph. She left Pittsburgh December 12 and was in Paris two weeks—throughout the holidays. She arrived in New York on the Ile de France last Friday, but remained in that city as the guest of friends until this morning. Miss Nydes wires ahead that words cannot describe the wonderful time she had on the Paris trip and she speaks glowingly of the courtesy and thoughtfulness of Miss Swanson's representatives in the arrangement and conduct of a program of sightseeing which crowded two months into two weeks.

Miss Nydes was not under a cent of personal expense during the trip from Pittsburgh to New York and Paris and home again. And everything was the best that money could buy. It is estimated that the cost of the trip was in the vicinity of $2,000.

OUR HIGH finance is contributing tens of millions in loans and machinery to a Russian experiment that includes government ownership of everything. Why not try it on a modest scale here?

CHICAGO'S NEW racket is called "Schochtim war," connected with the slaughtering of poultry and other animals according to Jewish ritual, which demands elimination of all the animals' blood. Racketeers broke into this industry. Chicago's rabbinate thought they were rid of the plague, but today the Schochtim union head, S. Rest, chosen by the rabbis, is warned by the business agent of the racket that if he doesn't get out he will know just what it means to be put on the spot.

THIS STRANGE racket would surprise Moses, whose laws make necessary the ritual slaughtering. If he were alive he might say:

"When I wrote my dietary laws we lived in a hot country and had no ice boxes. Change them now in accordance with common sense, and slaughter animals with the least possible infliction of pain."

Prohibition agents today were searching for a bootlegger who escaped after knocking one of the agents from the running board of a liquor-laden automobile at Fifth avenue extension and Frankstown avenue late last night. Prohibition Agent I. E. Ross was treated at the Marine Hospital for cuts and bruises.

According to a report at prohibition headquarters, Ross and Agent Michael Cimbalista were riding in an automobile which was stopped by traffic lights. Another machine stopped beside them which had a cargo of liquor, Ross said. He stepped to the running board of the adjoining machine.

As Ross identified himself the driver of the car sped away and the prohibition agent was knocked to the street.

Will the Senate Defend The Rights of the Public?

Senate and the opinion of the public and has determined to stand by the power trust and his and ITS appointees on the Federal Power Commission.

The only question now therefore is whether the Senate will have the backbone to stand up for the public rights and its own rights or whether it will "lie down" tamely and submissively as it has done so often of late.

In fact lying down before a dominant and impudent executive has become so characteristic of the Senate that the Hearst papers venture to suggest that in the interest of senatorial comfort and convenience the chairs be removed from the Senate chamber and overstuffed sofas, couches and divans appropriately substituted in their place.

A temporary injunction was granted against the drinking room and store known as "Harry's Place," 528 Locust street, McKeesport, today by Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker, on complaint by Robert Krause, deputy prohibition administrator, who alleged violations of the prohibition laws. H. J. Weinenberg was named proprietor.

Court Suspends Gas Rate Raise in W. Va.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 14.—(AP)—The State Supreme Court today suspended "pending final hearing," new rates fixed December 4 by the Public Service Commission in the Southern West Virginia gas rate case.

Although the order did not specifically state the fact, Charles Ritchie, Charleston, counsel for protesting cities, said in his opinion the court's order constitutes an appeal from the Public Service Commission's decision in granting new rates to the United Fuel Gas Company.

BARBECUE FIRE LAID TO 'TORCH'

Fire believed of incendiary origin early today destroyed the large vacant barbecue and dance hall known as Moonbeam Garden, at Frankstown road, near Saltsburg road, Penn Township, causing a loss of $15,000.

County Detectives Thomas Calig and Samuel Whisner reported two empty five-gallon cans, which had contained gasoline or oil were found in the ruins.

A telephone wire was severed, the detectives said, cutting off communications of Kimmell's barbecue and other nearby places, delaying the alarm of fire.

Volunteer firemen of Unity and North Bessemer arrived as the roof and walls were collapsing. They saved Kimmell's nearby place from igniting.

John H. Peterman, who lives nearby, is owner of the destroyed building. He was said to have held a constable's sale in an effort to collect rent from a former tenant and later to have received threatening letters.

CURB ON WATER WASTE VOTED

A pitometer survey to check up on waste in the North Side water system, at a cost of $36,500, was approved by Council yesterday in committee session. Of this sum, $14,000 was allotted for the repair of leaks found.

The survey, nearly half completed, is similar to those undertaken in Herron Hill and on the South Side, resulting in an 18 per cent saving in water consumption.

SANE BEHAVIOR AT FIRES URGED

Use of common sense during fires was urged by Deputy Fire Chief John J. T. Waldron, speaking at the first session of the Chamber of Commerce's "Fire School" last night. He said:

"Find out the location of the nearest fire alarm box to your home, be sure your match or cigaret is out before you throw it away, and when you come up against fires anywhere, just use common sense."

More than 500 janitors, watchmen and firemen attended the meeting. Chief Waldron, a veteran of 28 years' service, was introduced by Deputy Chief Frank Jones, of the Pittsburgh department. O. C. Colwes, of the life and property committee of the Chamber, presided. Chief Waldron ended his address by saying:

"If you should see a house burning, don't rush in blindly to arouse the occupants or try to put it out yourself. Get to the nearest fire alarm box, send in a call and be sure to wait nearby so that when the fire companies come you can direct them to the scene. Anyone who rushes into a burning building is taking the chance of being overcome by smoke—then everybody suffers because the would-be rescuer didn't use common sense and call for help."

among the boys who paint out big names on glass doors.

Republicans investigate Democrats. That's beating the other guy to the draw.

Lexicographers are looking for a new word to describe the man who borrows a book. And doesn't replace his divots.

We don't think we need a new word for a man like that.

The old ones will do.

They'll do when delivered spontaneously with all the fervor and ecstacy of a tortured soul an octave above par.

If you think up a word for the man, how about another title for the lady who bears his nameplate? Book borrowing is generally perpetrated by married couples. The husband usually diverts your collapsible attention while the wife absconds with the portfolio.

We ourselves have a complete library of borrowed books. You cannot consider them stolen until the copyright expires.

You might call him a bookmoocher. That's from the Latin. Meaning it is more blessed to borrow than to receive.

A literat ain't bad. With the accent on the last syllable if you get that far.

Now, there's the book miser. He seems to think his books are his own property.

We snitch books from a man like that just to teach him not to put his faith in the pomps and artificial delusions of life. After all, a book doesn't know who's reading it.

The old bookaroo of the West has gone. But there are still more nervous easterners who read best sellers under the impression that they are adding lumps to their education.

If the literat swipes hammock literature he is not guilty of stealing books. He ain't guilty of anything. Except wasting his time.

So it indicates that one epithet cannot cover the entire art of book stealing. Even if the mercury is all in one thermometer it still registers different degrees in varying stages of the climate.

We think the honorary title of bookmoocher is good enough for the vest pocket dictionary. We have no sympathy with a man who angers you by deliberately stealing a heavy book that you were about to throw at him.

A moocher is anybody who gets something for nothing and discovers that the transaction figures out even to a round dot.

PERSHING SHOWS ALLIES AT ODDS OVER U. S. TROOPS

French, English Appeal In Vain for Yankees To Fill Ranks

16,500 planes (of the latest type) and 30,000 engines will have to be built.

"The French Government is anxious to know if the American Government accepts this proposition, which would allow the Allies to win the supremacy of the air."

This message, in its appeal for such a large number of aviation personnel and airplanes, was really a most convincing confession [illegible] Allied armies. But more [illegible] French that, [illegible] was pre- home [illegible] realization [illegible] military at- our pitiful [illegible] in aviation [illegible] ment.

The [illegible] 1917, [illegible] ation [illegible] understood [illegible] that [illegible] commentary was on the [illegible] of that [illegible] which [illegible] have prompted the people [illegible] their representatives to [illegible] action.

Thus the deeper we went into the situation the more overwhelming the work ahead of us seemed to be. As the degree of its accomplishment within a reasonable time would be the measure of our aid to the Allies, extreme haste in our preparation was urgent.

We were called upon to make up in a few months for the neglect of years during which self-satisfied provincialism and smug complacency had prevented the most elementary efforts toward a reasonable precaution to meet such an emergency.

Among other subjects considered with the Secretary was the assembly for training of the National Guard and the men to come in under the draft. The organization of our army had never been based upon the tactical requirements of battle, but we still retained our troops at small posts, as in the days of Indian warfare. Some of these were convenient enough, and although they lacked sufficient barracks and training areas for units as large as a division they could have been advantageously used in the earlier stages of training up to the limits of their accommodations.

In lieu of any previous plans, the Secretary contemplated the construction of cantonments in different parts of the country, and May 7 the Commanding Generals of the several departments were directed to select sites.

Seek Our Troops
Allies Request Americans For Their Ranks

The actual construction of cantonments was not begun until nearly three months after we were in the war, and so great was the task of erecting buildings and putting in water works and sewers that some ninety days more elapsed by the time these centers of instructions were ready to receive troops. Thus it was, with some exceptions, practically six months before the training of our army was under way. Even then several of these camps were not favorably located, and training was seriously handicapped during the fall and winter months.

About this time the Allies brought up the question of utilizing our men to build up their armies. As we shall see, the subject arose from time to time in one form or another, and we had to fight against it until the end of the war.

Lord Balfour

Both the French and British missions under M. Rene Viviani and Mr. Arthur G. Balfour, respectively, were very keen to have us consent to fill up the ranks of their armies with Americans. The French really wanted us to send small, untrained units for incorporation in their divisions. Their views were clearly set forth in a

Low Morale
Joffre Asks for Division To Cheer French

[illegible] Joffre, of [illegible] mission, however, [illegible] learned that such a [illegible] would not appeal to [illegible] suggested that we [illegible] organize our own divisions, and urged that one [illegible] be sent over immediately to stimulate French morale, which they frankly confessed was then at low ebb. In addition, he asked for 50,000 men for service on their railways and in the shops, including trained personnel for their medical units.

Draft Proposal
Suggestion Made to Send Americans to England

There was another proposal known as the General Nivelle scheme in which it was requested that we send 80,000 men to perform various kinds of work. The following paragraph will indicate the French attitude as to command as well as their view regarding the urgency of their requirements:

". . . In order that there may not be any officers of higher rank than the French officers with whom these auxiliary troops will be called upon to work it is preferable that in the different units there should not be for the present any officer above the rank of captain. When the units will become sufficiently numerous to require superior officers these can be chosen from the captains of existing units."

A definite proposal that our men should be drafted into the British Army was also pressed by the military representative with the British Mission, Maj. Gen. Tom Bridges. He wrote Maj. Gen. Scott as follows, in part:

"If you ask me how your force could most quickly make itself felt in Europe, I would say by sending 500,000 untrained men at once to our depots in England to be trained there, and drafted into our armies in France. This is the view alike of our Commander-in-Chief in France and the Chief of the Imperial General Staff (Sir Douglas Haig and Sir W. Robertson), their reasons being that we are short of men, the war is at a critical stage, when we may yet be able to turn the scale and force a decision during the summer, and every day counts. . . .

"You will have the language difficulty to contend with if your divisions go to the French. The French have very few English speaking officers; not so many as they think. A good instructor can indeed seldom speak English, and men will soon get tired of being instructed through interpreters.

SECRETARY BAKER STARTING DRAFT

NEWTON D. BAKER, SECRETARY OF WAR, BLINDFOLDED TO DRAW NAMES IN THE DRAFT

Disadvantages
Foresee Shortage After Summer Battles

"We have been told that the sentiment in this country is in favor of fighting with and for the French. We understand the sentiment. . . . I think I have made it clear there are serious military disadvantages, and you will be sacrificing some of your efficiency for this sentiment, and making, in my opinion, the task of your commanders and staff more difficult in the field. Once you had a sufficient force in France, however, it would be quite feasible to place your army between the French and ourselves, where it could, if so desired, be under French direction, and supplied by us. . . .

"We would be glad if you would consider the question of allowing recruiting of American citizens for the British, Canadian and French Armies, from the surplus you will have over your requirements. We are all going to suffer from a shortage after this summer's fighting. . . ."

Lack Harmony
Rivalry Shown Between English and French

Gen. Bridges requested that, in the event we could not see our way clear to draft men as individuals, then minor units, such as battalions and regiments, should be incorporated in British divisions.

I was decidedly against our becoming a recruiting agency for either the French or British, and at that time this was the attitude of the War Department also. While fully realizing the difficulties, it was definitely understood between the Secretary of War and me that we should proceed to organize our own units from top to bottom and build a distinctive army of our own as rapidly as possible.

The evident rivalry between the British and French for control and use of our forces, even before we had an army in the field, confirmed my impression that those two Governments were not working entirely in harmony. As to their armies, it had been apparent for some time that there was a lack of cooperation between them. Their efforts were often separate and distinct, that is, first one and then the other would attack.

Generally speaking, such methods could not seriously affect the enemy, who would thus be at liberty to utilize his reserves against one or the other. I had often remarked that the Allies would never win the war until they secured unity of action under some form of co-ordinated control.

Meets Joffre
Becomes Fast Friend of American Leader

My first meeting with Marshal Joffre was during his farewell call on the Secretary of War late in May. I entered just as he and his party were leaving. He spoke of the serious situation in France and expressed the hope of seeing American troops on the Western front very soon.

Here was a Marshal of France who, as Commander-in-Chief of the French Army for nearly three years, had made his name immortal, appealing for military assistance from a man recently designated to be commander-in-chief of an army not yet in existance.

I have often wondered what must have been his thoughts under the circumstances, but whatever he may have felt as to the new commander himself, the totally unready situation that he found in America could not have been very encouraging. It is a pleasure to say that this great soldier became my loyal and consistent personal friend.

Although it was not generally known that I was to go abroad there was a flood of applications to accompany me. One of them was a personal appeal for service in any capacity by my old friend Robert Bacon, who had been ambassador to France. He had already given valuable aid to the Allied cause, and because of his intimate knowledge of the French people and his tact and discretion I was glad to have him.

Disappointments
Friends Make Efforts To Join Pershing

Mr. Straight

Another friend who was most anxious to join my headquarters was Willard Straight, whom I had known in Manchuria during the Russo-Japanese War. Although his request could not be granted, he came to France within a few months and served efficiently in the army and with the Peace Commission, being on duty with the latter at the time of his death.

Lloyd Griscom, with whom I had been pleasantly associated when he was our minister and I was military attache at Tokio, asked to go with me, but it was impossible to arrange it. When he came over later as adjutant of the 77th Division, I at once detailed him as my representative at the War Office in London.

A few days before my departure, while at lunch at the Metropolitan Club with Charles E. Magoon, ex-governor of Cuba, Charles G. Dawes joined us. The three of us had been friends in the days when we were together at Lincoln, Neb., Magoon and Dawes as young lawyers, the latter with a decided talent for business, and I as military instructor at the State University.

Dawes' Desire
Wanted Commission in Engineer Regiment

Dawes was an applicant for a commission in one of the engineer regiments then being organized, under the direction of Mr. Samuel Felton, from volunteers with experience in railroading, and wanted me to help him get the appointment. I asked him whether he knew anything about engineering, and he said that when a youth he had carried a chain a month or so for a surveyor out in Ohio.

I was not much impressed with his pretensions as an engineer or as a prospective military possibility, but I did have knowledge of his business ability and experience, and knew that he would be valuable in some position requiring his qualifications, so I spoke to the Secretary of War in his behalf.

Requests from National Guard officers and from Governors for the early acceptance of their state units literally poured into the War Department. The clamor became so general and so insistent that the Secretary of War happily conceived the idea of forming a composite division to include troops from every state in the union. I thought the suggestion a good one and gave it my hearty endorsement. This was the origin of the 42nd (Rainbow) division, which was later to distinguish itself in several engagements.

(Tomorrow: Gen. Pershing meets President Wilson, gets orders and sails for England.)

COUNTY GRANTS CHURCH CLAIM

St. Gabriel's Roman Catholic Church is to get a new edifice with money supplied by Allegheny County. The present church is situated in the new Ohio River boulevard at Superior avenue, North Side.

In presenting the parish's claim for $75,000 property damages to the County Commissioners yesterday, Attorney John E. Laughlin said:

"We cannot expect that our children will cross this high speed thoroughfare every morning from school to mass and back again. If you grant our claim we will tear the church down and build in another location."

The Commissioners voted unanimously to award the claim.

STRAY BULLET HITS BOY, 16

A 16-year-old boy was shot in the leg by a stray bullet fired, police say, by Vincenzo Luccio, 50, of 807 Lincoln avenue, who quarreled with a taxicab driver at Gilmore and Hickory ways last midnight. The victim was Carmen Canello, 16, of 45 Clay alley.

Firemen from No. 3 Engine Company took Luccio into custody. The cab driver was not identified. The boy's wound was slight, it was said at the hospital.

Real Estate

Four newly completed apartment buildings in Phillips avenue near Wightman street and a 15-acre tract of land at Winterburn avenue and Bigelow street, Fifteenth Ward, figure in an exchange deal made public today by Feltyberger Brothers, brokers. The four apartment buildings, each containing four apartments of four rooms and tile bath, featuring the latest in appointments, were conveyed by Herman Kamin, East End builder, to Frank E. and Alex E. Wilson, lumber dealers, in exchange for the Winterburn avenue tract. The lot on which the apartments are built fronts 320 feet on Phillips avenue and extends back 125 feet. Feltyberger Brothers have been appointed renting agents for the apartment buildings.

Walter Feidler has deeded to Jesse Snyder a six-room brick house on 30x100 feet in Torley street, East End. In exchange Snyder conveyed title to a 40-acre farm in the Three Degree road, Butler County.

Peter P. Stugan has sold a brick dwelling at 19 Homekort avenue, West View, lot 40x120, to John Polyak. C. J. DeBar, Bellevue realtor, closed the sale.

Applications for building permits follow:

Ninth Ward—G. McGinnes, garage extension, 4522 Butler street, $1,000.

Fourteenth Ward—G. F. Rohman, alterations, 6820 McPherson boulevard, $3,500.

WATER WAGON OVERWORKED

County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern is against political water wagon drivers. He so declared himself at the commissioners' meeting yesterday, saying:

"I am unalterably opposed to political water wagon drivers hauling water to Squire Lorch's greenhouse for an indefinite period."

The reason for the declaration was that the county in building the Butler plank road broke a water line that supplies Justice of the Peace A. T. Lorch's farm.

It was agreed that the pipe line will be replaced at once. Until it is ready the county will supply Lorch with water in a tank wagon.

BENEFIT SHOW TO AID RELIEF

A series of entertainments for relief of the needy of the district have been planned by the Lincoln District Welfare League, consisting of members of churches and organizations.

The first of the series will be a three-act play to be given January 27 and 28 by the Epiphany Dramatic Society in Corpus Christi Hall, Lincoln avenue and Churchland street. Officers of the league include Joseph Stack, chairman; Eugene W. Lehman, secretary, and Ralph Bradley, treasurer.

PICKERING'S

HURLEY GUARDS AGAINST WAR EMERGENCY

Nation Set to Use Manpower, Industry, to Block Debacle Such as Pershing Bares

By REX COLLIER.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley hopes America may never have another war, but if war should come, despite the hopes of all lovers of peace, he is determined it shall find the nation's resources of men and material ready for action.

With public attention once more focused on the problem of preparedness as a result of Gen. Pershing's references in his Memoirs, now appearing in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, to the debacle of improvidence presented during the World War, Secretary Hurley, in an interview today told of his plans for averting such a spectacle in the future.

In response to a question, the secretary repeated:

"Ready for another war? Well, nobody wants another war, but we would be remiss in our official responsibilities if we did not consider the possibility of almost any sort of an emergency.

"If such a national emergency should come, the government would not be caught off guard. We have not failed to profit by the lessons we learned in 1917 and 1919. Our plans then for mobilization of man power and of industry were vague and incomplete.

INDUSTRY'S OBLIGATIONS

"I have very definite ideas about the obligations of industry in time of war. I am one of those who believe the army of industry should serve as unselfishly in time of war as the army of soldiers who sacrifice everything for their country on the firing line. Profiteers and slackers are in the same category, to me.

"Operating under provisions of the National Defense Act, the War Department has mapped out a comprehensive scheme for industrial mobilization in time of war. This program is being worked out under Assistant Secretary of War Payne, with the co-operation of various industrial interests.

"For 10 years, selected officers have been studying the situations under which our national security might be jeopardized and have determined the kind and amounts of supplies needed in such emergencies.

ARMY'S SHOPPING LIST

"These requirements in supplies constitute the Army's shopping list for war. On it are thousands of different items, ranging from a two-penny nail to a 20-ton tank. Many of them are of a very special nature and are not produced in this country in time of peace. There is no use taking such an order to the neighborhood store or even to the greatest wholesalers in the country.

"The problem is to ascertain where and when the needed things can be manufactured. For years we have been searching out and listing factories suitable for the production of guns, airplanes and the many other items on our list.

"Investigations of the availability of essential raw materials have been made, and plans are being developed to govern the use of these in which there may be a shortage. We are surveying the power and transportation resources of the country and devising plans to insure the most efficient use of both. Labor leaders are assisting us in developing a program designed to assure the fullest co-operation by labor as a whole.

WON'T REPEAT ERROR

"There was one error in 1917 that we know will not be repeated in a future emergency. When we found ourselves, upon the declaration of war, suddenly faced with the job of accumulating military supplies, scores of Federal purchasing agents, each spending the government's money, started out on a buying campaign, competing among themselves for the products of industry.

"In the future each purchasing agent will have a certain group of plants with which to deal, and no other agent will be permitted to interfere with him.

"Another point in our industrial program worthy of special note is the plan for controlling our economic resources in emergency. Eminent men in all branches of industry, finance and labor will be brought together to serve in a governmental agency directly responsible to the President for coordinating and unifying the industrial effort we must put forth.

"I am determined that so far as War Department plans can affect these things, this nation shall never again be dependent upon others for vital munitions in war, nor shall war present opportunity to one class of citizens at the expense of others."

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Do Girls Have Same Right To Step Out as Men?

Has a girl as much right to step out as a man?

Is there any harm in stepping out if she doesn't do anything really wrong?

Jean thought she did have such a right, and there wasn't any harm in it. As perhaps you do too. So she circulated high, wide and handsome with the peppiest crowd in town. As maybe you're trying to do. And then what happened?

Read for yourself.

"Dearest Sally:

"I wonder if you can help me. My heart is just broken, and I don't know what to do about it. I have been reading your column and I believe you know what you're talking about. So I am coming to you. Here is my problem.

Old Friends Talk

"A few years ago I began going out with a fast crowd, although before that I had always been considered slow. I was out every night. We had parties at roadhouses, and went to all sorts of places that had always been forbidden to me by my folks.

"I just went for the thrill of it, and because I wanted to have my fling. I had a wonderful time for a while and then I began to get tired of it all. So I decided to break away and turn over a new leaf and I did. It was very difficult at first, but it worked out all right, and I only saw these friends very seldom, by chance. They have always seemed friendly whenever I saw them, but lately I have found out that they are the sort that talk dreadfully about you behind your back. They have been doing it about me, and it is just simply ruining my life.

"You see, I have fallen in love. Deeply and really in love. I adore him. And everything was going on smoothly and beautifully until he began to hear these awful stories that these one-time friends have been telling.

"He was terribly upset and asked me if they were true. Of course I told him the real truth. And honestly, although I did go out with these people, I never did anything really wrong. I was, and have always been, a good girl even if I did step in fast company. But the horrible part of it is he won't believe me.

Seems Unfair

"He says we're through. I tried to prove to him that I had always been decent in spite of the company I kept but he won't listen to me. Oh, what can I do? Sometimes I feel that I can't stand it any more. Life isn't worth living since this has happened.

"And it all seems to me so horribly unfair. He used to tell me of his own wild times, but he can't seem to understand that a girl has to have her fling, too.

"And I have so often dreamed of marriage and happiness. For two years now I've been a different girl from what I used to be. I haven't gone to any wild parties or to any forbidden places. I had my good times, and I've looked forward to finding someone who had had his, and who was ready to settle down and believe only the good things. And now everything has fallen about my head.

"Oh, please! Please! Won't you help me? I think I'll go mad if things go on the way they are.

JEAN."

Help you? I'll try to, youngster, but I'm afraid I can't do much to sweeten the dose. I can only try to help you to beat it like a good sport. And if you can do that, little girl, your new wisdom will be worth all the pain it has cost you.

He's unfair? Of course! The pot has no right to call the kettle black. Nevertheless, it's being done, and all the feminine freedom in the world won't alter the fact that men demand one standard for women and quite another for themselves.

But you weren't really bad? And your erstwhile "friends" are malicious gossips and liars? Well, what did you think they'd be? You knew they were wild. You knew they made a joke of everything that they "couldn't be bothered" with—a lot of fussy old rules. And that's why you liked them. You didn't want to be bothered with rules yourself then. But now that you've changed you expect them to change also. Not a chance, honey!

Needs Courage

A bad egg is always a bad egg. If you play with bad eggs you'll have to take the consequences. That's why people make "fussy rules," Jean. That's why the world doesn't think it wise for a girl to have her fling. For believe me, kid—Flings come high!

And now you're learning that painful fact and you feel that the discovery is going to wreck your life. No, it won't—not if you have the courage to take it on the chin, pick yourself up and start over again. If you can do that you'll be all the stronger for the beating you're getting.

Will he really leave you? Probably. And if he does, you're better off without him.

I know it's hard. You feel you deserve something better for your courage in reforming. And you'll get something better if you have the spunk to hang on. But reforming doesn't exempt us from consequences, my dear. We've always got to go back and pick up the pieces—and often they cut us cruelly.

But go on! Don't surrender because you've got one sideswipe. We all get them. And, if we have the makin's of real womanhood and manhood in us, we thrive on them!

So atta girl! You've hit a brave stride—keep it up! Live on finely as you're living now—and some day some real man will appreciate the great woman you've made of yourself and give you the love and respect you deserve.

Household Hints

Equal parts of ammonia and turpentine will remove indelible ink marks.

If your hands are very sensitive and chap easily, try rubbing olive oil into them every night and then sleep with an old pair of gloves on them. A week of this and your hands will be soft and white.

Children who protest against eating carrots may develop a liking for this important vegetable if it is prepared as follows: Scrape new carrots, cut in pieces about ¼ inch square, boil in salted water until tender, drain, place in pan and brown lightly in butter, with sugar sprinkled over them to make a glaze.

Woolens will be lovely and soft if rinsed in the same temperature water as that in which they were washed.

Cold water is better for scrubbing wooden floors than hot, as it dries more quickly and will not sink into the boards, causing them to rot.

A little grated orange peel gives squash a different and wonderfully delicate flavor. Squash should always be steamed. When tender, mash in hot bowl until smooth. Season with salt to taste, ½ teaspoon sugar and butter the size of an egg for each quart. Beat well, adding four tablespoonfuls thick cream. Pile in hot dish and serve.

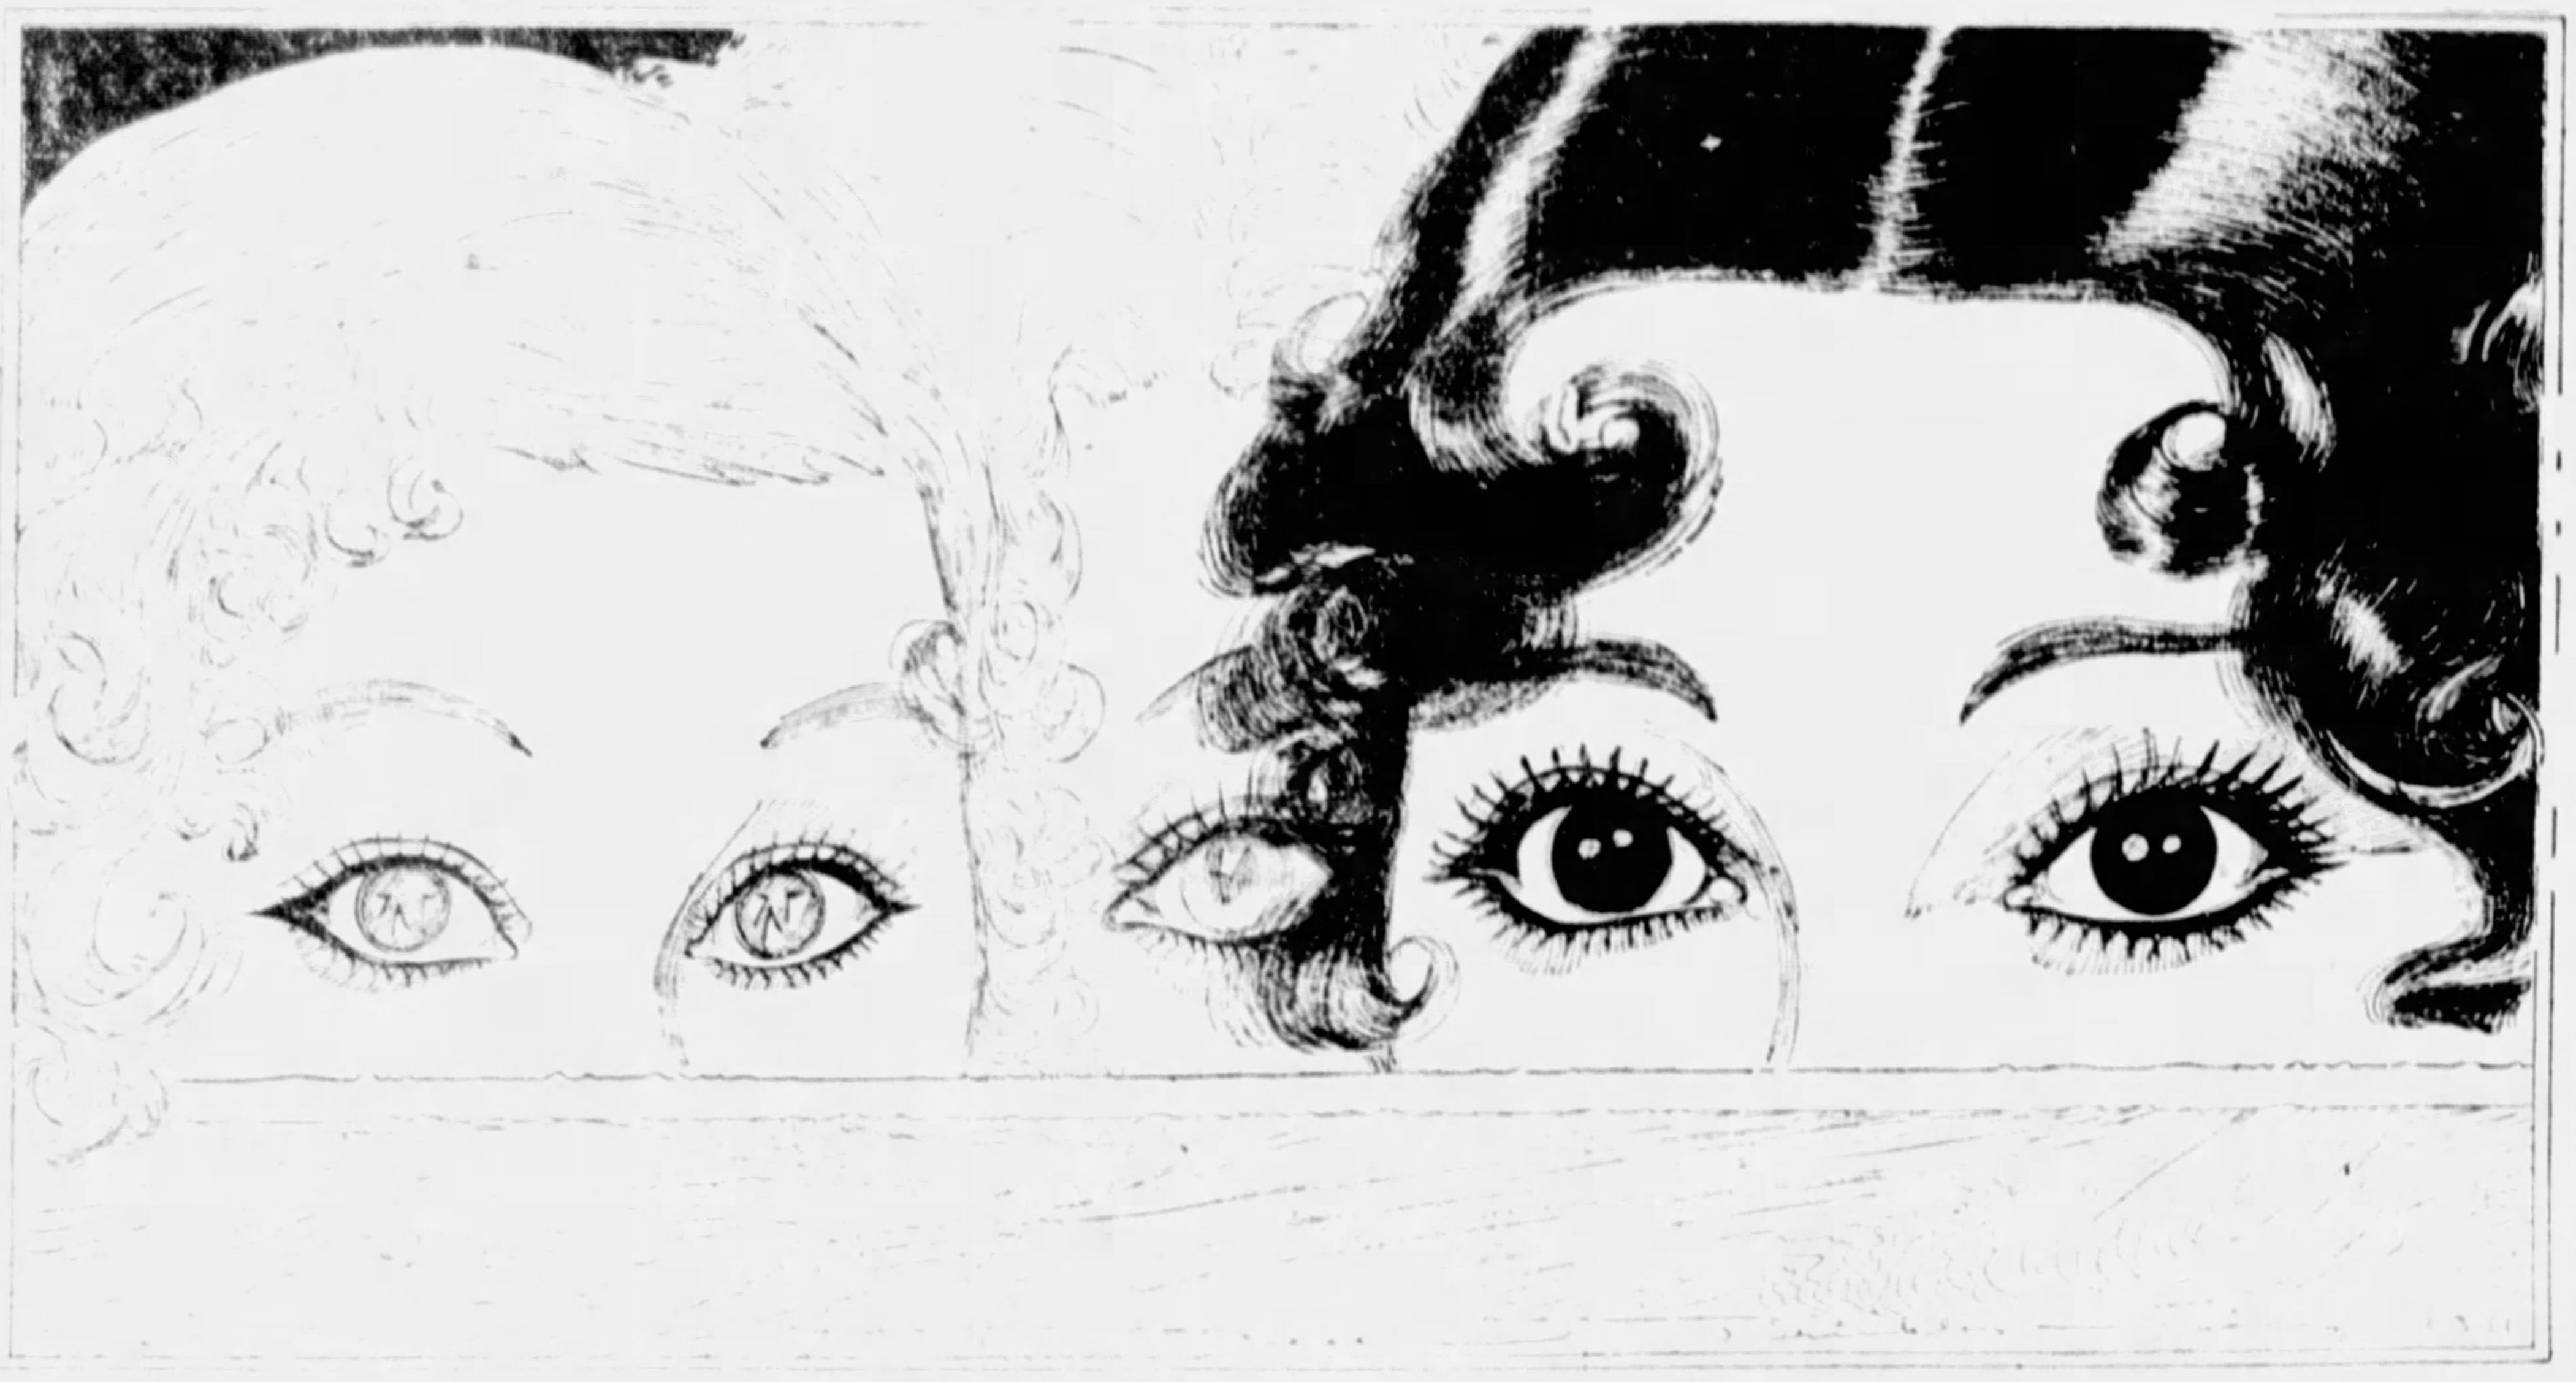
"With Sincere Regard"

Drawn by
Nell Brinkley



Handbooks on beauty—facial beauty—say nine times of ten, "Eyes are very important, my dear!" Big eyes for choice, be they baby or siren. But if they can't be big, they must be bright and smooth-lidded and well lashed. If they cannot be gargantuan, they must be gingery. If they cannot be pansy-eyes for size and color, then they must be clear eyes. If a man may not drown himself in them, then he should be able to bask in their sunshine. Look, where have you heard these before: "Soul-deep eyes" . . . "heavenly eyes" . . . "witching eyes" . . . "star eyes" . . . "tender eyes"?—in those rhyming beauty ads—poetry. All singing the importance of beautiful eyes.

But if you could take apart a friend's or a lover's heart and look under the adjective for EYES you would find a word seldom in the handbook of beauty or the beauty-ad poem—"true." "True" eyes. Honest eyes. Eyes signing themselves, "WITH SINCERE REGARDS." It is the look the longest remembered, the look best loved. The other adjectives are lovely, but without value beside "sincere."

I do not believe that the devious soul can "look you in the face with innocent eyes." It is the color and shape that can act the baby stare. The look must betray the occupant behind the window—perhaps you saw it all the time but would not let yourself believe. And then you say, "He—or she—could look you RIGHT IN THE EYE."

"With sincere regard." You write that at the end of an honest letter. There are eyes that write that—to the happiness of those that love them.

—NELL BRINKLEY.

Faithful Purnell Brings Information About Veritzen

At the sound of those softly running footsteps I crushed down the panic which involuntarily shook me, and, reaching back of me, I made sure that the door of the Underwood apartment, in which I had left Mary and Noel, was safely locked. Then I advanced to meet the intruder, prepared for anything.

But the next second my fears left me, for it was Purnell who rounded the turn in the corridor—Purnell, the colored bellboy, whose faithfulness is as pronounced as is the ludicrous formal courtesy with which he invests all his services.

I saw in the next instant that it was a curiously agitated Purnell who looked over his shoulder as he rounded the corner, and who stopped with his back close to the wall and peered into the main corridor before proceeding further. When he turned he saw me, evidently for the first time, and his jaw dropped ludicrously. Then he recovered himself and made me the low bow which we privately dub "the Purnell salute."

"I hope you will excuse me for this informal intrusion, Mis' Graham," he said, "but I judged it was highly necessary for you to know some information which just came to my ears. Perhaps you remember you asked if a certain person was in the lobby tonight. I judge it is better to mention no names."

I choked back a smile and hoped Dicky would not appear to find me engaged in this apparent melodramatic conspiracy with Purnell.

"Yes, I remember," I said soberly.

"Then you perhaps will be interested to know that the same party has just rented another room on this floor, not giving up his own suite, you understand, but taking this one extra, saying he might need it for a friend. I took him up there just a minute or two ago, and then I raced over here to tell you."

"Thank you so much, Purnell," I said a bit unsteadily, for my pulses were racing. "I shall not forget this. Where is this room?"

"It is just back of the Underwood suite," he returned. "The bathroom windows are only a little way apart and the room is just the other side of the living room of the Underwood apartment. But I think you ought to know that there are radiators in the wall between those two rooms which makes it awful easy for anybody in either of the rooms to hear what's said in the other one."

"Is that the radiator near the alcove?" I asked.

"Yes'm, that's where it's situated."

"How long has this—certain party been in the room?"

"Not more than two minutes," Purnell assured me. "I just brought him up. He said he'd sit by the window and smoke for a few minutes before going back."

Dickey opened the door and stared in astonishment as I dashed by him, throwing a command to Purnell to come inside the apartment.

"Quick! Your keys!" I said to Lillian. "And come over to the apartment right away. Dicky, keep Purnell inside here until I come back."

"What the——" Dicky began, but I flashed past him and was unlocking the door of the Underwood apartment before he could finish his sentence. Once inside, I gave a sibilantly whispered warning:

"Not a word, and don't move until I get there."

Both young faces looked up at me in anxious astonishment as I tore back the portieres.

"Tiptoe out of here," I whispered, "and come to the other end of the apartment."

They obeyed me and when we had put the length of the room between us and the radiators I told them in tones which I knew were inaudible a few feet away of the presence of Noel's father in the room adjoining us and of the radiators in the wall near the alcove which would enable him to hear any ordinary conversation carried on in the apartment.

"He has only been there two or three minutes," I finished, "but if he heard your voice, Noel, he knows that you're here, something of which he is not yet sure."

Mary flushed and dimpled and even Noel's neck was crimson.

"You don't need to worry, Auntie Madge," she said, "for to tell you the truth neither Noel nor I have spoken a word since you left."

"I'll spare your blushes," I whispered back, "and not make a single comment except that I'm very relieved. Now, Noel, remember that not only the radiators adjoin, but the bathroom windows of the two suites are only a little way apart, so be careful about opening that window. I'll cut back to the other apartment with Mary now, and do you stay here. Mr. Underwood will be right over, but he will unlock the door, so you do not need to answer any possible knock. Goodnight! Sleep late tomorrow."

I hurried Mary away upon the word, and, stopping only to see that the door was locked, dashed into our own apartment. Dicky was holding the door ajar just a trifle and opened it to admit us as we came up. But his face was stormy and his icily courteous tones spelled his strong disapproval of my behavior.

"Have you finished with Purnell's services?" he inquired, "or is there any other mission upon which you wish to send him?"

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

A Correct Form of Introducing

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. My friend is coming home from college and is bringing a friend with him. He asked me to get a "date" for his friend, which I did. Will you please tell me the proper form of introduction for this occasion? Neither of the young men knows the girl and I am not acquainted with the other young man.

2. Shall I introduce them as "Mr." and "Miss," or may I use their first names?

MISS L.

1. First present your young man friend to the girl: "Miss Graham, may I present Mr. Hall?" Then introduce the other young man to the girl: Miss Graham, may I present Mr. Waterman?" Or you may use the simpler form of introduction, "Miss Graham, Mr. Hall." Or you may use the first form for the first introduction, and then the simpler form for the second introduction.

2. You do use the "Miss" and "Mr." when you make the introduction, and, if you wish, you may also use the first names. This often gives a real added charm to the introduction, a suggestion of close friendship with both that you wish to share with both.

A Correct Wedding Invitation

Dear Miss Beeckman:

A friend of mine received an invitation to a wedding. The bride's and bridegroom's parents are living, but the bride's parents are the only ones mentioned on the invitation. Is this the right way to send an invitation?

S. L.

Yes, the correct form is that the invitation is issued in the names of the parents of the bride only. They are the hosts of the occasion. The parents of the bridegroom are the guests of honor—that is why they sit on the right of the church in which the ceremony is to take place.

The Socially Active Person

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When you introduce a young lady to a gentleman and another gentleman comes later, is it proper for the girl to introduce the other gentleman or the one that met the girl first? The same if you introduce a boy?

2. If a young woman walks on a street with a man, is it proper for her to hold his arm?

B. S.

1. Either one makes this introduction, in either case. The point is, usually, that the more socially active person comes forward first with such an introduction. There isn't any regulation about which one does it . . . first come, make the introduction.

(And, by the way, the man is introduced to the woman, not the woman to the man.)

2. No, nor is this clinging-vine attitude necessary.

WHILE YOU SLEEP"

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Red ears are not a common beauty ill, but they exist. They trail along with the florid complexion. By dressing the hair so that ears are lambrequined, the blushing features can be hidden. If the lobes peer out they should be touched with vanishing cream of flesh tint, and given a light dredging of powder.

Not only for the sake of digestion should food be well masticated, but for the health of the teeth. Fluids of the mouth help wash away chemical elements which, if permitted to remain at the base of the teeth, produce cavities. Never fail to brush the teeth at bedtime. That is when they are in greatest need of a three-minute scrubbing.

Making the best of one's looks is a business in which all girls and women are engaged nowadays. It is for the betterment of the sisterhood. There is no virtue in ugliness. The woman who trims down a featherbed figure is doing a kindness to the public eye, so also is the frump who reforms and turns herself out a chic and smart femme worthy of a second glance as she trips down the boulevard. Being decorative, like being mannerly and amiable, is a part of the occupation of living.

When beauty supplicants line up at the wailing wall the loudest hollerers are those who lament about oily complexions. Plying the old powder pad puts on the dull finish, but it is only temporary relief. By applying a solution of soda—a teaspoonful of baking soda dissolved in a glassful of warm water—the shine can be dimmed. Something else, too, can be done; turning aside from the temptation to eat rich foods, especially pastries that are heavy with fats. One should content oneself with green salads, fruits and fruit juices, which do not stimulate the sebaceous glands.

The success of a frock depends upon the style and cut of the foundation garment, especially if the figure plops here and there with folds and curves that need the restraining influences of a corselette. Our present day modes are not easy to wear; they call for normal lines and erect carriage. There is a dignified splendor about them. They should be carried splendidly.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Thursday, January 15

A day of entirely unforeseen and abrupt visitations may be forecast from the dominant places of the precipitate Mars and Uranus, strong in mutual relations as well as by lunar aspect. These figures make for sudden and revolutionary moves, of far reaching influence on the life and affairs generally. The energies are under high impetus, ingenious and ardent, possibly inciting to radical change, travel and new ventures. This follows the breaking away of long thwarting obstacles and congestions, and should lead far on the way to progress and cherished goals.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for an unusually lively, important and, probably, exciting year. There may be radical change, new ventures and thrilling experiences, all in the direction of progress and success. Old obstructions will pass away to make way for splendid initiative and constructive application.

A child born on this day should be talented and skilled in many directions, being original, inventive and aggressive, as well as steady, practical and industrious. It should travel far and reach important position.

How to Keep Well

By DR. COPELAND

Water Is Essential to Life—Drink Your Share

Water aids the body in maintaining a proper balance in the distribution of fluid nourishment. It aids in the chemical reactions that bring food and growth to the various cells and tissues of the body.

Dr. Copeland

Water serves as a vehicle to carry off the waste products of the body. It acts as a stimulant for the production of saliva and assists materially in the proper digestion of food. It aids in maintaining a clean and healthy mouth.

Water is absorbed through the lining in the small and large intestines. It is not taken up from the stomach as is generally believed. After serving its purpose, the water leaves the body through the kidneys, lungs and bowel.

Normally, a balance is maintained between the amount of water taken in and the amount expelled. If the output increases we drink more water because we become thirsty. This balance is maintained at all times during health.

In certain diseases where the balance is distributed, "forced fluids" are resorted to by the physician. This is accomplished by giving fluids under the skin, through a vein or by the rectum. It is absolutely essential that the balance be maintained.

One can fast for many days without food, but not without water. Water is essential to life. It is a good hygienic rule to drink plenty of water.

A normal healthy person should consume at least six to eight glasses of water per day. This amount is to be taken in addition to the fluids obtained from the foods we eat.

Most foods contain a remarkable quantity of water. For example, 94 per cent of tomato consists of water. Even the best of milk consists of 87 per cent of water; 92 per cent of watermelon and 75 per cent of potatoes is water.

At one time it was believed that the drinking of water at meals was harmful. It was taught that water should only be taken between meals. There exists a good deal of confusion on this subject. The only objection to drinking water at meals is the bad practice of using it to wash down food. Water is a poor substitute for the saliva which should be mixed with the food. For this reason water should not be taken when food is in the mouth.

In taking the six to eight glasses of water per day, always make sure that it is pure water and not contaminated by bacteria. With the good water supplies which are now almost universal, there is little danger of having a contaminated domestic supply.

The infrequency of a disease like typhoid fever is a tribute to progress in this matter. Safe water is a blessing to every community and to every family.

HAPPINESS IS DESTROYED BY ACID STOMACH

The acid stomach victim makes evident his vicious presence everywhere. Gassy belching, bad temper, pain after eating, dizziness, heartburn, tendency to catch cold easily, sleeplessness often result from acid stomach. Sufferers are personally uncomfortable and make others unhappy.

Doctors say, "End the acid condition that penetrates into the intestines, causing gas, sourness, inflammation and spreads acid poisons through the system." The best way to end this acid condition is the new prescription, ACIDINE.

"I am 69 years of age and had been bothered with acid indigestion, fermentation and gas in stomach and bowels for many years," writes Mr. M. A. Funk of Riverton, N. J. "Tried everything without result until I heard of ACIDINE. It gave me relief at once. Now I feel great."

Almost everyone who takes ACIDINE raves about it. More than two million packages have been sold. It's absolutely amazing the way this new prescription succeeds when other known remedies fail.

ACIDINE is the only known remedy which contains Japtase, that in laboratory tests, digests 106 times its weight of certain heavy, starchy foods which cause trouble. It neutralizes burning acids, soothes irritated stomach linings, stops gassy headaches, sleeplessness and nervousness. No other known remedy contains this combination to end acid stomach. ACIDINE also fortifies you against colds by reducing acidity.

GET ACIDINE today at your druggist. Watch how quick acid indigestion, burning stomach, belching, pain, heartburn, dizziness, fullness, short breath vanish. Eat, drink all you want. Maker refunds money if not delighted.

Sanitary Comfort —you've never known before

INDOORS or out-of-doors, during hours that were once trying, Kotex now assures you the greatest possible comfort and security. Kotex takes up actually five times more moisture than an equal weight of cotton, and it is soft, not only at first, but during hours of wear.

Because it absorbs away from the surface, it is guaranteed to give more protection, longer protection than any other sanitary pad. It can be worn on either side with equal efficiency.

Kotex is rounded and tapered to fit perfectly. It deodorizes by a special process. And, of course, it is disposable. That's why millions of women first turned to this new method of sanitary protection.

MUSIC

Norman Frauenheim

Y. M. & W. H. A.

PROGRAM

32 variations on an original theme in C minor	Beethoven
Intermezzo in B flat minor	Brahms
Toccata	Schumann
Five musical scenes from d'Annunzio's "Mystery" "The Martyrdom of Saint Sebastian"	Debussy
Two transcriptions (a) Hark, Hark, the Lark (b) The Erlking	Schubert-Liszt
Two nocturnes, F major, C minor	Chopin
Isolda's Love-death from "Tristan and Isolda"	Wagner-Liszt
Reflections in the Water	Debussy
Three Preludes (a) The Maid with the Flaxen Hair (Legend after Mallarme) (b) Fireworks (c) Minstrels	Debussy
Fire Dance	DeFalla

Norman Frauenheim, well known Pittsburgh pianist, gave another recital in the Young Men and Women's Hebrew Association last night. Though the program was overladen, it brought us a novelty in Debussy's music to D'Annunzio's "Martyrdom of Saint Sebastian."

J. Fred Lissfelt

It would be unjust to form a final opinion about this music from a piano arrangement, but surely Debussy has said nothing new here that was not said more eloquently in his songs and piano music. At first hearing it seems adequate for melodrama or incidental pantomime, and the orchestra would enhance its coloring.

Frauenheim's playing still impresses one by his moody handling of tone, which seems always to be created for its own sake without relation to the music in hand, and too often with the loss of the designs that make not only classic but modern music. There was a good audience whose likes tended towards modern works. As encores, came a Chopin Waltz and the Godowsky arrangement of Albeniz' Tango.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

ALWAYS KEEPS KONJOLA HANDY

Traveling Salesman Tells What New and Different Medicine Did for Him.

Thousands of men and women, who have put Konjola to the test, always keep this new and different medicine within reach, for Konjola triumphs even when all else tried has failed.

MR. JOSEPH SULLIVAN

And no wonder, for Konjola's 32 ingredients work together in attacking at their very source, ills of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. Consider the case of Mr. Joseph Sullivan, traveling salesman, Seventh Avenue Hotel, Pittsburgh. Then ask your druggist about Konjola. He knows what this amazing medicine has done for tens of thousands.

But right now read the grateful words of Mr. Sullivan:

"For a year I had trouble with my stomach, the result of eating in many places and at irregular hours. Nothing agreed with me, and I lost considerable weight. My liver was sluggish, and once I had to give up work for three weeks. I heard about Konjola in many cities, and began to take it while in St. Louis. I have used ten bottles and my stomach can digest anything I eat. I have gained eight pounds in ten weeks. No matter where I go I always keep a bottle of Konjola handy."

Konjola is sold at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, this city, and by all Dow stores and by all leading druggists everywhere.

DENNIS KING IN SPARKLING BILL

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Radio Editor

When booking "dates" for tonight don't overlook the celebrities who are coming to your house via radio. What a party with Dennis King, romantic figure of "Vagabond King;" Ruth St. Denis, creative dancer; Tampa and his clever magic; Olive Palmer, Nathaniel Shilkret, Homer Rodeheaver, Reinald Werrenrath, the English Singers . . . and more! Momentarily we shall live with these talented actors, orators, dancers, singers. Consult the schedule for correct times they appear.

TAMPA

* * *

With Bill Sunday and Bill Munday already on the air, and lots of "Fridays" hanging around the studios, broadcasters need only to fill in with four more appropriate names to make it a complete week.

* * *

If you've never listened to this fellow Tampa on WCAE give him an ear at 8 tonight.

* * *

Tampa uses almost as many effects as the Empire Builders and writes the continuity himself. Tonight's action takes place on a boat moving between Seattle and Vancouver and calls for the following setup:

Railroad bell, fog horn, train whistle, wind machine, water machine, creaking boards, several empty watch cases.

Tampa is Pittsburgh's Harvey Hayes when he gets going. For 22 years he has traveled the stage. In recent years he has conducted magic shows under the direction of Howard Thurston. Tampa can make cards and rabbits appear and disappear as quick as that.

Eight thousand listeners have responded to Tampa's program in the last five weeks and a station in Hopkinsville, Ky.—WFIW—openly recommends his program. Something rare, indeed, when one station recommends another station's program.

* * *

"Sleepytown Express" is the most colorful kindergarten rhyme on the radio. Leonard Joy has the most clever interpretation.

* * *

"Every Little Movement has a Meaning All Its Own" was the proposed theme song for a watch company's program recently, but the station moguls turned it down, saying it was too suggestive.

* * *

QUESTION A DAY:

Please settle an argument for us. Are Amos 'n' Andy under contract to the toothpaste company or the National Broadcasting Company?—C. E. M.

Answer—A question asked many times and answered many times in this column. Amos 'n' Andy are under contract for five years to the NBC, who sell their services to clients. The same with many other stars.

* * *

"BY THE WAY"

Walter Lanterman, of Chicago, has delved into higher mathematics to prove that 87,296 combinations of strokes are possible with the four note chimes NBC uses to herald local announcements on its network broadcasts . . . well, there are many thousand they can eliminate for us, including the present setup . . . When a microphone went on the blink at CBS recently an operator discovered that a woman speaker, not taking any chances with germs, had sprayed the instrument with an antiseptic solution . . . microphone microbes, m-m-m! . . . A New York friend tells us that 87 speakeasies must find new rooms when Radio Center goes up.

WWAP, the government station on the Clairton road, at Doyle Row, is being heard frequently by many Pittsburghers . . . The station operates on 238 meters, right below WCAE and is on late at night . . . It is not the municipal airport station . . . Russell Owen, only newspaper reporter with the Byrd Expedition to the South Pole, is to visit the Real Folks at Thompkins Corners next Monday night . . . Bill Munday landed in Atlanta yesterday from California to learn for the first time that he is to introduce Bobby Jones over WSB-WTAM at 8 o'clock tonight . . . It was a mental slipup at NBC . . . Sigmund Spaeth did a good job last night exposing "composers" who get their tunes from the masters . . . He showed how "Yes We Have No Bananas" came from Chopin and Handel's "Hallelujah Chorus."

TODAY'S TID BIT:

Raymond Knight, the Cuckoo, said KUKU studios are in a barn so the station can "stall" when speakers fail to show up.

Church at Avalon To Hold Reception

A reception for new members will be held tonight in the Avalon Presbyterian Church, the Rev. J. Norman Hunter, pastor. S. K. Hammer is chairman of the reception committee and Mrs. F. W. Penfield, chairman of the committee on refreshments.

The LOUDSPEAKER

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Jan. 14—The greatest melody ever inspired by a river is "Swanee River" of Stephen Foster. The greatest dance music ever inspired by a river is the "Beautiful Blue Danube" of Johann Strauss.

Next to these two compositions the most appealing numbers which derive their inspiration from rivers are "Song of the Volga Boatmen," "Die Wacht am Rhine," "Ol' Man River," "Where the River Shannon Flows," "On the Banks of the Saskatchewan" and "On the Banks of the Wabash," Paul Dreiser's melancholy ballad, in which his brother, Theodore Dreiser, had a hand.

* * *

Were this department to open a song publishing house tomorrow the first task would be a search for a good river song, the second a search for a good rose song. Once found, the profits would assure him sweet and unharried retirement at the gaming tables of the Riviera.

It is becoming more and more difficult for radio entertainers to convince American ears that the guitar can be utilized for tunes other than those of the campus and the coral strands of Hawaii.

Half of the fan letters received by broadcasters, a spy informs us, are from men. Radio and motion pictures have made America a nation of letter writers.

* * *

The prevalence of two-piano teams on the air can be attributed to the M. Gershwin. He introduced two pianos in the orchestras of his girl-and-music shows and brought to jazz, thereby, an intimate and refined note it hitherto had lacked.

Ferde Grofe has never been given half the credit he deserves for developing jazz into something of genuine value to American music.

Fifty years hence George M. Cohan will be more remembered for his songs than for his plays or his productions or his stage performances. Of all the Cohan songs the zippiest is "Give My Regards to Broadway." It has spirit and melody and rhythm. "Over There" has spirit and rhythm, but no melody.

* * *

The biggest job in Tin Pan Alley is finding new titles for the word "love."

The most ingratiating of amorous ballads are those penned in the tropical luxuriance of Hollywood.

I have about given up hope of hearing Damrosch present a concert made up of the homely airs of a primitive America—such things as "Pop Goes the Weasel," "Arkansaw Traveler," "Old Dan Tucker," "Oh, Susanna," "Jubilo" and "Turkey in the Straw."

It is still our belief that the "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers" is the best nursery-inspired air written in the last two decades.

* * *

Bobby Jones reaches the microphone at an hour which catches every duffer in the land. But the duffers, according to present plans, will not receive any golf swing coaching—only reminiscences and anecdotes of various major golfing wars.

There comes a time in the life of every radio chorus when it attempts Rachmaninoff's "Prelude in C Sharp Minor."

Describing the action in news reels is fast becoming a profitable employment for radio announcers.

The most significant microphonic mannerism of Herbert Hoover is his invariable pronunciation of "economic" with the accent on the "e."

* * *

Wonder why the thrill of drum corps music and, for that matter, bagpipe music is not conveyed more often to the armchairs.

"King Cotton" is for me the least stirring of all of John Philip Sousa's marches.

I would not protest were a law passed forbidding radio choral groups to burst at any time into the quartet from "Rigoletto" and the sextet from "Lucia."

Press agents continue to write of a "genuine Stradivarius." Is there not one imitation Stradivarius in the land?

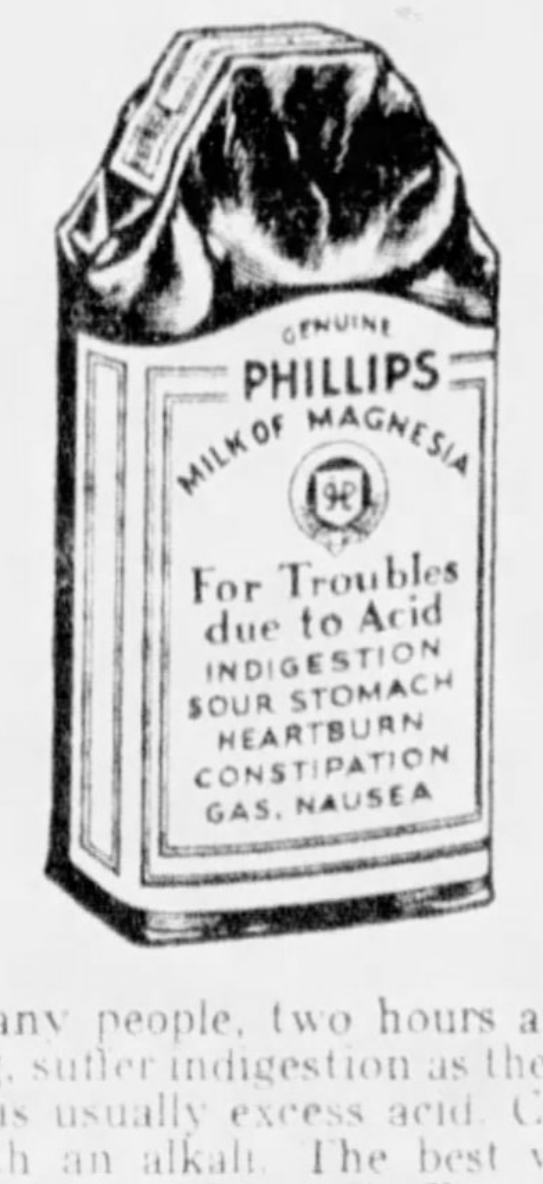
Icy Water Subdues Polish Prison Riot

KORONOVO, Poland, Jan. 14.—(AP.)—Streams of icy water from fire hoses were used by authorities here today to quell a riot of 400 convicts over alleged bad food which was being served them.

The prisoners had been unruly for several days. At the end of the battle every window in the institution was broken.

Firemen Extinguish Auto Truck Blaze

Downtown firemen were called this morning to extinguish a small fire in a truck of the Charles Koch and Company, in the company garage at 64 First avenue.



Too much ACID

Many people, two hours after eating, suffer indigestion as they call it. It is usually excess acid. Correct it with an alkali. The best way, the quick, harmless and efficient way, is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained for 50 years the standard with physicians. One spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in stomach acids, and at once. The symptoms disappear in five minutes.

You will never use crude methods when you know this better method. And you will never suffer from excess acid when you prove out this easy relief. Please do that—for your own sake—now.

Be sure to get the genuine, prescribed by doctors for conditions due to excess acid. It is always a liquid; it cannot be made in tablet form. Look for the name Phillips' and the word genuine in red.

GOSSIP ABOUT HOLLYWOOD AND GOTHAM LIFE; AMUSEMENT NOTES

Lupe Velez Offered Place In New Al Jolson Stage Show

By HARRISON CARROLL.

[illegible]

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 14.

Broadway may see Lupe Velez in the new Al Jolson stage show.

. . . The diminutive Mexican star reveals she has a telegraphic offer from Joseph M. Schenck to play the feminine lead, which, incidentally, is the first rumor reaching these parts that Schenck is interested financially in the production.

It may be that Lupe will not be able to accept the Jolson engagement, as she has contracted to appear in Cecil B. De Mille's production of "The Squaw Man" at M-G-M. Both the picture and the rehearsals for the musical start next month, it is said.

Lupe Velez

There also is the matter of Lupe's Universal contract, which comes up for renewal in a short time.

In addition to these possibilities, Lupe tells of an offer to tour South America, but she is disposed against it because of the distance from Hollywood—Hollywood, I suspect, meaning the tall and attractive Gary Cooper.

SECRET OUT

A number of masculine stars in Hollywood imitate the voices of servants until they know who is at the other end of a telephone call.

Dave Butler says the real reason why Will Rogers won't have a telephone at his ranch is because he can't talk like a Japanese houseboy.

LATEST GOSSIP

Rex Bell has a unique five-diamond ring, a Christmas gift from Clara Bow. The center stone, 2½ carats, has a heart cut in its center. Within the heart is the word "It." . . . Incidentally, La Bow is expected to appear at court today in connection with the suit brought by her former secretary, Daisy Devoe. Indications are that the S. R. O. sign will be hung out early . . . Capt. Le Boutelier, an admirer of Wallace Beery's acting, came out of the sky from the direction of the Metropolitan airport and spelled out the star's name in smoke-writing 12,000 feet above the studio . . . Don Marquis, late of Fox, is to come to Paramount to write the dialogue for "Skippy."

Clara Bow

WANDERING AUTHOR

Capitalizing on the vogue of air stories, Lieut. Commander Weed, who wrote "The Flying Fleet" and "Dirigible," is stepping directly from one film job to another. He now is engaged by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer to take a cameraman to Panama and get scenes for this company's forthcoming "Sea Eagles."

TO BE SEEN IN THIS ONE

After ducking out on a promising career and traveling around the world, Leslie Fenton is back here to re-establish himself in the films. He has a speaking role in "The Man Who Came Back," but never appeared on the screen. His was the voice from the bunk in the opium den. In the near future, however, Fenton will be seen as well as heard in First National's production of "Public Enemy." This is still another crook film.

Woman Kills Lynx With Garden Rake

ELK RIVER, Idaho, Jan. 13.—(AP.)—The north country still mothers a hardy brood of women. Mrs. T. S. Jeffries proves it.

An American bobcat—or lynx—measuring four feet from stem to stern, entered her henhouse with great slaughter. Mrs. Jeffries clutched a garden rake, went inside, shut the door, and attacked the beast. Half an hour later Mrs. Jeffries nailed the pelt of the deadly lynx to her barn door.

SANGER SPEECH TOPIC SLATED

"Government Interference with Social Reform" is to be the subject of Margaret Sanger, social protagonist of birth control, in a talk at the Y. M. & W. H. A., Oakland, Tuesday evening. Mrs. Sanger has attained considerable attention here and abroad through her strenuous espousal of her cause in the face of considerable opposition.

Her stop in Pittsburgh will interrupt a transcontinental tour she is making for the purpose of telling the people about problems discussed at the World Population Conference, which she organized in 1927.

Actor Ends Dispute Gets New Contract

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 14.—(AP.)—Charles Bickford, fiery-headed stalwart of the talkies, has settled his difficulties with his former studio and signed a new contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Bickford, who made his movie debut in "Dynamite," was dissatisfied with the roles later assigned him, and was reported considering retirement from the screen to enter business.

NOTES ABOUT COMING STAGE ATTRACTIONS

Tomorrow morning seats go on sale at the Shubert Alvin box office for the engagement of "Mendel, Inc.," in which Joe Smith, Charles Dale and Alexander Carr play the leading roles. "Mendel, Inc." was written by Freedman.

Manager Harry Brown of the Nixon announces that there's a large seat demand for the new Schwab and Mandel offering, "America's Sweetheart," which is next week's attraction in his theater.

Haunted houses, deserted railway stations and spooky old mansions have been the locales of most of the mystery plays of recent years, but Owen Davis selected a bright, cheerful penthouse atop a modern skyscraper for the setting of "The Ninth Guest," the mystery drama which George Sharp will present in the Pitt next week.

"Take a Chance" is the next attraction to come to the Academy. This show will open Sunday night with a midnight performance. Max Coleman, George Murray and Ina Thomas are featured.

Seats are now selling at the Nixon box office for tomorrow night's special performance of Ted Shawn and his Denishawn Dancers. The Denishawn Dancers are said to be America's premier dancing organization.

JOBLESS COUNT GROUPS READY

About 250 enumerators will leave the district office of the United States Bureau of the Census, in the American State Bank Building, tomorrow morning to begin the government unemployment census.

Pittsburgh is one of 20 cities selected for the census. These cities showed a total population of 21,941,574 in the last decennial census, with 809,542, or 3.6 per cent, out of work. At that time Pittsburgh was slightly better than average with 21,727 unemployed in a population of 669,742, an average of 3.2 per cent.

Various estimates of the number now unemployed in this city have been made but it is generally admitted that the number has increased.

Stressing the need for accuracy in the returns, James E. Routley, district census supervisor, said today that failure to make accurate returns subjects the enumerator to the possibility of a fine or imprisonment. To assist in the accuracy of the count, Routley has requested that all persons who answer the questionnaire give their full co-operation.

Shaw Talkie Falls Flat in London

LONDON, Jan. 14.—(AP.)—Bernard Shaw's first talkie, "How He Lied to Her Husband," was presented in London for the first time but fell flat. The critics with hardly an exception condemned it with such adjectives as melancholy, dull, stagey, disappointing, tedious, and lifeless.

New Castle Calls For Relief Decrease

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Jan. 14.—Orville Potter, chairman of the mayor's relief committee, has advised the committee that calls for relief here are decreasing slightly. Other members of the committee report employment conditions showing signs of improvement.

Play Leads

Lupe Velez and Lewis Ayres have the leading roles in the film, "East Is West," which comes Friday to the Enright and Saturday to the Davis.

STARRING ROLE

Marion Davies' latest starring role is that of Tony Flagg in the film version of the Belasco stage success, "The Bachelor Father." Robert Z. Leonard directed the film.

MOVIES OF PARK SPORTS VOTED

Paul B. Riis, director of county parks, has been authorized to spend $400 for a motion picture operator to give movie shows in public schools showing winter sports at the county parks.

County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern said he believed that during hard times such luxuries should be dispensed with.

County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong agreed with McGovern, but after some discussion both voted to let Riis spend the money. He explained that this is part of his educational program to acquaint the public with the year-round advantages of the parks.

The Wisecrack and the Gag

When big time vaudeville was downtown or where Mr. Keith's Union Square used to be in New York, no bill was complete without that pair who swapped this one: "If you had eleven apples and twelve horses, how would you evenly divide the eleven apples among the twelve horses?" To which the "straight man," or the comedian's partner, would respond: "I don't know, Ignatz. How would you evenly divide eleven apples among twelve horses?"

"Why, you simply make applesauce!" was the answer, and if the auditors didn't fall right out of their chairs at that joke, then the next generation employed the tag line of the old reliable to squelch a braggart or an opinion with which they didn't concur.

So great an army of entertainers employed the applesauce gag that it became the butt of derisive comment. It was in a class with "Who was the lady I seen you with last night?" or "Why does a chicken, etc?" In 1925 A. D. a ham who had been laying off for six months was offring an alibi to a group of flip talkers.

"So I says to my agent, the hell with them. Joe Zilch ain't in this business for glory. No, sir, he's in it for the dough, see? It ain't billing shows what dressing room or what spot I get. It's how much money is there in it for li'l Joe, and so when they make up their mind that I don't work for no coffee and cake dough li'l Joe will go to work for them."

"Applesauce!" said some one in the gathering and another wisecrack was born. The flapper incorporated it into her routine of sassy answers, the collegiate passed it along to his townsfellows via letters and even the small-time and the big-time players "laughed off" a joke that failed to receive warm response from audiences by twitting themselves with "So we made applesauce!"

If anything makes the rounds of a community swifter than a rumor it is the wisecrack. After it has been swapped by a few wags and the local telegrapher hears it and likes it he gives it momentum by passing it along to the keyman at San Francisco, Canarsie, North Adams or Keokuk. Often a wisecrack becomes famous enough to make an entire "popular" song. "Yes, We Have No Bananas," for instance.

It is an ageless theory that there are only seven original patterns for all the jokes in the world. This may be true, but it is difficult to believe, for too many quips, puns, wisecracks and stories have been conceived out of situations. A concrete example is herewith set forth: The scene was a New York night club. Percy Hammond, the dramatic critic, was disparging a newly built Broadway cinema theater, when Harry Thaw passed the table:

"Speaking of that garish looking dump," growled Hammond, "reminds me that that guy Thaw killed the wrong architect!"

The nifty, as wisecracks or spontaneous remarks are sometimes called, drew a laugh and was recorded by a columnist the following day. Within the week other columns appropriated it, but it was never credited to the same wag. A fortnight later it was sold to a magazine and the next month the same gag was chronicled by a Hollywood correspondent for the Evening World, who wrote that it was pulled in front of the new Grauman Theater out there by Al Jolson.

The story teller who appreciates good stories is the first to revolt at the person who "ruins" a good gag, which is show business for joke. True, not all of us are good at passing along stories, particularly when they demand dialect. Two of the highest paid dialecticians on paper in the world are amazingly disappointing in a parlor. On the other hand, there are comics whose dialects are delightfully contagious, but who miss the mark by a wide margin when they attempt to put dialect down on paper.

Perhaps one of the best jokesmiths in the East is a wit who is neither an actor, a Broadway habitue, nor a newspaper man. He is a lingerie salesman, by name, Pitzie Katz. He is household word in the mercantile business and was formerly a vaudevillian. Numerous stage wits seldom purchase their stage material from authors, but rely on telegrams and letters from Katz, who keeps them supplied with his new fables just for the fun of it.

James Madison, perhaps, is better known in show business than Joe Miller, who, it is alleged, first compiled the best jokes in a book a century ago. Until Mr. Madison clicked out in Hollywood he was the parent of an annual book, sold for $1, which contained repartee, quips, jokes, monologues, dialogues and sketches.

Will Rogers is a puzzle to a lot of people who can't believe that he writes all his stuff. The fact is that Rogers does write his own material. No one has ever been able to supply the name of his "ghost writer" at any rate.

Irvin S. Cobb's ability is too popular for blackballing, but it is true, too, that he is often credited with stories that he merely passes along. At a cartoonists' dinner once at the Hotel Astor, Mayor James J. Walker said, in announcing Cobb:

"You lads who make your living by the pen, now listen to a man who makes his by his brains."

Cobb followed with an ancient gag about the Hebrew who refused to pay a fare for his little son "because he is only four years of age."

"Well," said the conductor, "he looks eight!"

"Can I help it if he worries!" was the retort.

That joke had been employed by almost every cartoonist in the room at least twice in his career. The Mayor's introductory announcement was certainly out of order.

The allegedly new Scot gags are rewrites on old Jewish gags. The local vogue of Scotch stuff began when a New York fire commissioner, newly appointed to office, made a speech and told a few jokes on the Jews. It drew the fire of the aggrieved Hebrews and the local diplomats had a time of it squaring matters.

The Scotch vote in New York being unimportant the quips are now told at their expense.

To set forth further that most gags grow out of situations, there was the tale about the Scotchman who wearied of witnessing other nations' fliers bring glory to their homelands. So he got a plane and planned to fly in it from New York to Glasgow. On the morning of the hop-off his wife asked him how many sandwiches to prepare.

"Make it only one," he replied, "I may never get there."

As a matter of fact that was exactly what Lindbergh told a friend just before his flight.

Penn. Girl's Lucky Day

THREE candles! And each one represents a year of joyous living. Winifred Fay, of 2659 So. 62nd St., Philadelphia, is a typical Fig Syrup baby. Here is what her mother says:

"Winifred was underweight as an infant. She suffered with her bowels until we began to give her California Fig Syrup. It relieved her constipation quickly, sweetened her breath, made her bright, happy and robust.

"I have given Fig Syrup to the rest of my children with equal success."

For fifty years, wise mothers have been secure in the knowledge that a child's headachy, bilious, feverish or fretful spells can be quickly and safely overcome by California Fig Syrup. Physicians recommend its soothing aid to keep the bowels clear, in colds, or children's ailments; or whenever bad breath, coated tongue, or listlessness warn of constipation.

California Fig Syrup helps tone and strengthen weak bowels—assists in building-up and energizing weak children. The genuine always bears the name California. All drugstores.

BILL TO CHANGE BLUE LAWS HELD FAIR

Musmanno Measure Leaves Enforcement to District: Five Proposals Advanced

A bill to repeal the Pennsylvania Blue Laws and provide for a statewide referendum in November which Representative Michael A. Musmanno has prepared for introduction in the Legislature Monday, removes all doubt as to the constitutionality of a change in the law, Musmanno declared last night. He was speaker at the dinner of the Pennsylvania Motor Truck Association in the Pittsburgh Athletic Association.

SAYS BILL FAIR

He said:

"This bill in my opinion is entirely fair. Those communities which are not in favor of any liberalization of the Sunday laws will not be disturbed in the present enjoyment of the Sabbath and, by the same token, they should be satisfied to permit the other communities to decide for themselves whether they care to have athletic sports and some innocent diversions and entertainments on Sunday afternoons and evenings, so long as they are not contrary to the spirit of religion and of the day.

"This bill, which is the result of long study, has never before been presented in Pennsylvania. While its scope and purpose are to give each community the opportunity to determine for itself if and to what extent, sports and entertainments shall be permitted on Sunday afternoons and evenings, the object shall be attained not in sporadic referenda, but in one state-wide referendum that will take place at the general elections in November."

The bill provides that five questions shall be submitted in the referendum: whether sports and amusements shall be allowed on Sundays as on week days or whether admissions shall be charged or collections taken. In any city, borough or township where the voters favor liberalization of Sunday, the council or supervisors shall be required to legislate accordingly, the bill provides.

King's Prayer Book Among Heirlooms Bequeathed

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 14 (AP).—A prayer book of Edward VII, a beautifully bound and illuminated volume of the limited edition issued at the time of his coronation in 1902, is among heirlooms disposed of in the will of Mrs. Marie Amelia Rankin, widow of Judge William W. Rankin of Lock Haven.

The book is given to her son, John Hall Rankin.

Mrs. Rankin, who was 85, died December 29 at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Louis Barcroft Runk, in Germantown, where she had lived since the death of her husband many years ago.

JEWISH DRIVE HEADS TO MEET

The first luncheon meeting of the newly-appointed executive committee of 90 men to aid in the $450,000 drive for the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies will be held in the William Penn Hotel at noon tomorrow. Speakers will be Alfred M. Oppenheimer, chairman of the Federation; Edgar J. Kaufmann, Irvin F. Lehman and Rabbi Samuel H. Goldenson.

Although the drive will open formally February 15, advance solicitation will begin in a few days, Oppenheimer said today. It will be the first campaign for funds conducted by the Federation since 1925.

GAMBLERS GET FINES, PAROLES

Four men pleaded guilty to charges of operating a gambling house at Wylie avenue and Elmore street yesterday in Criminal Court and were given fines ranging from $25 to $50 and were placed on parole after sentence was suspended on three other charges.

They were Richard Gauffney, 41, a Negro, of 1927 Wylie avenue; Sam Haney, 36, a Negro, of 2117 Wylie avenue; William I. Johnson, 32, a Negro, of 1411 Webster avenue, and Frank Solomon, 23, of 2141 Webster avenue.

Gauffney was fined $50 and paroled for 18 months; Haney was not fined, but was placed on probation for 15 months; Johnson, $25 fine, 18 months' parole and Solomon, $25 fine and 18 months' parole.

In sentencing them, Judge George V. Moore warned them that he was suspending sentence on the other charges and said that if they again followed illegal pursuits they would be brought in and sentenced to the workhouse.

COUNTY HEADS DEADLOCK ON HALL SITE

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

Mr. Pfarr

One of our spies had lunch with County Commissioner E. V. Babcock, the lumberman, not so long ago, and learned something. It was Friday, and the restaurant was one of those places where you sit on a stool.

As soon as Mr. Babcock popped in the door his favorite waitress shouted to the kitchen: "One oyster stew." Then the waitress saw that Mr. Babcock had a friend with him, so she shouted again, "Two oyster stews." You have probably guessed by now that every Friday noon Mr. Babcock eats oyster stew and anybody with him also eats oyster stew. With his oyster stew Mr. Babcock takes cole slaw, although it must be told in fairness to him that he does not insist his guest also take cole slaw.

"Hey:

"It may surprise you to know that I have turned song writer, hungry as I am. This is not the first time I have Turned song writer. Six years ago John Canny, the one-time piano salesman, and I started to write a song called I Don't Do Nobody's Washin' but My Own. This was at the time those shouting songs were popular and it was all about a gal that turned her man away because he was untrue. And as she was booting him out the door the orchestra would pick up the cue and she would sing this song. We never finished the song because Canny and I could not agree on whose name should come first on the cover.

"Well, I am all on my own now and will have no more arguments like that. I have finished my new song except for the music and I figured you could get your friend Bob Wood, the insurance man who plays the piano, to furnish the music. If the song is a success I will buy him the best cap in town. My new song is entitled She Loves Me, She Loves Me Not, and you are not supposed to sing it unless you have a daisy. As you sing each line you pick one of the daisies and throw it away. I figure the daisy interests will be glad to plug my song, especially because for every encore you need a fresh daisy. Maybe this will solve the unemployment. Here are the words for my song and please see that guy Wood right away:

"She loves me, she loves me not.
Yes! No! No! Yes!
Yes she does, no she don't
She loves me now and now she don't
When we were a couple of kids, hey hey!"

At the Aero Club luncheons every now and then they give some flier the Foolish Flying Cross, which is made of tin and bears the names of all who have received it. To earn the Foolish Flying Cross a pilot has to be guilty of a blunder—a minor blunder, to be sure. Almost all of them have received it at some time or other, including Hal Bazley, Lieut. Sam Eaton, Bill Austin, Herbert Thaden and his wife, Louise Thaden. Lieut. Eaton was decorated for making a none too good landing. Austin got it for losing himself in the air. Thaden was honored for cracking up his ship slightly in landing. Mrs. Thaden was with him when he cracked up and she complained when she didn't get the cross, so the club gave it to her for back-seat driving.

RACKETEERS IN PANIC OVER U. S. DRIVE

Special Agents Seeking Data On Tax Dodging, Narcotic Trade Spread Fear Here

Bewilderment and fear are spreading through the ranks of racketeers in and about Pittsburgh.

They know they are being investigated by federal agents for:

(1) The "rap you cannot beat" as income tax law violation prosecutions are called by the great and near-great of the underworld.

(2) Investigation of wholesale and retail dope peddling.

(3) Investigation of Mann Act violations.

(4) Investigation of bootlegging.

F. T. Hertzig is in Pittsburgh to establish headquarters for a Pittsburgh unit of special agents of the Bureau of Prohibition, Department of Justice. He will be in charge of a detail of special investigators selected from men assigned for duty in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Maryland and Delaware, under the recent reorganization plan of the Bureau of Prohibition. These men, it was explained, will work independently of prohibition administrators, but always will be ready to co-operate with them when their assistance is required in handling major operations and in cases where ramifications extend beyond the jurisdiction of the regular prohibition enforcement workers.

FORCE DUE HERE

Hertzig has established an office in the House Building and his full quota of assistants is expected here within a few days. The special investigators were formerly stationed in Washington, but to expedite their work they have been assigned to special districts, where sub-stations are being established.

Whether there were any grounds for the rumors that certain men convicted in rum conspiracies here have "squawked" and exposed others, was not verified by the special agents or other government officials. A significant fact in connection with the "rumors" was that Assistant United States Attorney Raymond D. Evans is in Atlanta today, having made the trip there with United States Marshal J. C. McGregor, who took 15 prisoners sentenced to terms in the Atlanta penitentiary.

The split of the "vice lords" on the North Side which resulted in provision in this year's budget of a second police district, gave the government men the entering wedge that they have been looking for, in the opinion of some.

SPECULATIONS RIFE

The recent "shooting up" of a department automobile as it stood near prohibition headquarters in the House Building, is said by others to have stirred up the most intense drive against the hordes of lawbreakers that has ever been made here.

Scores of undercover men were set in at strategic points some say as a result of the audacity of the thugs who fired on the agent's car. Other "wise ones" say that this was "an act" put on by the prohibition authorities themselves as part of their campaign to stir up both the underworld and the apathetic public to conditions prevailing here.

They are all agreed upon one conclusion, that if the word has gone out from the top to put the lid on, then all the "big shots" will be begging for mercy, "before it's over."

Again it may all be hysteria on the part of those whose consciences bother them about their sources of income. But take it any way, the government has admitted that Pittsburgh and Philadelphia are being "checked and double checked by sleuths from the Department of Justice who don't even know each other. What the eventual result will be—well, one person's guess is as good as another's.

100 More One-Light Drivers Arrested

Another hundred motorists were caught by city traffic police during the night and given orders to appear for hearings in Traffic Court for operating their machines with but one headlight. The special squad of a score of motorcycle officers patroled the boulevards and main city highways all night, stopping all machines not properly lighted.

COUNCIL VOTES CITY SEWER PROGRAM

Projects Costing $200,000 Expected to Give Jobs To Many Now Unemployed

About $200,000 of sewer projects, including the $132,000 Nine-Mile Run project, were approved by Council yesterday in committee session. The Nine-Mile Run sewer was planned by Mayor Kline to relieve unemployment and will be constructed by city forces. The sewer projects are expected to give work to a large number of unemployed.

The relief sewer to protect against back-flooding on Broad street and Mossfield street, to cost $30,000, is included in the projects. Others are: Weier and Landay streets, $8,600; Pennsylvania Railroad and Sixteenth street, $8,000; McKinley Park, $4,500; Brookline boulevard, $2,000; Merwyn avenue, $2,000; Parkwood road and Beck's Run, $2,500.

An emergency appropriation of $2,000 was approved for reconstructing a broken sewer on Frankstown avenue at Bennett street, in addition to a previous appropriation of $3,000.

APPLE SELLERS ROBBED

The meanest man in the world, according to Pittsburgh's unemployed apple sellers, is the man who will steal an apple while they are getting a hot cup of coffee.

William Truxal, apple seller at Ninth street and Liberty avenue, said:

"I lost 31 apples yesterday. I was only gone five minutes for a cup of coffee and somebody carried half a box away. My wife has just got out of the hospital and I have two children. I have to get up at 5:30 in the morning to make sure of my corner, and the most I can make is $2.50 a day."

Nick Fhoka, who has an apple and tangerine stand at 635 Smithfield, locks his apples up in a big box fastened with chains. He said:

"One night someone broke into my box and stole all my apples and my sheep-lined coat. It cost $20."

About 1,000 apple permits have been issued to unemployed in Pittsburgh by James M. Clark, Director of Public Safety, upon approval by various charitable organizations.

MYSTERY BLAST CAUSE SOUGHT

County detectives today were continuing their investigation into the alleged bomb explosion which damaged the Grandview Inn, Lincoln highway, Versailles Township, yesterday. Among the persons in the inn at the time of the blast were Chief Charles A. Livingston, of the Dravosburg police, and a party of friends who were celebrating the police head's reinstatement by borough council Monday night. Charges by Burgess C. J. Carlson, who had suspended Livingston on January 3, that the chief lacked efficiency and that he protected bootleggers were not sustained by council.

Officers were installed by the board. They are: Harry S. Brown, president; E. C. Brainerd, John A. Freyvogel and Robert P. Alexander, vice presidents; Charles I. Westerfield, secretary; O. C. Young, treasurer, and Howard Neely, solicitor.

THEFT SUSPECT ESCAPES GUNS

An alleged automobile thief escaped amid a hail of shots this morning after he had abandoned a stolen automobile at Leech and Thirty-fifth streets, Lawrenceville, to evade police who had detected him sitting in the stolen machine in Thirty-sixth street. Lieut. John Held and Patrolman John Bray who fired 10 shots at the man, believe that he may have been struck by one of the bullets.

The two policemen were driving in Smallman street when they saw the machine in Thirty-sixth street. As they approached the car was driven away and they gave chase. Several shots were fired and the thief abandoned the car in Leech street and sped away on foot. More shots were fired at him as he disappeared in the darkness.

Police say the car is owned by Anthony Szaulis, of 200 Bell avenue, McKees Rocks and that it was stolen Sunday night on the North Side.

CHILD RESCUES DOG ON ICE

Recognizing the voice of his little mistress, Dorothy Shoprone, the shivering dog, Keno, that spent most all of yesterday marooned on a cake of ice in Lanpher Reservoir, Cabbage Hill, Shaler Township, splashed ashore along an improvised pontoon into the arms of the 6-year-old girl last night. The girl took the pet to her home in Evergreen avenue, Millvale.

The dog fell into the reservoir at 8 o'clock yesterday morning, and was seen a short time later crawling upon the ice.

R. N. Small and Policeman W. H. Jones, of the Animal Rescue League, were called. Thinness of the ice prevented rescue of the animal.

The dog, shivering and afraid, refused to be lured ashore over the broken ice by food.

Finally, when it was seen that the dog was slowly freezing, attempts were made to shoot it.

Just when attempts to rescue the dog were about to be given up at dusk, the little girl came to the reservoir and identified the dog as her pet.

Battle Over Child Taken Into Court

Claiming that his wife has left him and that her parents are keeping his six-months-old son, and refuse to give him up, Louis Pete Bennett, of East Monongahela, is seeking to recover custody of the boy through habeas corpus proceedings in Common Pleas Court. He has filed a writ against his estranged wife, Nicolene Bennette, and her parents, Louis and Elizabeth Ferello, also of East Monongahela. Judge James H. Gray set January 21 for a hearing.

EACH FAVORS LOCATION IN OAKLAND

Three Years of Discussion Finds No Two of Board In Agreement on Place

The three County Commissioners have picked sites for the Town Hall. Each wants it in the Oakland section, but in a different part of this district, in which are situated many of the city's important buildings.

Commissioner Charles C. McGovern first voted several months ago for the Town Hall to be an annex to the Gen. A. J. Logan Armory in Oakland. When his colleagues failed to agree he declared for a downtown site.

FAVORS NICOLA TRACT

Commissioner E. V. Babcock also chose Oakland. He picked the "Nicola site" bounded by Lytton, Ruskin and Fifth avenues and Bayard street.

Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, yesterday also chose an Oakland site, in Craig and Neville streets, and Fifth avenue.

None of the commissioners apparently favors any site that either of the others advocates.

ONE POINT SETTLED

So far the three years of discussion over where the $6,000,000 edifice will ultimately be placed has resulted in agreement on one point, that Oakland is the only place for the building.

What the next move will be none of the commissioners cared to predict yesterday. The Town Hall, in the opinion of Commissioner McGovern and many others, is a "political football." They also call it "a political hot potato that Armstrong has caught hold of." Many observers believe that after all is said and done, the building will be built on the Nicola property.

TWO HUSBANDS SEEK DIVORCES

Two husbands have filed divorce suits in Common Pleas Court.

Tobias L. Unger, 711 Cassatt street, sued Mrs. Marie Unger, now of Bay City, Mich., charging desertion. They were married May 5, 1926, and parted July 6, 1928.

Ralph F. Austin, 2033 Fifth avenue, sued Mrs. Anna C. Austin, 417 Atwood street, on grounds of cruelty. They were married October 20, 1925, and lived together until June 1, 1930.

POLICE CAPTAIN CAPTURES SUSPECT

Wilmerding-Wall Bus Driver Robbed by Masked Man; 3 Youths Held in Thefts

Bandits who help up three stores, two on the North Side and one in South Millvale avenue, last night, were being sought by police today.

Two armed men entered the cigar store of W. R. Finn, at 127 West Ohio street, held up W. S. Geisler, of 76 Watsonia boulevard, the clerk, and escaped with $70 from the cash register. Geisler, alone in the store, was ordered into a rear room while the cash register was being looted.

Another bandit pair a few minutes later held up Samuel Fried in his grocery and butcher shop at 756 South Millvale avenue. After looting the cash register of $70 the two escaped in an automobile.

ENFORCEMENT GAINS FORECAST

A better outlook for prohibition enforcement was pictured last night by Marcus W. Acheson, Jr., speaking at the University Club before a group of 20 men enlisted in the campaign of the Anti-Saloon League to popularize prohibition.

The gathering was one of a series of dinner meetings which are being held to organize moral and financial support. Acheson pointed out that not until 1927 was enforcement placed under men governed by the civil service regulations, and predicted that the work will proceed more smoothly under the Department of Justice. A. Marshall Thompson presided at the meeting.

Invitations have been issued to prominent women of Pittsburgh for an organization meeting in behalf of the prohibition cause, to be held Friday at 12:30 p. m. at the University Club. Mrs. H. C. McEldowney will preside.

PRISON TO GET RAID SUGAR

Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker signed an order directing the prohibition authorities to turn over to Federal Prison Camp at Odenton, Md., 248 sacks of brown sugar, seized by prohibition agents in the raid of a huge alcohol manufacturing plant on Vickroy street, October 6. The sugar and other property confiscated in the raid had been condemned and forfeited to the government.

Two months ago the court directed that 322 sacks of coke seized be transferred to the United States Engineers at Pittsburgh, to be used for government purposes.

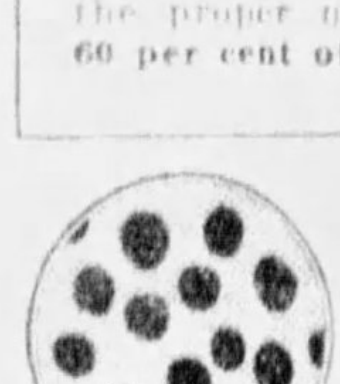
Body weakness, lack of appetite, underweight, paleness, sallow complexion, pimples and boils are symptoms of a low blood count. These may indicate that you need S.S.S.

S.S.S. restores the red-blood-cells to normal. Your appetite picks up, your whole body is strengthened, invigorated—you feel like yourself again!

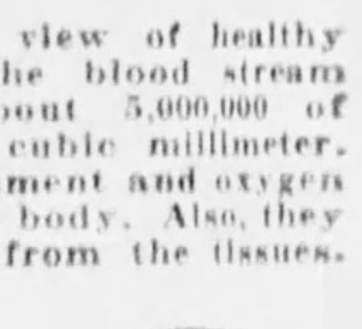
If your red-blood-cells are below normal try S.S.S. Its successful record of over 100 years in building red-cells in the blood is a guarantee of satisfaction.

How to recognize a low blood count

Fatigue without any apparent cause, sluggishness, loss of appetite, loss of body weight, paleness, boils and pimples are outstanding symptoms of a LOW RED-BLOOD-CELL COUNT. The red-cells are your body builders. They carry nourishment to every part of the body. Also, they remove impurities from the tissues. When your red-cells drop to 80 per cent of normal strength, you haven't the proper number of workers to keep you "fit." 60 per cent of normal is dangerous.



(Left) Microscopic view of healthy red-blood-cells. The blood stream should contain about 5,000,000 of these cells to the cubic millimeter. They carry nourishment and oxygen to every part of the body. Also, they remove impurities from the tissues.



(Right) Anemic red-blood-cells—only 60 per cent of normal strength—they lack the power to resist infection and disease or to rebuild flesh and to carry away the impurities. Such a condition is responsible for body weakness, loss of appetite, underweight, paleness, sallow complexion, boils and pimples.

M'GOVERN SEES ECONOMY IN PROPOSAL

Armstrong Seeks Thorough Deliberation on Allegheny River Job Urged by U. S.

Construction of either a high level or low level dam in the Allegheny River by the United States War Department is under study by the County Commissioners.

At their meeting yesterday they were requested by Lieut. Col. Jarvis J. Bain, United States district engineer, to state their opinions on the type of dam which would best meet their requirements.

Under one plan for the dam, to cross the river near Squaw Run, it was proposed to erect a bridge as part of the dam. The superstructure of the bridge would form a part of the breast of the dam.

McGOVERN SEES ECONOMY

Commissioner Charles C. McGovern declared:

"The crux of this situation is that the Highland Park Bridge and the Homestead Bridge, due to their dilapidated condition, will soon have to be replaced.

"If the War Department is going to build this dam as a high level dam, it may be very economical for the county to build its bridge as part of it. The bridge could be set on piers that would be a part of the dam. We should look into this with a great deal of thought."

ARMSTRONG ASKS STUDY

Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong said:

"The city's filtration plant at Aspinwall and the Allegheny River boulevard come into this matter. There is pressure being brought from Washington to get the dam under construction. The property damage problem would be extremely extensive and complicated. Much valuable property may be inundated by the dam. I would suggest we ask the War Department for two weeks to study this before we go on record as favoring either a high or low level dam."

Department of Public Works engineers were instructed to make a thorough study of the problem and report back in two weeks.

TRINITY DEAN COMING MAY 1

The Rev. N. R. High Moor, of Atlanta, Ga., who has been unanimously elected dean by the chapter of Trinity Cathedral, has accepted and will begin his work in Pittsburgh May 1.

The opportunities for broad humanitarian service at Trinity were governing factors in the decision to accept the call to Pittsburgh, the Rev. Moor said in an interview in Atlanta. The full support of Bishop Alexander Mann and of the rectors of the important Protestant Episcopal churches of Pittsburgh has been pledged to him.

He succeeds the Rev. Dr. Percy Gamble Kammerer, who resigned to become provost of the Avon Old Farms, a preparatory school for boys, at Avon, Conn. The Rev. Moor was born in Toledo, O., in 1892. He was educated at Kenyon College and Theological Seminary, Gambier, O. He is married and has three sons.

Rare Books Stolen In Harvard Library

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 14.—(AP.)—Several rare books, including some cherished volumes of Harvard's late philosopher, William James, have been stolen by students from Emerson Hall, which houses part of Harvard library, university officials announced last night. The university had been forced to install gates and turnstiles in the main library to foil filching.

Postmasters Named In Pennsylvania

WASHINGTON, January 14.—(AP.)—Pennsylvania postmasters nominated by President Hoover included: Ellsworth, Henry Bourns; Freedonia, Henry W. Redfoot; Gibsonia, Herbert H. Park; Lyndora, George Nuckid; Nanty-Glo, Augustus J. Cornley; Portage, Foston W. Eicher, and Wampum, Sara B. Coulter.

ELECTRIC SHOCK JARS TOWER

When NP tower of the Pennsylvania Railroad, near Millvale, began to quiver and flames shot across the ceiling, Theodore R. Schroth, interchange clerk, and Robert Proser, night operator, knew all was not well. Schroth, first to recover, started down the iron stairway on the outside of the building, but stopped suddenly when something like needles shot through his body. Then he was hurled from his feet.

Electricians in the power plant later explained that a high-tension wire carrying 23,000 volts had broken loose and fallen across a rail. The current followed the steel until it hit the switch rods, where insulation sent it back. The tower was the next grounded object it reached, and the current charged the entire structure. Contact with the switch lever in the tower caused the flames, they said.

Later, while repairing the track, F. W. Blauber, track and signal maintainer, found a hole had been burned in the switch rods, which stopped the current.

A complaint against radio fans who keep their sets pouring forth jazz music during the early morning hours was made to McKeesport City Council yesterday by Mrs. George McCleary, of Versailles avenue.

In a letter to council, Mrs. McCleary declared loud speakers hung over doorways of shops are the worst offenders, filling the night with sound and fury, making it impossible for citizens to get sleep. City Solicitor Harry M. Jones was ordered to investigate.

TRIBUTE PAID TO FOSTER

The memory of Stephen Collins Foster, Pittsburgh composer of southern melodies, was honored yesterday, the sixty-seventh anniversary of his death. The services were held yesterday afternoon at his grave in Allegheny Cemetery.

The program, sponsored by the Civic Club of Allegheny County, was directed by Burton H. Mustin. The Manchester Choral Society of the Manchester Educational Center, under the direction of Will Rhodes, sang several of Foster's own compositions, including "Old Black Joe" and "Way Down Upon the Swanee River."

J. O. Taylor, a "patriarchal" Negro born in Georgia 72 years ago, placed a wreath upon the dead composer's grave. The Rev. Dr. J. W. Claudy, of the Pittsburgh Council of Churches, delivered a short address, in which he expressed the world's appreciation to Foster. Dr. Claudy also pronounced the benediction.

The Civic Club initiated the memorial service nine years ago. Mr. Foster's daughter, Mrs. Marion Welsh; his granddaughter, Mrs. Dallas Rose, and his nephew, William B. Foster, were at the services at his grave.

Mrs. Oliver S. Hershman Revealed as $100,000 Foster Fund Donor

Mrs. Oliver S. Hershman is donor of the gift of $100,000 made to the Stephen C. Foster Memorial Fund through the Tuesday Musical Club. Mrs. Hershman, prominent member of the club, made this generous gift in November but did it anonymously and it was not until last night at the Foster memorial concert that she consented to have her name made known by E. T. Whiter, chairman of the Foster Memorial Committee.

The gift Mr. Whiter announced is a memorial to Mrs. Hershman's late husband, Col. Hershman, whose life Mr. Whiter sketched briefly in his announcement speech. Mrs. Hershman's latest gift, which is in addition to her former provisional contribution of $10,000 (providing the club raises an equal amount), brings the fund to $250,000.

Last night's concert was held in Carnegie Music Hall in observance of the sixty-seventh anniversary of the death of the famous Pittsburgh composer. Dr. Charles Heinroth, at the organ, played a number of Foster melodies. Mrs. Jessie Yuille Yon, in period costume, sang several of them with Mrs. Martha Meyers Murdock accompanying. There were stereopticon slides appropriate to the occasion and the Rev. Dr. Robert MacGowan spoke, discussing Foster as poet, patriot and musician. Assembly singing closed the program.

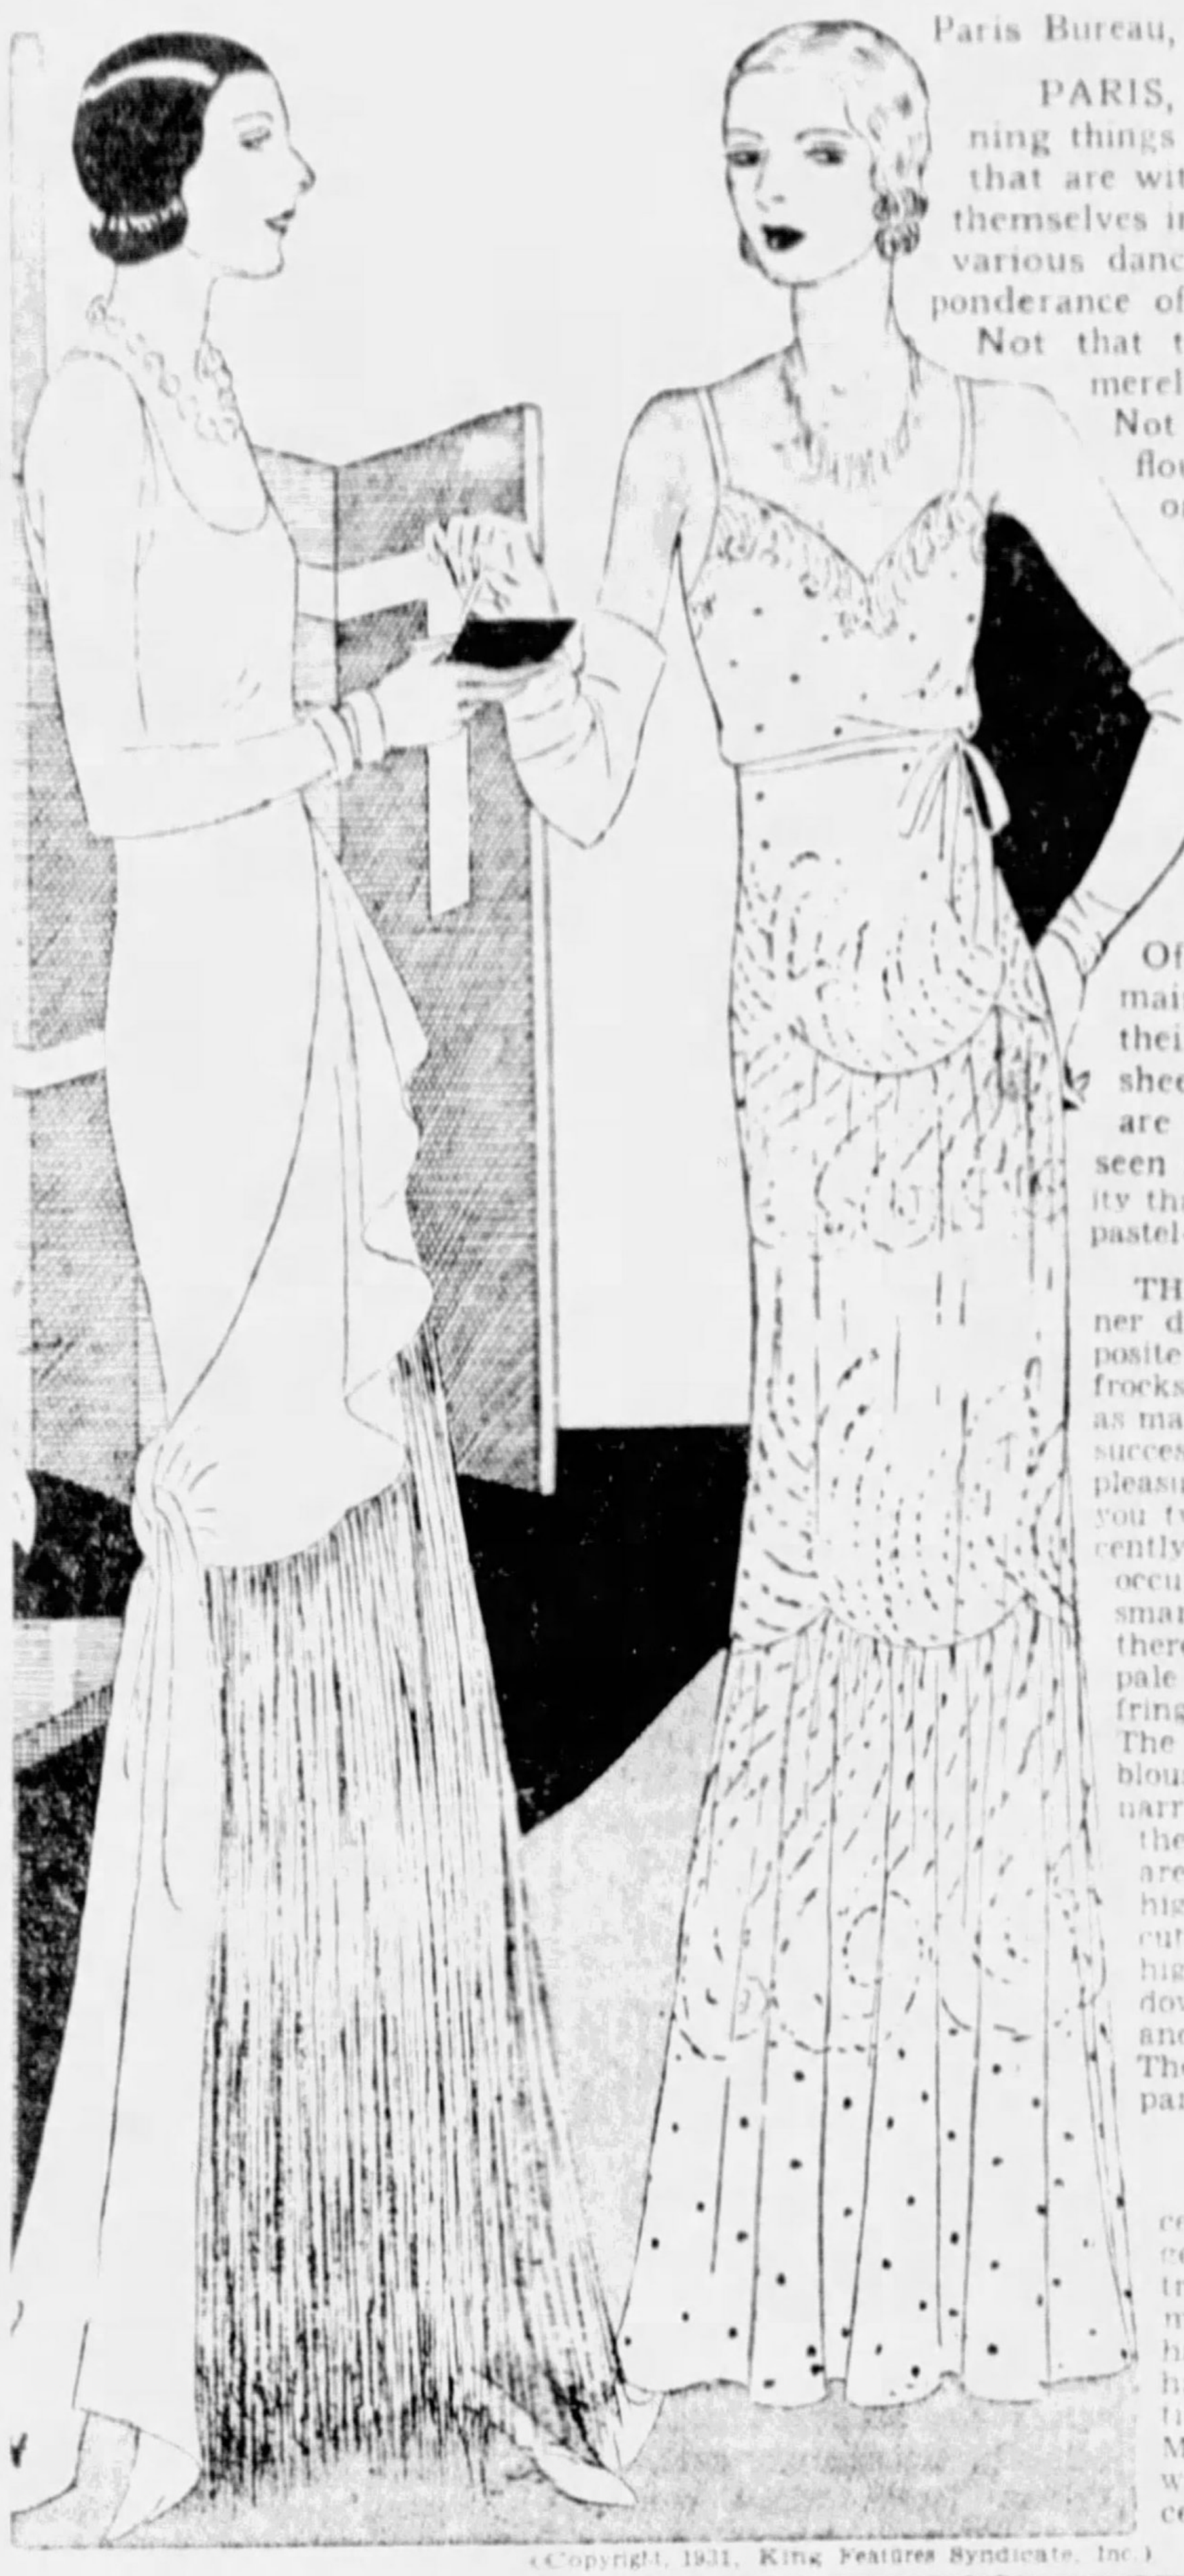
EVENING FROCK SKIRTS ARE IN MANY TIERS THIS SEASON

Sketched in Paris



(Copyright, 1931, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Jan. 14.—As far as evening things are concerned, those skirts that are without flounces seem to find themselves in tiers. For a check up at various dances seems to reveal a preponderance of flounced or tiered skirts. Not that the flounces and tiers are merely what their name implies. Not by any means. For the flounces are set on in the most original fashion, oftimes one flounce is so disposed that it almost makes the skirt. And the tiers are shirred and treated in all sorts of original ways. Pastel shades are favored and the perennial black-and-white combination makes as strong an appeal as ever. Of course many women remain faithful to all black for their evening frocks, but as sheer and semi-sheer fabrics are to the fore, the black frocks seen now have an ethereal quality that is quite as appealing as the pastel-hued models.

* * *

THE FRIDAY NIGHT gala dinner dances at Ciro's offer a composite picture of the best evening frocks to be found anywhere as well as material for prediction of coming successes. And so it is with much pleasure that we are able to send you two sketches of frocks that recently intrigued the interest and occupied the attention of the very smart assemblage foregathered there. The frock to the left is in pale pink crepe romain with fringes in the same delicate shade. The bodice is ever so slightly bloused at the waistline beneath a narrow belt and the top part of the skirt fits snugly. The flounces are featured in this frock in a highly original manner. It is cut on circular lines and starting high at the center front curves down in back, where it is knotted and hangs in two trailing ends. The silk fringes form the lower part of the skirt.

* * *

THE OTHER FROCK is a recent Molyneux model of white georgette crepe with a delicate tracery of jet embroidery, a most delightful method of handling black and white. It has the baby bodice and shirred tier to tier skirt which Capt. Molyneux has been using this winter with such marked success.

THE DANGER LINE

Have You Reached Age 40?

People nearing the age of forty or having passed that mark now take good care of their physical condition during the winter months by building up their systems to ward off colds, grippe and other winter ills.

Constipation, indigestion, sour gassy stomach, pains in the back and around the heart, headaches, congested liver and weak kidneys indicate physical decay caused by various overindulgences, and lessen resistance to colds.

Health, the most precious gift in life, can be retained by using the rich juices brewed from the roots, barks, leaves, flowers, herbs and plants that mother nature has provided, and which are included in that old remedy called Bulgarian Herb (Blood) Tea. Taken hot at bedtime this pure vegetable compound quickly breaks up colds by stimulating the circulation, heating the chilled blood and moving intestinal poisons out of the system. It is fine for constipation.

Keep strong and healthy during the winter months by using Bulgarian Herb Tea regularly two or three times a week. Get a box today—the cost is small and your druggist will honestly recommend Bulgarian Herb Tea.

M'GOVERN HITS REPAVING COST

Protesting against the county paying for repaving parts of the Ohio River boulevard, due to warping of the original paving, County Commissioner C. C. McGovern at yesterday's meeting demanded to know who was responsible for the extra work being necessary.

He called for an explanation from Norman F. Brown, director of the Department of Public Works, and was informed that the director was in Florida.

McGovern then said:

"He is always some place else except at these meetings."

Assistant Director of Public Works W. H. Kreiling took issue with McGovern. He said:

"I don't think the contractor is at fault. The road was laid in the extremely hot weather last July. The road heaved some bricks and made repaving necessary."

Armstrong moved that the county engineers prepare a full report on the cost of repaving, and who is responsible for payment. McGovern seconded the motion. Booth & Flinn, Ltd., are the contractors on the job.

Two Runaway Boys Sought by Mother

Two brothers, who ran away from home after leaving their mother a note saying they were going to leave the country, were being sought by police today.

Hugh and Dan Wilhere, 13 and 10, respectively, of 3110 Chartiers avenue, Sheraden, took with them $4 and a black suitcase, which they packed with clothing, police said the mother informed them. The mother reported their disappearance after finding a note.

By JAMES J. LONG

Ingram's Job Tough One. Coast Demands Winners. Wright Hard to Sign. Majors to Stay Firm. Johnson's Ring Defeats. Tilden Poor Advertiser.

LOSERS DO NOT LAST IN FAR WEST

IN THE SIGNING of Bill Ingram as football coach to fill the vacancy caused by the withdrawal of Nibs Price, the University of California gets just as good a bet as there is among the country's available mentors. He appears to be well qualified not only for the teaching of the pigskin sport, but also for the bigger job of uniting the warring elements at the Berkeley school and getting everybody behind him. However, appearances are not a guarantee of coaching success. That's one game in which only results count with the majority, and it is not by what he seems to promise on paper but by what he does on the field that Ingram will be judged at his new post.

Bill Ingram

Right now the University of California is reported to be enthusiastic over the acquisition of the former Navy coach. Ingram is being hailed as just the man needed to lift the Bears out of the rut and start them up the path to championship glory. But it will be interesting to note how long the enthusiasm will last if Bill doesn't produce a marked imporvement in California's football fortune during his first couple of years out there.

IN THAT EVENT possibly they'll be crying for his head before he has served the final season of his three-year contract. In football coaching you're judged almost wholly by the degree of playing success you have with your teams, and out on the Pacific Coast the demand for winners is perhaps a bit stronger than it is in other parts of the country.

The late Andy Smith found that to be true when he went to the Far West in 1915 to start work at the school to which Ingram is now going. He discovered it to be a tough job, with more expected than he was able to deliver at first, and they were just about ready to chop off his head when he turned out his first wonder team in 1920. That great eleven saved his bacon and it was not until then that he received real support.

PRODUCE OR GET out is the order out there, seemingly, and the hazardous nature of the job into which Ingram is stepping is shown by the record of coast coaching for the last 10 seasons. Look back over the years and you won't find a man who was tutoring football there in 1920 and who is still at work.

In 1920 Andy Smith was at California, Elmer Henderson at Southern California, Gil Dobie at Washington, Charley Huntington at Oregon, Bill Powell at Stanford and Lone Star Dietz and Gus Welch at Washington State. Smith is dead, but all the others were forced to look for new positions years ago.

OF THE COACHES now directing teams in the Coast Conference Pop Warner has served longest. He has been at Stanford since 1924. In 1925 Howard Jones started at Southern California, Babe Hollingbery at Washington State and Bill Spaulding at U. C. L. A. Fats Spears and Jimmy Phelan began only last year at Oregon and Washington. With that bunch lying in wait for him, Ingram will not find it the easiest thing in the world to make a smooth start on the job that Price was forced to quit because he was not developing winners.

Glenn Wright

BEFORE SIGNING HIS Brooklyn contract for 1931, to carry on in the role of the man who came back, Glenn Wright turned down the first three offers made by the Robin officials, according to word from the East.

Finally, when the sum separating the parties involved in the salary discussion had been whittled to $1,000, a compromise was reached and the former Pirate shortstop affixed his signature to a playing pact. It is understood to be a one-year agreement.

WRIGHT'S NEW CONTRACT is said to call for a salary of $18,000, or $3,000 more than the player received last season. Only two members of the Brooklyn club will receive higher salaries. They are Pitcher Dazzy Vance and Outfielder Babe Herman.

Neither of those players has signed for 1931, but the club is reported willing to put Vance's pay up to $25,000 again and to give Herman $19,000. Wright will draw more than any of the others and will be the highest-salaried shortstop Brooklyn ever had.

THOUGH THE HEADS of both the National and American Leagues have declined to comment on the demands made by the Pacific Coast League in announcing its willingness to accept the draft with reservations, expressions of opinion by a number of the club owners indicate that the coast loop's counter proposals will be turned down flatly by the majors. They object to two points in particular. One is the reservation that no player be drafted from a Class AA club until he has been in a league of that classification for two seasons, regardless of how much time he has elsewhere in the organized minors, and the other is that a player signed after August 1 shall not be considered as having one year of service to his credit. It is unlikely that the Pacific Coast League will get by with any such demands. The majors have outlined just what they are willing to agree to in a new draft pact, and are pretty certain to stick to it.

LOUISVILLE DISPATCHES IN announcing that Marvin Hart, former heavyweight fighter, would have to give up his present occupation as a referee in Kentucky rings on account of ill health, added that with the exception of Jess Willard, Hart had been the only man ever to win a bout from Jack Johnson.

The fistic historians in Kentucky appear to have overlooked a couple, without counting the event in which Joe Jeannette won over Johnson on a foul in the second round at Philadelphia in 1905. For Joe Choynski, long a Pittsburgher, knocked out Johnson in the third round of a fight in Galveston, Tex., on February 25, 1901, and in the following year Hank Griffin won a decision over Jack in 20 rounds.

Jack Curley

CONSIDER THE MENTAL anguish of Jack Curley, manager of Bill Tilden's professional tennis tour, when Tilden in a radio talk the other night told the world that the amateurs would continue to be the big shots in tennis for a long time to come, and that even the proposed open tournaments were far in the future.

As a professional showman who has managed fighters, wrestlers, women swimmers such as Annette Kellerman, and even a grand opera star, Curley knows that the thing to do is to claim your own show is the greatest on earth.

SO, AFTER HE had started a nice lot of ballyhoo for Tilden's professional tour as the sport attraction of the century, it must have given Curley a headache to hear Bill broadcasting the opinion that the brightest stars in tennis are in the amateur ranks. It's a safe guess that he won't let Tilden go on the air again until he has been thoroughly coached. "Sport to me means the professional," Curley declared, and George Currie reports that he could almost hear him rattling the change in his pocket as he said it. "The Babe Ruths, the Christy Mathewsons and the Ty Cobbs, not the amateurs, have been the ones to keep the sand lots filled with fine American boyhood playing a noble game."

WAYNESBURG, TITANS MEET IN CONFERENCE

GAMES TONIGHT.

NON-CONFERENCE

Western Reserve vs. Carnegie Tech, Tech gym.

Kiskis vs. Carnegie Plebes, Tech gym.

Wash-Jeff vs. Bethany, Bethany.

Duquesne vs. American U., Washington, D. C.

Penn State vs. Harvard, Cambridge.

Marshall vs. West Va., Morgantown.

TRI-STATE CONFERENCE

Waynesburg vs. Westminster, New Wilmington.

BY JESS CARVER

Western Reserve's Red Kitty-Kats and Kiski's Preppers sign Pittsburgh's register today. The Clevelanders and Saltsburgers are here to open the college basketball program in this city for the week, opposing Carnegie Tech's varsity and plebe quintets in the Tartan gym tonight.

Dan Forsythe

The appearance of the Red Cats is their second of the season. Reserve came to town some weeks ago and knocked off Doc Carlson's Pitt Panthers in the Stadium, thereby causing the famous Braddock medico to rip a few more strands from the top of his knob.

Since that successful excursion, the Red Cats have not fared overly well, and have been tripped up by Syracuse and by their opponents of the evening, Tech. The Tartans turned the trick in Cleveland a week ago last Saturday night.

LINEUP THE SAME

Carnegie, with triumphs over Lehigh, Thiel and Western Reserve to its credit, against a defeat at the hands of the University of Buffalo, will line up against the Cats as it did to start against Thiel last week. Capt. Nease and Bob Smith will go at the forwards, along with Spike Merten at center and Jimmy Leonard and Red Fergus at the guards. For Reserve, Charillo and Berkowitz will do the attacking from forward positions. Neagoy is to jump against Merten at center and Lamb and Forsythe are slated for guard duty. The lineups:

Carnegie Tech		Western Res.
Nease (C)	F	Charillo
Smith	F	Berkowitz
Merten	C	Neagoy
Leonard	G	Lamb
Fergus	G	Forsythe

Referee—Marty Weitzel. Umpire—Buck Snyder. Time of game—8:30.

TITANS, JACKETS CLASH

Waynesburg resumes its program of strenuous campaigning by sailing into the rangy and unbeaten Titans of Westminster in a Tri-State Conference tussle in New Wilmington. This one looks like a sure Titan holiday. Waynesburg is rugged and tough, but the Titans have too much size and all-around class for Frank Wolf's hopefuls.

Oh, by 15 or 20 points, I guess.

Wash-Jeff pops up with its collegiate inaugural after a 50-50 split in pre-season tussles by meeting Bethany at Bethany. Bethany, with a brace of ace performers in Flading and Rush, and very confident and cocky after beating Juniata and Penn State last week, will make the going very, very snarly, indeed, for the Prexies.

DUKES IN WASHINGTON

Duquesne opens a three-game stay in Washington, D. C., tonight by engaging the American University club. Tomorrow, Catholic U will furnish the opposition and the day after, Georgetown.

Penn State, soundly trounced by both Waynesburg and Bethany, meets Harvard at Cambridge. West Virginia won't be in exactly a sweet frame of mind against Marshall tonight.

GROVERS DOWN JACKETS

GROVE CITY, Pa., Jan. 14.—Grove City College's team was forced to play out its string to beat Waynesburg, 33 to 25, here last night. The Grovers were played to a standstill in the opening period, but came back strong in the second period to overcome a Yellow Jacket lead and earn the decision. The lineup:

Grove City 33		Waynesburg 25
Montgomery	F	Avery
Burke	F	O'Connell
Laycock	C	Ulion
[illegible]	G	Utema
[illegible]	G	Patsch

Substitutions—Grove City: Feeley for Montgomery, [illegible] Reeves, Hildebrand for Laycock, Laycock for [illegible]. Waynesburg: [illegible] O'Connell, O'Connell for Avery, Janosik for Ulion, Spadaro for O'Connell, [illegible] for Utema.

Field goals—Feeley, Burke 4, Laycock 3, Reeves, [illegible] 4, Avery 2, O'Connell, Currie, Janosik.

Foul goals—Grove City 7 out of 17, Waynesburg 13 out of 20.

Referee—Walace.

CAMP POOL CHAMP

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—(AP.)—Marcel Camp of Detroit won the [illegible] pocket billiard tournament last night, beating Andrew Ponzi of Philadelphia in the final match [illegible] with a record of eight victories and [illegible] defeat. The score was [illegible].

TAYLOR BEATS LUCAS

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 14.—(AP.)—Bud Taylor, Terre Haute, Ind., featherweight, easily defeated Joe Lucas of Detroit, in 10 rounds here last night.

Believe It Or Not — By RIPLEY

© 1931, King Features Syndicate, Inc., Great Britain rights reserved.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: "FATHOM" MEANS "AN EMBRACE"—The fathom, like the foot, yard and others, is an ancient unit of measure derived from the dimensions of the human body. It means literally "embrace" (ancient Saxon "faetm") and is defined in the ancient Act of Parliament as "the length of both of a swain's arms around the object of his affection." (Reference: Decker's "On the Science of Measuring.") BLACK PAINT MAKES WHITE PAINT WHITER—By adding four or five drops of black paint to a pail of white paint, the black drops act as a bleaching agent, making the white paint even whiter. THE WHITE RHINOCEROS—While on an exploring and hunting expedition in Africa, G. G. Schillings had the unique experience of shooting a rhinoceros which was unusual in two ways. It was of the Burchell's rhinoceros group (commonly known as the white rhinoceros), which now is practically exterminated, and it had a horn which measured 6 feet 9 inches in length. Rhinoceros' horns usually measure only three or four feet. (See: "In Wildest Africa," by G. G. Schillings, Page 123.)

SOCCER LEAGUE CARDS CUT

WEEK-END SCHEDULE.

KEYSTONE LEAGUE

M. & Y. LEAGUE

Sunday—Mather at Gratztown, Martin; Fitz Henry at Victory Hill, Rutherford; Gallatin at Clarksville, Leckie; Herminie at Vestaburg, Mallee.

PANHANDLE LEAGUE

Sunday—Beadling at Mollenauer, Couch; Horning at Bower Hill, Williamson; Heidelburg at Coverdale, Evans; Fintex Jrs., at Bridgemont, Corns.

By TOM BIRKS.

In view of the fact that the big cup tie game scheduled for the Bridgeville Speedway, featuring Morgan and Cleveland Shamrocks, will be the center attraction of local soccer Sunday, only one game has been scheduled in the Keystone League. Bridgeville will meet Dunlevy on the latter's grounds, far removed from the cup tie action.

The Mon-Yough and Panhandle Leagues have been scheduled, but if managers get together and agree to postpone a game, it will be done.

Players of the Junior League may want to see the boys from Cleveland in action. Managers should get in touch with their league presidents if this is contemplated.

The Shamrocks are in fine shape for the game. Advices from the Forest City indicate a full team will meet the local leaders. The game will be called at 2:30.

Pitt, Tech on Irish Grid Schedule Again

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Jan. 14.—(AP.)—With the exception of the Southern Methodists, Notre Dame's football team will meet the same rivals in 1931 as it did last fall. The schedule:

October 3, Indiana at Bloomington.

October 10, Northwestern at Chicago (Soldier Field).

October 17, Drake here.

October 24, Pennsylvania here.

October 31, Carnegie Tech at Pittsburgh.

November 7, Pittsburgh here.

November 14, Navy at Baltimore.

November 21, Southern California here.

November 28, Army at New York.

SPORT VIGNETTES

The University of Pittsburgh has just paid out about $1,000 (the spendthrifts, in these times!) to improve the heating plant in the Stadium Pavilion . . . From now on they are going to make it as hot for the basketball customers as Dr. Carlson's passers make it for rival teams . . . Did you ever notice that, with all of the talk about over-emphasis in college football, there isn't any such popping off about the greater amount of time put in by the basketeers and trackmen, not to mention the crew candidates and others? . . . The reason is obvious . . . The football games attract the gate receipts that maintain the other sports, and where there's dough there's bound to be a lot of do-re-mi about it.

One of Frank Klaus' favorite tricks in the good old days when he ruled the middleweight roost was to walk out of his corner at the beginning of a fight and knock down his opponent's left hand with his right and wheel in with his own left to the body, sinking it in as far as he could. . . . That took the ambition out of a lot of his foes right at the outset . . . It's a bit of fighting strategy — and effectiveness — that he is trying to drill into his new protege, Jimmy Belmont, who already has shown improvement under his coaching, having won his last two starts with knockouts.

The Detroit Olympics are said to be "laying for" our hockey Yellow Jackets when they go to the Michigan city for their clash, tomorrow night, as a result of the fist-flinging exhibition staged at Duquesne Garden last Saturday night a week ago . . . The particular object of their wrath is said to be Gordy Fraser, a former Detroit star, whom they accuse of unnecessary roughness in aiding his mates to score a 4-2 victory . . . Shall we call out the gendarmes? . . . Pa Stribling says his boy, Will, isn't so much afraid of fighting Jack Sharkey or Max Schmeling in New York as he is of having Lou Magnolia referee the battle there . . . He claims he is certain he can't expect a square deal from Magnolia after what happened in the Sharkey-Stribling Battle of the Palms in Miami a few years ago.

X-ray tests conducted at Cornell University tend to discredit the old theory of "athletic heart," long a bugaboo. . . . Exhaustive examinations have failed to reveal enlargement of the organ as a result of intense athletic strain. . . . James (Red) Mason, dean of local boxing managers, will be a busy man in Chicago tonight, when he will second King Levinsky, the erstwhile fish scaler, against Jimmy Slattery, of Buffalo, in their return bout that promises to sell out the Stadium. . . . Mason has trained the Kingfish and will act as his chief second. . . . Levinsky got the decision, an unpopular one, in their first meeting, but Slattery is on the long end of 9-to-5 wagering on the outcome of tonight's melee.—HARRY KECK.

Greensburg Nimrods Stage Big Banquet

GREENSBURG, Jan. 14.—Frank W. Connelly, principal of the Greensburg Office Training School, presided as toastmaster at the first annual banquet of the Greensburg Sportsmen's Association last night.

Dr. Thomas E. Winecoff, director of research of Harrisburg, addressed the 250 sportsmen present on "Wild Life." Ross Loeffler, of McKeesport, member of the State Game Commission; W. L. Wright, district game protector, and R. H. McKissick, of Latrobe, deputy game protector, were guests of honor.

CLAIRTON GRID TEAM DINED

The crack football squad of Clairton High School was honored last night when the school officials and other townsmen staged a banquet and entertainment that was voted a huge success.

Men prominent in all walks of the thriving industrial town came out to honor Coach George Woodman's great team, which has been defeated only once in four years.

Woodman and his assistant, William Wyke, are in charge of a squad of young men, the big majority of whom are the sons of poor parents and who have to struggle to reach high school. But the lure of athletic achievement and the scholastic honors that go with it have been the magnet to attract these boys. As they sat around the tables last night they were an impressive array. Many are of foreign-born parents, but once they get the flavor of American sports they quickly respond.

Practically all of the school board, together with other leaders of the town were grouped about the speaker's table. Mayor J. R. McVey paid a fine tribute to the gridders as did H. J. Davis, F. F. Marquard and B. M. Livezy of the Carnegie Steel Company.

Charles J. Doyle, of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, was among the speakers as were, H. D. Teal, W. M. Bryson, Woodman, Wyke and M. F. Eckfield, coaches; Kenneth Stilly, captain of last year's team; John Swetka and William Stokes, captains-elect, and Dr. J. W. O'Connell, who presented the sweaters and letters to the players of the squad.

I. A. Nickolas was toastmaster of the big affair. The girls of the high school served the elaborate repast.

DRAKE KEEPS SOLEM

DES MOINES, Ia., Jan. 14.—(AP.)—Ossie Solem, another Scandinavian football coach who made good, has a permanent job at Drake University if he wants it. Solem's contract as athletic director and football coach at Drake was extended five more years yesterday and President D. W. Morehouse said he hoped Solem would stay the rest of his life.

CARNERA ANGLE OF STRIB GO IRKS CHAMP

By WALTER DIETZEL
International News Service.

BERLIN, Jan. 14.—Max Schmeling, German heavyweight holder of the world fistic crown, expressed pained "surprise" today when informed that his American manager had signed him for a bout with W. L. (Young) Stribling, and declared he felt under no obligation to agree to such a contract.

Advised also by International News Service that under the arrangement agreed to in New York last night by Joe Jacobs and W. L. Stribling, Sr., respective managers of the two scrappers, the winner of the bout was to measure up against Primo Carnera, Italian giant, within 90 days, Herr Schemling waxed positively indignant.

The real shock to Schmeling, it appeared, was provided in the stipulation that the victor of the Schmeling-Stribling melee should consent to step into the ring with Carnera three months after the preceding tussle.

"IMPOSSIBLE," MAX SAYS

"It seems impossible," the German champion exploded, "that I should have to fight Stribling in an elimination contest for the sake of meeting Carnera afterwards! There must be some mistake. My contract with Madison Square Garden provides for approval by Jacobs and myself on forthcoming fights, because otherwise they certainly could do as they pleased with me."

Shortly before International News Service flashed the signing of the Stribling bout in New York to him, Schmeling told this correspondent that he could not accept the contract Pa Stribling was willing to sign for a bout between him and Young Stribling.

"I will reserve my decision as to whom to accept for a fight until 90 days prior to the title contest," he stated. "The title bout must take place before or during June, because I want to be sure that the best man has fought his way through the elimination scraps for a crack at me by then.

"I am greatly pleased at Pa Stribling's contract inducements, but cannot accept arrangements now. I am sailing for New York within a few days for a tour of the United States and to remain there for my title bout.

"I am surprised indeed that Mr. Jacobs should have signed such a contract without notifying me," Herr Maxie said with a hurt tone.

"But, pending direct information from my manager, I can only say that I do not feel bound to stick to any such contract because it was expressly stipulated between us prior to my departure for home that he would not sign me away without first receiving my approval.

"I most certainly have not been consulted on the matter, and I have not been aware that the agreement between us has been changed since then."

MAX, STRIBLING SIGNED

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—(AP.)—Max Schmeling and W. L. (Young) Stribling have signed for a heavyweight title bout to be held in June and thereby precipitated what may develop into a bitter duel between the New York State Athletic Commission and Madison Square Garden Corporation.

Under terms of a contract drawn up and signed yesterday, Schmeling and Stribling will meet in a city to be selected 90 or more days before the match, with the winner defending the title against Primo Carnera, Italian man-mountain, in September. Carnera arrived here from Europe yesterday.

MILK FUND BENEFITS

The contract was signed by representatives of the three heavyweights with the Madison Square Garden Corporation, of Illinois, a subsidiary of the New York Garden. The Stribling-Schmeling bout will be for the benefit of the Hearst Milk Fund, which will not figure, however, in the second match between Carnera and either Stribling or Schmeling. Under a further agreement, the ultimate survivor will defend the championship for the Milk Fund alone in 1932.

Entrance of the Madison Square Garden Corpoation, of Illinois, into the negotiations was expected in some quaters to lead to drastic action by the New York State Athletic Commission against the New York Garden.

Bill Carey, president of the New York Garden, took no part in the proceedings in view of the commission rule forbidding promoters to deal with suspended boxers. Both Schmeling and Carnera are under ban in this state. Carey insists that the Illinois corporation is a separate, distinct organization and therefore eligible to negotiate with any boxer so long as there is no violation of the rules of the Illinois Boxing Commission.

The South, Westinghouse and Allegheny High School basketball teams featured yesterday's competition in the City League, turning in triumphs against formidable and pressing foes to remain undefeated and at the top of their respective sections.

In Section I, Westinghouse kept on the heels of South by upsetting Walter Gross' Schenley passers, serving the Bellefielders their second defeat in a row. The score of this tussle was 30 to 22. South held its mathematical advantage by defeating John Irwin's Allderdice hoopsters and leads the section with three victories and no defeats, against Westinghouse's two triumphs.

SOUTH HILLS BEATEN

Allegheny erased South Hills, defending sectional champion, from the running for the time being by knocking off the Hillsmen, thus gaining undisputed possession of first place. Perry slipped into a 50-50 rating by crushing Vocational.

The Westinghouse-Schenley tussle in Section I was featured by sterling work on the part of Homer Wadsworth, Westinghouse forward, and Showboat Ware. The Silver Lakers overtook the Grossmen after Schenley had taken a 5-3 lead, and, from the middle of the first period on, never were headed. In the final quarter, Schenley pulled up to within two points of the flying Gold and Blue, but goals by Ware, Limoness and Wadsworth re-established the home club's advantage.

Ware was the high point scorer, getting three field goals and two fouls for eight points.

SOUTH VICTOR

South set down Allderdice, 20-14, and Connelley Trade beat Peabody, 31-26, in other Section I tilts, while Allegheny Vocational dropped one to Perry, 58-18, and Oliver tripped Langley, 25-21, in other Section II frays.

Peabody, Herron Hill, Latimer, South and Connelley went home with City Junior League victories.

The W. P. I. A. L. teams also played their usual Tuesday schedule of games.

Outstanding of the non-league scholastic battles was the victory of Scott High, of North Braddock, over Shady Side Academy, 28-15; Pittsburgh Catholics' win over Millvale, 27-2, and the Duquesne Freshmen's triumph over Bellevue, 40-18.

The undefeated Aliquippa High School girls' team added Ellwood City to its list of victims, defeating the Ellwood lassies 23 to 18 in a nip and tuck game at Aliquippa. A burst of scoring in the final period enabled the victors to break a tie which had existed from the first quarter, to win. Capt. Mae Robinson, of Aliquippa, starred.

BAKER REJOINS PANTHERS

The unusual situation of a co-captain of a Panther basketball team fighting for a berth as a regular prevails at Pitt today as Eddie Baker works out with Doc Carlson's floormen.

Eddie, "fired" when he elected a Pacific Coast football trip over early basketball warfare and reinstated when the Panther coach did an about face in attitude, returned to the squad yesterday. Baker found no gaping hole to fill with his fine guarding, but found a fight on his hands in attempting to wrest his old position from Donald Smith, one of the best guards ever to perform for the Blue and Gold.

PITT SWIM TONIGHT

Patrick J. Corr, swimming coach of the Pitt Panthers, will trot out his 1931 natators for the public eye tonight for the first time. Their opponent will be Duquesne Library at the Trees Gym Pool. It will be open to the public.

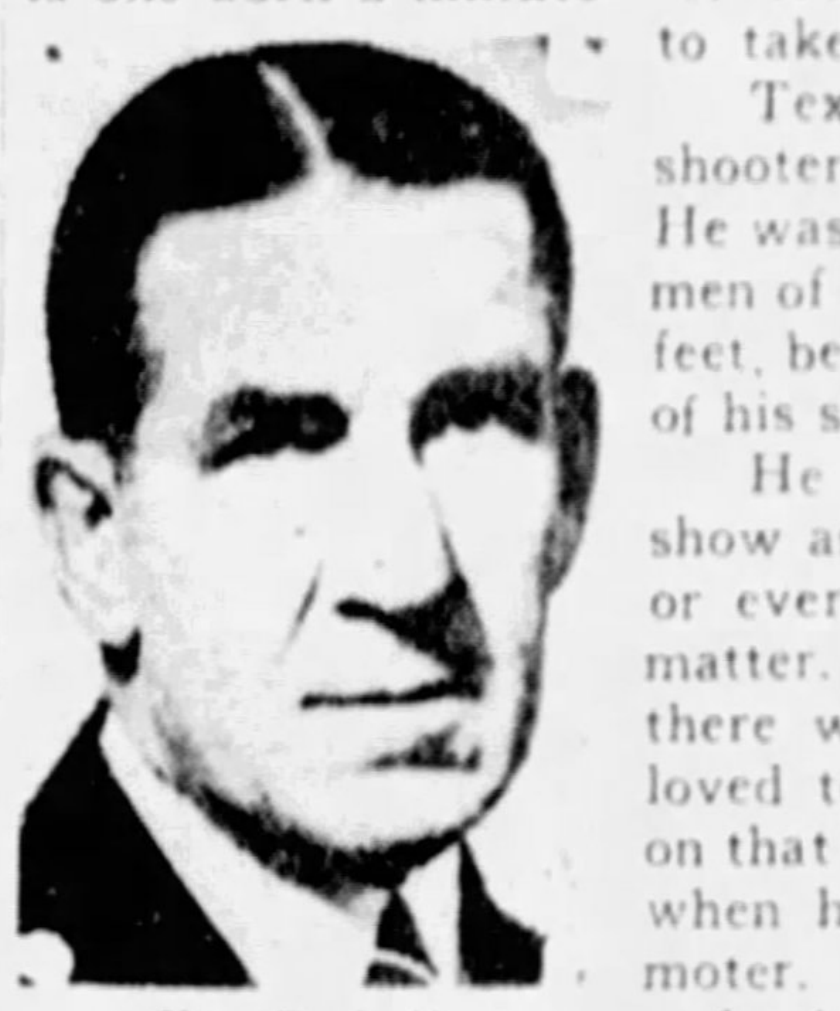
BUILDING UP BIG FIGHTS

—By IKE DORGAN

The Man Behind the Ballyhoo for the Late Tex Rickard's Fistic Extravaganzas.

CHAPTER III.

It never was my notion to tell Tex Rickard how to run his shows. He was a past master at that. He had the showman's born instinct. He didn't trade on Barnum's theory that there is one born a minute" or Wilson Miznert's: "There are two to take him."



Jim Corbett.

Tex played fair. He was a square shooter. He liked to put on big shows. He was tickled pink when the important men of the country came crawling to his feet, begging for the choice seats at one of his shindigs. He made 'em like it.

He knew how to put on a boxing show as it never had been done before, or ever will be put on again, for that matter. He'll have his imitators, but there was only one "director," as he loved to style himself. He was stuck on that word "director." He dug it up when he began to hate the word promoter. He actually put on the high hat and asked the writers to call him a "director."

It didn't make much difference one way or the other. He didn't get flustered on a big night. He had great faith in his working crew and his own luck. With their help he established a reputation for providing the exact seat you paid for. That was one of his hobbies, and the claim jumpers didn't dare usurp any seat that didn't belong to them. Tex had had these interlopers tossed out into the middle of the car tracks so often when he was first showing New York how to run a boxing show that in the end you couldn't have paid a tough guy to walk down near the ring and plant himself in an empty seat. They knew better, and they knew that Tex knew they knew better.

SECRET OF SUCCESS

Tex had Johnny Broderick and Jack Smith, of the New York strong arm squad, to thank for the smoothness with which any of his shows went off. They made the roughnecks eat out of their hands and like it. It never had been done before. Insisting on order and maintaining it was one of the secrets of Tex Rickard's success. He found that the blue bloods and the decent element appreciated his efforts. Tom Webster, the English cartoonist, often said that he came all the way from England to see Dempsey fight, got in a little late that night, but walked right into his empty seat. That was control. That was showmanship with an iron bound guarantee. After all, it was the magnet which first attracted his "nice people" to Rickard, although I must say that Jimmy Coffroth, the California promoter for whom I worked, started that you-get-your-seat policy long before Rickard ever was heard of.

As I said before, it was no easy task to follow Tex as his official publicity man because of his penchant for spilling the frijoles before this ever faithful man Friday got his first crack at the story.

JEFFRIES FIRST HERO

Then, too, Tex would let a story break before a big bout just to get a chuckle. All the time he knew that the outside story was attracting attention to his wares, although I must say, as his publicity man, it was heart-breaking to see your fight publicity crowded off the sports pages by Rickard's latest yarn.

I don't know how Tex Rickard was first attracted to fighters or the fight game. Jim Jeffries seemed to be his original hero, although the world knows that his actual entry into the game was the promotion of the Battling Nelson and Joe Gans bout at Goldfield, Nev.

For my part, boxing and boxers attracted me long before Rickard gained fame as a promoter.

With Tom, my brother, later to become famous as Tad, the cartoonist and boxing authority, lay snuggled in an old butcher cart in old man Corbett's livery stable in Hayes valley, San Francisco, awaiting the returns of the fight between Jim Corbett and John L. Sullivan at New Orleans. We fell asleep and got none of the hot stuff that came over a special telegraph wire that had been installed in the stable.

RECALLING JIM CORBETT

To Tad and myself, there was nobody like Jim Corbett. Perhaps the two thrills that stand out in my memory with regard to Corbett were when he once winked at Tad, and another time when I held his silk hat, cutaway coat and silver-headed cane while he batted out "flies" for the boys in an empty lot.

Tad's great moment came as he sat on our front steps munching an apple. He secretly admired the dapper Corbett, although he never had spoken to him. Tad sat there wondering what it was all about and to what good or bad end he might come. He heard footsteps, and looking up, saw Corbett, young, handsome and as straight as a bean pole, walking down the street. A smart-looking bulldog tugged at a leash as he tried to pull Corbett along at a faster clip.

As Corbett passed Tad, Jim turned, and, looking him right in the eyes, winked. Jim Corbett probably doesn't know to this minute that the wink sealed the bond of friendship that existed between himself and Tad right up to the last. Corbett was the last person in the world that Tad called on the telephone a few days before he died and to that day Tad never forgot that the great Jim Corbett had condescended to wink at him years before. At the time, Tom dashed into the house and yelled:

"Ma, ma. What do you think? Jim Corbett winked at me."

A BOYHOOD THRILL

My big time came one Sunday morning when we had just come from church. Jim was a clerk in a San Francisco bank at the time, and what a dude. His fame as an amateur boxer was spreading like wildfire. I think he was one of the first men I ever saw under a high silk hat. Gosh, he looked the money! I can see him now as he swung along the street. His eye caught the gang in the lot. If there was anything Jim loved better than ice cream or pie, it was baseball. Corbett was cut out for a ballplayer and actually that is why he joined the Olympic Club in San Francisco. He was a corking player and the athletic committee wanted him on their ball team and invited Jim to join the club, never dreaming that he would turn out the heavyweight champion boxer of the world.

Just out of church, Corbett saw the crowd that fateful Sunday in my life. He edged in, and, when he saw some fellow flubbing fungo hits, Corbett walked up and said:

"Say, let me show you how to sock out those flies, will you?"

"Sure thing," said the fellow.

"Here, sonny, hold my coat will you? and, turning to me, he peeled off his cutaway vest, his silk hat and, of course, the silver-headed cane.

GENTLEMAN JIM AT PLAY

It is needless to say I broke right out in a rash of importance. The great hour of my life had come. Holding Jim Corbett's high silk hat and silver-headed cane! Oh, the delicious joy of it. Was any kid more proud? No, not even if Lindbergh were to ask some youngster to hold his helmet and flying goggles.

Everybody was all eyes as Corbett doffed his Sunday-go-to-meeting clothes. He batted those balls a mile. When he got through the nice "boiled" shirt was a wet rag, full of wrinkles and a sight to behold. Corbett didn't mind. He had put in a happy, healthy hour doing the thing that he loved best unless it was stuying some favorite blow of the Nonpareil, Jack Dempsey.

H. Ciuci Finishes In Dark, Gets 69 to Win

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., Jan. 14 (AP)—Henri Ciuci streaked home in 69 yesterday to win the Ft. Lauderdale open with a 213 just before they lit up the course with automobile lights so the rest of the boys could finish the 54-hole tournament.

The Bridgeport (Conn.) professional offered a 36 and a 33, the latter two under par for the back nine, to gain his 69, despite a brisk breeze over the flat open course of the Ft. Lauderdale Country Club.

Johnny Farrell, former national open champion, and Willie Klein, Wheatley Hills, L. I., were one stroke behind Ciuci with 214s.

OLDTIME RING STARS TO APPEAR

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

Another benefit boxing show is planned in Pittsburgh to aid the needy unemployed. It will be sponsored by Father James R. Cox of St. Patrick's Church, and the proceeds will be used to carry on the good work he has been doing for the unfortunates of the city this winter.

Father Cox

The scene and date of the show have not been definitely settled but a committee is working on the arrangements. It is tentatively planned to offer a program of star amateur bouts, with several other features thrown in, such as, possibly, a parade of former fistic notables of the city, in the ring before the main bout and a sparring exhibition or two by the oldtimers.

It is hoped to make this affair the most successful one of its kind to be staged in this locality. Buck Crouse, former middleweight boxer, who is identified with Father Cox in his relief work, will play a prominent part in the proceedings.

Between Rounds

Motor Square Garden is seeking an opponent for Johnny Datto for its next show one week from next Tuesday night and he has in mind staging a Buck McTier-an Paul Pirrone battle on February 2 or [illegible] if it can tie this pair together. Datto recently defeated Jackie Rodgers at the Garden.

Emmett Rocco, Youngstown heavyweight who has beaten Tom Heeney and George Panka in two recent battles here, boxes Arthur DeKuh at Wichita, Kan., January 26 and Frankie Wine at Oklahoma City February 3.

Mose Butch, southpaw bantamweight socker, of Oakland, who boxes Johnny Warner, of Clairton, in one of the two 10-rounders at the Moose Temple Friday night, has knocked out four of his last five opponents, but he meets a clever foe in Warner and one who is likely to give him plenty of trouble. Young Buds, of Charleroi, and Jimmy Kelly, of the North Side, box the other 10-rounder.

A brother act will feature the weekly boxing show in the McKeesport ring tomorrow night, Benny McArthur's meeting Billy Rowe of Cincinnati in the 10-round main bout and Buddy McArthur's taking on Paul Rinsky of Charleroi in the second bout. Teddy Welch meets Larry Kaufman in the semi-final of eight rounds and Jimmy Lloyd, McKeesport amateur, makes his professional debut against Jimmy Kellis in the opener.

Harry Bitman and Pete Nebo box the windup at the Arena in Philadelphia next Monday night. Ralph Lenny and Gaston LeCadre are in the 10-round semi-final. Lenny, by the way, also boxes Dick Landis in one of the six-round preliminaries to the Jimmy Slattery-King Levinsky bout at the Chicago Stadium tonight. Charley Retzlaff meets George Neron and Barney Ross opposes Henry Falegano in eight-rounders on the Chicago card, while Gary Leach boxed Mickey McFarland in a six-rounder and Billy Gladstone is paired with Charley Crocker for four rounds.

Herman Perlick tackles Buster Brown and Herman Perlick goes against Bobby Berns in 10-round bouts in Baltimore tonight.

Tunneys to Pay Another Visit To G. B. Shaw

NEW YORK, Jan. 14 (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Gene Tunney will go abroad late in January to visit George Bernard Shaw.

The former heavyweight boxing champion and the English author and critic are good friends and before his marriage Tunney spent a vacation abroad with the Briton.

GEMAS KNOCKED OUT

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Jan. 14 (AP.)—Cowboy Red Thaler, 175, Phoenix, Ariz., knocked out George Gemas, 185, Philadelphia, in the sixth round here last night.

JACKETS PLAY AT DETROIT TOMORROW

By CARL W. SPATTO.

The Yellow Jackets today are busy polishing up plays which they hope will enable them to polish off Detroit, Buffalo and Syracuse on the road trip which gets under way tonight.

The Olympics, who have been turned back three times in as many engagements, are to be met in Detroit tomorrow. Saturday the Jackets will oppose the Buffalo Bisons, International League leaders, on their Fort Erie (Ont.) rink and on Sunday the locals will tangle with the last-place Stars in Syracuse.

LAST DRILL TODAY

Today's drill, therefore, is the last of any consequence in which the Schooley skaters will be able to indulge until next week, and Coach Charles Reid is making the most of the opportunity.

The Jackets must win two of their three jousts in enemy territory if they are to do any advancing in the league standings, for London strengthened its hold on fifth place by defeating Buffalo on Tuesday. Roy D. Schooley, president and manager of the locals, is confident that his men will be able to turn the trick. He has full strength available for a road trip for the first time this season, and neither Detroit nor Syracuse has been able to make an impressive showing against the Jackets in previous engagements.

TWO TO GO

Full strength hardly expresses the present power of the Pittsburgh club, for the return to action of Center Mickey McGuire and Goalie Albie Cox puts the Jackets two men over the league's player limit. Goalie Bud Fisher has been returned to Schooley's Niagara Falls farm and one other Jacket will have to remain out of uniform. Schooley and Reid are having plenty of trouble in selecting the player most deserving of the unwelcome gift of idleness.

Charles (Happy) LaRoche, right wing, who was suspended early in the season, has been reinstated, Schooley announced today. LaRoche is to report to the Niagara Falls team.

CITY BOARD OF HEALTH
CITY HALL

September 23, 1930.

The American Cigar Company,

New York, New York.

Gentlemen:

Your very effective campaign in the newspapers against "spit-tipping" by some cigar manufacturers is decidely in the interest of the public health and in my opinion you are to be commended for this public service.

The use of the word "spit" forcibly calls attention to the evils of the "spit-tipping" methods and no other word could as effectively get over your message to the public.

Our health department is interested in those campaigns which tend to improve general health conditions and in our opinion your present campaign comes within this classification.

Therefore since I consider your campaign to be in the interest of public health since it directs attention to a bad sanitary condition in some cigar manufacturing plants, you have my permission to use this letter if my statement is of value to you.

Sincerely yours,
A. F. Adams
City Health Officer.

Every smoker, every wife whose husband smokes cigars, should read Dr. Adams' letter.

YOU MAY WELL ASK THIS QUESTION WHEN 56 IMPORTANT HEALTH OFFICIALS HAVE WRITTEN SO STRONGLY AGAINST THE EVILS OF SPIT OR SPIT-TIPPING.

Dr. Adams writes: "The use of the word 'spit' forcibly calls attention to the evils of the 'spit-tipping' methods."

The war against spit is a crusade of decency. Join it...Smoke Certified Cremo—a really wonderful smoke—mild—mellow—nut-sweet! Every leaf entering the clean, sunny Cremo factories is scientifically treated by methods recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture.

HUMBLE CUTS TEXAS OIL

HOUSTON, Tex., Jan. 14—(AP.)—Reductions in prices of Texas crude oil from 2 to 25 cents a barrel were posted by the Humble Oil and Refining Company today. The announcement said:

"The lower prices at which our competitors for some time have been and are purchasing, and producers are selling crude oil in certain areas has obliged the Humble company to change its posted prices."

The reduction by Humble presages similar reductions by other purchasing companies in the Oklahoma and Kansas fields.

Oil shares generally received the news calmly.

These Things Are Desired By Business

By B. C. FORBES

SOME THINGS business desires: [illegible]

[illegible]

Mr. Forbes

[illegible] especially of oil and wheat.

[illegible] barring of all Russian [illegible] and goods produced [illegible] under laws now [illegible] in the Soviet [illegible].

Modification of our anti-trust laws enacted when economic conditions were very different from today; this is widely recognized as supremely important.

Sensible tariff readjustments by the Tariff Commission and the President rather than by Congress.

Settlement of Muscle Shoals in favor of operation by business rather than by politicians.

Rigid economy by Congress to avoid drastic tax increases when income tax receipts from individuals and corporations fall off sharply this year.

Abatement of agitation against public utilities.

A return of normal buying by the public.

Recovery in basic commodity prices to more profitable levels.

An upward trend, but not a sensational rise in the security markets.

A mild winter to facilitate coping with unemployment.

"WE HAVE had another general liquidation which the newspapers call a financial crisis. So far as I can see, it results chiefly from want of honesty and want of judgment. The country is richer than ever, but the public distrusts its financiers.

"No one can say how long the depression will last, but meanwhile we shall probably work harder and better for cleaning out the decay."

That was not written yesterday, but was written in 1884 by the celebrated Henry Adams.

Here is another comment made by him in 1890 on the communism of [illegible] tribes he was then visiting in the South Seas:

"Communism always victimizes the strong. Property victimizes the weak."

PETER J. BRADY, president of the Federation Bank and Trust Company, New York's outstanding labor bank, and a member of the Federal Reserve System, thinks it is high time the public was assured that, notwithstanding what has happened, the banking situation in New York is entirely sound. He writes this column in part:

"Notwithstanding the few banks chartered by the state which have gone bad—due entirely to mismanagement—the Banking Department of the State of New York gives stricter supervision and has more rigid rules and regulations for the guidance of banks and bankers than the control exercised by the Comptroller of Currency over national banks or by the Federal Reserve System over its member banks.

"It is not yet too late for some officials of the State Banking Department, Federal Reserve System or outstanding financiers to give the people at large assurance from an authoritative and authentic source that banking, as a whole, is in a good condition, especially when we consider the serious way in which all other kinds of business have been affected, confused and even demoralized."

Leading bankers now assure me that they are no longer worried over banking conditions in New York. They favor certain bank law reforms, including some of those recently advocated by State Banking Superintendent Broderick, but they are adverse to hasty action. They urge:

"Let all talk about banking conditions die down for the present."

BUSINESS SUCCESS is achieved by doing the right thing at the right time. William Robert Wilson, head of Reo, tells me that by bringing out attractive new models in the fall they have been able to increase their sales very substantially over a year ago despite the falling-off reported by the motor industry as a whole. November's gain was 39 per cent and December's returns promise to be equally gratifying.

"Beyond depression lies prosperity" is the slogan coined by William J. McAneeny, who rose from a street car conductor to president of the Hudson Motor Car Company.

TOOL EXPORT DROP HALTED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Although exports of agricultural implements from the United States during November, 1930, declined 27 per cent from November, 1929, it is by no means as serious as in October, when the shipments were 67 per cent lower than during October, 1929, George B. Bell, chief of the Agricultural Implements Division, Commerce Department, reports.

Exports during the month were valued at $6,171,635, as compared with $8,345,725 in November, 1929. The decline during November was due principally to a falling off in exports of tillage implements and wheel tractors. In the former group plows, harrows, cultivators and drills and seeders declined considerably, while all classes of wheel tractors decreased. Track-laying tractors, while showing a decrease in the number shipped during the month, recorded a slight gain in value, indicating that larger types were more in demand than a year ago.

Cattle on Feed Shows Decrease

Cattle on feed for market in 11 corn belt states are 10 per cent smaller than January 1, a year ago, according to the Department of Agriculture. The number this year is the smallest since 1921 and probably the smallest since 1916.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Cotton opened steady today at a decline of 1 point to an advance of 2 points. The offerings were light, however, and the market held fairly steady. March contracts sold off to 10.11c and July to 10.55c under the early pressure, with the active months ruling about net unchanged to 3 points lower at the end of the first half hour. The report of the Census Bureau showed domestic consumption of 406,207 bales for December compared with 452,685 for the same month in 1929.

Offerings became very light after the early selling had run its course and the market was steadier late in the morning on a little trade buying and covering. New January sold up from 9.95c to 10.00c, while May advanced from 10.36c to 10.43c, with the market showing net advances of about 2 to 8 points at midday.

LIVERPOOL, Jan. 14.—Cotton, spot, moderate business done, prices higher. American strict good middling, $6.14; good middling, $5.79; strict middling, $5.54; middling, $5.39; strict low middling, $5.24; low middling, $4.94; strict good ordinary, $4.59; good ordinary, $3.99. Sales, 5,000 bales, including 3,500 American. Receipts, 2,000, American, 1,700. Futures closed quiet and steady: January, $5.20; March, $5.26; May, $5.36; July, $5.46; October, $5.55; December, $5.63.

Sugar Market.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Raw sugar was unchanged early today, but offerings were quite liberal, with both Cuban and duty free sugars available at last paid prices of $3.40, but buyers showed no interest and no sales were reported.

Refined was quiet, with moderate withdrawals against old orders, but no new business reported. Prices were unchanged at $4.70 for fine granulated.

NEW, OLD IDEAS OF BUSINESS DISAGREE

So-Called Progressives Advocate Machinery for Voluntary Trade Control

NEW York, Jan. 14.—Behind the present temporary business depression is a fundamental clash between old and new ideas of business management.

The so-called progressive advocate new machinery for voluntary social control of business—for means of better co-ordination and co-operation among private organizations. They attack the spirit of separatism, particularism, and anarchy, which results from competition running riot.

And yet, on the other hand, the past progress of American business has been made along lines of individualism and what economists call laissez-faire, which entails freedom from regulation.

Mr. Rukeyser.

ADVOCATE COUNCIL

Some of the newer economists, including Eugene Agger, of Rutgers University, whose views were recently presented in this column, advocated a supreme economic council, more or less patterned after the War Industries Board, of which Bernard M. Baruch was chairman during Woodrow Wilson's second administration. Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors, has advocated a similar plan.

In view of frequent references to the war-time experience under Mr. Baruch, I asked Mr. Baruch for his views.

His reply makes a plea for old-fashioned American individualism, and for Emersonian self-reliance, as opposed to new-fangled ideas for acting as a nurse to business men.

POWER LACKING

He says:

"The War Industries Board had the power to enforce its views and plans. This power was born of the needs of the war. What was not granted by Congress lay within the presidency and the powers of the government to make such enforcements as were necessary to protect the life of the nation.

"Many industries have endeavored to copy the direction of affairs in peace time as it was handled in the war. This is quite impossible because no one has the power to enforce decisions or plans. There is a great hue and cry for dictatorship of tsars of industry, but no one is willing to confer that power upon any individual. The Sherman Anti-Trust Law would prevent that, anyway.

"No, I do not think it is possible to do in peace time what can be done in war. We must learn to take care of ourselves; we must learn to be more self-reliant and not cry unto heaven for mother government or some power superior to ourselves for help when self-government is needed."

Hardware Trade Placing Larger Orders

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Following the usual post-holiday lull in buying, the hardware trade of the country is placing somewhat larger orders than in recent weeks. The increased activity is apparent in most of the important market centers, Hardware Age says in its weekly market summary, and in most instances some improvement in general conditions has been reflected by the expansion of sales volume. One of the most encouraging signs of betterment in basic conditions is that many workers are resuming their jobs in several of the largest industrial centers.

Another indication of the better tone now prevailing in the hardware industry is the good volume of business that is being booked in future orders for spring merchandise.

A. T. T. EARNED $10.40 SHARE

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—The American Telephone and Telegraph Company earned approximately $10.40 a share in 1930, said Walter S. Gifford, president, in a statement today accompanying dividend checks to stockholders. The statement said:

"While final figures in respect of the financial results of the company for 1930 are not yet available, preliminary summaries indicate earnings of approximately $10.40 per share for the year. A net gain of 125,000 telephones added to the Bell system during the year was much below normal growth, but not unfavorable when compared with the level of general industrial activity."

DULL TRADING ON LOCAL MARKET

Public Interest Dries Up As Traders Continue to Await Cue From New York

Trading was extremely dull at the start of business on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today. Interest in the market seemed to have dried up following the moderate activity which marked the sessions of last week.

The initial trading consisted of only a few shares of the Arkansas Gas issues, the preferred selling in small lots at 7 and 6¾, and the common at 6. Less than 200 shares comprised the entire opening turnover.

The apparent inclination of the traders to stand off and await more definite developments on the New York exchange was more pronounced today than ever. The "big board" movement was narrow and the first hour's trading witnessed a slight recession followed by a firming up in the big leaders.

ANTI-TRUST OIL SUIT ARGUED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—One of the biggest anti-trust suits in years was argued before the Supreme Court today in the appeal of 49 oil companies from a lower court decision declaring their pooling plan of "cracked gasoline" patents a violation of the Sherman law.

The government charges that the primary defendants—Standard Oil of Indiana, Texas Company, Gasoline Products Company and Standard Oil Company of New Jersey—with "seeking to restrain and monopolize interstate and foreign commerce in gasoline and other petroleum products, and to realize huge profits by extorting from all manufacturers of "cracked gasoline" large sums in the guise of royalties.

Along with the "primary" defendants, 45 other corporations are named in the order issued by a three-judge Federal Court in Chicago.

Receiver Appointed For Schulte-United

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—(AP.)—A receiver was appointed today by Federal Judge F. G. Caffey for Schulte-United, Inc., a subsidiary of the Schulte Cigar Stores group and controlling a chain of 97 stores dealing in men's and women's clothing.

Three creditors with aggregate claims of about $3,000, filed a petition asking that the corporation be put into bankruptcy. Robert T. Levis, attorney for Schulte-United 50-cent to $1 Stores, Inc., joined in the request and the receiver was named without opposition after counsel for Schulte-United, Inc., said it was in need of a receivership to conserve assets for the benefit of creditors and stockholders. The Irving Trust Company was named receiver.

Price of Gasoline Raised by Texas

BOSTON, Jan. 14.—Texas Corporation has advanced tank wagon price of gasoline one cent per gallon in New England and New York. The new Boston price is 12½ cents exclusive of the state tax. Service station price, tax excluded, is unchanged at 13½ cents.

Oil Trade Leads in December Dividends

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Cash dividend payments made by domestic corporations in December totaled $536,313,416 against $223,175,079 in November, Standard Statistics Company reports. The petroleum division led the list with disbursements of $100,698,136.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

OWENS-ILLINOIS PURCHASE

The plant and machinery at Brackenridge, Pa., of the Atlantic Bottle Company, including inventory and supplies, have been purchased by the Owens-Illinois Glass Company. The acquisition of the Atlantic properties by Owens-Illinois is the result of negotiations which have been under way for some time past. The Atlantic Bottle Company, exclusive manufacturer of milk bottles, is one of the oldest companies in the glass bottle industry. Although never classed as one of the big producers, their product has been well established with their distribution and sales effort limited largely to the Atlantic Coast States.

ACQUIRES UTILITY PROPERTIES

American Commonwealths Power Corporation has acquired from International Utilities Corporation all gas and electric properties in Alberta, Saskatchewan, and British Columbia, which had earnings in 12 months ended November 30 of $2,204,176.

Copper Trade Burdened With Large Stocks

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

STEPS HAVE BEEN taken to curtail the production of copper but the industry still has much to accomplish before it will be restored to a satisfactory operating basis. The business depression severely curtailed consumption of the metal and resulted in a precipitate decline in the price.

While output was materially reduced during the year, the decline did not keep pace with reductions in sales. As a result of this the United States Bureau of Mines has estimated that domestic stocks of refined copper at the end of 1930 were the largest on record.

Attempts to curtail production are being met with some success and may be expected to improve the industry's condition to a moderate extent in the near future. This has been indicated by stocks of blister copper which were lower at the end of 1930 than at the close of 1929. Blister copper is metal in a semi-finished state. Stocks of blister copper reflect a change in production more quickly than those of the completely refined metal.

Hangover from High Prices

MANY OF THE PRESENT troubles of the industry may be attributed to the maintenance of prices at excessive levels during 1929. In the early months of that year copper quotations soared to 24 cents a pound. They were stabilized at 18 cents from the middle of April, 1929, to April, 1930.

While this yielded the refineries handsome profits, its effect was to over-stimulate production and to lay the foundations for the present glut on the market. The pressure of slumping business and steadily mounting stocks finally resulted in a series of price declines which carried quotations down to 9½ cents a pound in October, 1930. A brief rally took place last November before the metal finally settled at its current level of 10 cents a pound.

Industry Badly Hurt

THE EXTENT OF THE blow dealt to the copper producers during the past year may be seen from the production statistics. Smelter production of copper from domestic ores in 1930 was about 1,375,000,000 pounds. This compared with 2,003,000,000 in 1929. It was the smallest output of any year since 1922 and showed a decline of 31 per cent. The total output of primary and secondary copper by refineries both from domestic and foreign sources of 2,480,000,000 pounds in 1930 was 19 per cent less than in 1929.

In spite of this drastic curtailment in operations, the refineries have estimated that at the end of 1930 about 667,000,000 pounds of refined copper were in stock. This was more than double the reserve of 306,000,000 pounds at the end of 1929.

Stocks at the end of 1929 were well over two and one-half times the amount on hand at the end of 1928.

Blister Stocks Reduced

IT IS ESTIMATED that stocks of blister copper at the smelters, in transit to refineries, and at refineries, and materials in process of refining were about 371,000,000 pounds on December 31, compared with 500,000,000 pounds at the end of 1929, a decrease of 129,000,000 pounds. This indicates that further declines in the output of refined copper will be shown early this year.

Just what form the commission's next action would take was the subject of considerable speculation today. Suspension of the Garden's license was regarded as a possibility. The solons were to meet today and some expression of their joint opinion of the situation was expected.

Although contracts for the Schmeling-Stribling bout failed to specify either time or place, experts heard that the third week in June had been selected as the time and that the site would be picked from a list of three cities—Jersey City, Detroit or, as a more remote possibility, Chicago.

GOB CHALLENGES DEMPSEY

BOSTON, Jan. 14 (INS). A fiercely-worded challenge to fight in the United States within the next six months was hurled [illegible] at Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion.

The following telegram was sent by Sharkey to the Madison Square Garden [illegible] at Hartford, Conn.:

"In view of your recent statement to the effect that you believe you can knock me out, I hereby challenge you to meet me in a bout to be staged in the United States within a period of six months.

"You have always claimed you regretted you failed to enlist for service when the United States entered the World War. If you are sincere in your present stand, I now offer you an opportunity to meet me in a bout which will be promoted to relieve the suffering of the unemployed and wounded veterans of the World War.

"It was my privilege to serve in the Navy at $30 a month for a period of four years, but I still feel I owe a duty to my fellow countrymen to do what I can to help them in the present national emergency.

"I realize that your recent attack on me was inspired and worded for you by those selfish interests who would thrust a Schmeling-Stribling bout on the city of Chicago.

"Tunney had his Heeney, and so I presume it is proper for Schmeling to have his Stribling.

"I await your answer to my challenge. I know that millions of unemployed and those boys who were wounded in real battles will also be interested in your reply."

November Rail Reports Show Better Control Of Expenses

November railroad results showed an increasing control of expenses. Gross was off more sharply than in the preceding months of the year but net operating income showed a smaller percentage drop than in the first 10 months of the year as compared with the corresponding periods of 1929. Gross for the first six months showed a drop of 12.27 per cent, for the four months from July to October, inclusive, a drop of 19.31 per cent, and for November, of 20.21 per cent. Net operating income showed an opposite trend declining 33.11 per cent for the first six months, 23.43 per cent for the four months from July to October inclusive and 23.26 per cent for November.

Operators who have been identified with the long side of the market in recent sessions are supporting their favorites on a scale during recessions. That buying has been responsible for halting the reactions which have been started when stocks have encountered increased profit taking from outsiders and pressure from the bear contingent. It is evident that a contest is in progress, and market observers are watching developments closely for an indication as to the outcome on which they will base their views concerning the near future.

Since December 31, 1930, when the price of New York Stock Exchange memberships touched the low point of the last several years at $186,000, there has been a sensational recovery in their price. On Saturday announcement was made that arrangements had been made for the transfer of a seat at $290,000, representing an increase of $104,000 in eight business days. Monday, reports were heard that arrangements virtually had been concluded for the transfer of a seat at $305,000. While official confirmation was lacking, the sharply rising trend in the seat market lent credibility to the reports.

Some close students of the market situation are still inclined to liken prevailing conditions to those which held forth in the speculative market through the early months of 1921 when we were emerging from the depths of the 1920 bear market. These observers are reconciled to a period of relative inactivity and narrow price swings over the next few months such as characterized the spring of 1921. It is pointed out that the market then, as now, enjoyed a fairly sharp upturn in the early part of January, then tapered off from the tops of the rallies and fell into the doldrums for a period of two or three months, in the course of which movements as measured by the averages were limited to a few points either way. If that part of market history is to repeat itself the speculative element is in for a period of rather slim pickings over the next month or two.

An indication of what the market will have to face in the way of earnings reports within the near future can be gleaned from the following estimates of fourth quarter results for 10 leading companies. U. S. Steel is expected to show $1.10 a share on its common stock, as compared with $3.88 in the same quarter of 1929. Bethlehem Steel's earnings are placed at 25 cents a share compared with $2.60 in the fourth quarter of 1929. Other estimates are compared with 1929 earnings as follows: Air Reduction, $1.40 against $2 in 1929; General Electric, 45 cents against 58 cents; General Motors, 30 cents against 53 cents; International Telephone, 30 cents against 42 cents; Paramount-Publix, $1.50 against $1.80; Radio Keith, 50 cents against 5 cents; Union Carbide, 80 cents against $1.23, and Westinghouse Electric, 80 cents against $2.82.

The price of steel scrap is usually a reliable barometer of the course of the steel business, and the recent advance of 50 cents a ton in the price of heavy melting steel scrap is said to presage an increase in steel operations. It is generally believed that if the rate of operations exceeds 50 per cent of capacity for the entire industry at the end of February, this will be a sign of definite improvement in business.

Iron Products Cut By German Masters

ESSEN, Germany, Jan. 14.—German iron masters organizations today decided to reduce the prices of all iron products an average of 6 per cent as of January 1, 1931.

Steel Prices.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Steel unchanged.

MILL BACKLOGS INCREASED

NEW YORK, Jan. 14. The Iron Age in its weekly summary of the iron and steel trade tomorrow will say:

Pipe lines, public works, rail contracts and tin plate business have added materially to mill backlogs and steel production has made another gain, but no broad upturn in demand has yet developed. Inventory replenishment, which was counted on to stimulate the market generally, has thus far failed to bring out a notable increase in specifications, releases from the rank and file of manufacturing consumers and distributors being in disappointing volume.

The industry is not alarmed because of the slow pickup in general demand, believing that acceleration will follow the accumulation of large tonnage business. In this connection particular encouragement is afforded by the placing during the week of 301,500 tons of rails, 130,000 tons of line pipe, 50,000 tons for ships and barges and 200,000 base boxes of tin plate.

Raw steel output for the country at large, 41 per cent a week ago, is now close to 44 per cent of capacity, and the rate of the Steel Corporation is estimated at two or three points above the general average. Two banked steel works blast furnaces have resumed production in Alabama and several have gone into blast in the valleys.

Improvement in demand and production has given a better tone to steel prices.

Among the primary materials, scrap shows growing strength, although actual price advances during the week have been few. Line pipe buying for the year has opened up in a big way.

The Iron Age composite price for finished steel has advanced to 2.142c from 2.121c a pound, where it had held for five weeks. Pig iron is unchanged at $15.90 and heavy melting scrap at $11.33 a ton.

A. P. I. Oil Figures Gain During Week

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Domestic crude oil production in the week ended January 10 averaged 2,084,900 barrels daily, an increase of 2,800 barrels over the preceding week, but 604,350 barrels below the average in the like week in 1930, the American Petroleum Institute reports.

Gasoline stocks declined 197,000 barrels to 39,583,000 barrels.

TIGER HEART -:- By Robert Terry Shannon

Connie Indifferent About Duke's Profession

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Connie Calvert, rich society girl, shares her home and fortune with her newly found half-sister, Kitty, whom she discovers living in poverty. Kitty falls in love with Jim Tracy, Connie's former fiance with whom she had broken her engagement when she learned he was a fortune hunter. She now fears for Kitty and calls upon Duke Garson, Kitty's underworld friend, to use his influence. Duke refuses to interfere. He tells Connie he is interested in her. Connie, fascinated by Duke, is disappointed to learn he is an adviser to the underworld. She sees him talking to Higgins, the butler. Later, Duke explains that Higgins informed him of her mother's carelessness with her pearls. Connie realizes she loves Duke. Kitty and Jim announce their engagement.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

Connie's protest of being left alone with Garson seemed to amuse Kitty, who missed its significance. Indeed, if she thought anything it was just a joke.

"Honest, I believe you are blushing, Connie," she teased her. "Gee, I wish you two could feel as happy as I do." She stepped to the edge of the veranda and looked out over the sweeping country silvered in moonlight. "What a night! The country does something to me—it makes me feel so alive. I'll sleep like a log tonight, and tomorrow I'll see Jim. No more Tenth avenue! What a break for me—what a break!"

There was no escape for Connie; she had to face Duke Garson, and face him now that he had grasped the meaning of her involuntary outcry of being left alone with him—in his eyes she had seen it, his realization that she was so strongly, so dangerously affected by his close presence.

Reviews Past

A sense of unreality engulfed her; the impact of this new sensation made everything—all life—feel like a dream. In rapid, disorganized review the recent topsy-turvey events spread through her mind. The series was startling: the discovery that she had a half-sister, the reclaiming of Kitty from the depths of Tenth avenue and her installation here, the broken engagement with Jim and, amazingly, the quick flowering affair between Kitty and Jim.

And now overshadowing all her own upsetting emotion for Duke Garson. The smooth inertia and her past appeared done with forever—events one after the other concentrated in time beat upon her with vigorous rapidity, until at last, now, their culmination left her shaking, trembling like a tree in the wind.

Garson looked at her steadily, his dark eyes speculative as he spoke.

"Come here," he said softly.

He retreated to the furthermost darkened corner of the veranda where there was a long, upholstered wicker seat. Connie struggled eternally to refuse, but her will weakened and she followed him.

"Sit down."

She obeyed and he dropped down beside her.

"Let's get this all straight, now—you're not yourself. Tell me what's the trouble."

"I don't know," she said, and her voice, even to her own ears, sounded strange.

"I know a great deal more about men than I do about women," he said. "What might be going on in your mind is pretty much of a mystery to me—but I'm wondering if you are foolish enough to give room to any lingering, silly jealousy on account of Kitty and Tracy?"

"No; you know that's not true," she told him.

"And you're worried or excited over what I told you about that weak-kneed butler, Higgins?"

Defends Self

"I forgot all about him—"

"Then what is it that has changed you?"

She felt, she knew, that Duke Garson was aware of the malady of her senses that drew her emotion toward him. Previously, she had seen his eyes light with recognition—she thought she had—and now he affected puzzled ignorance. Surely, she imagined, a man must know it when a girl begins to care for him. Could such things, ever, be concealed? There were byways of human affections, quirks and turns and twists that eluded her understanding—perhaps, after all, Garson had not fathomed her feelings. But to sit beside him here in the dusky light of a summer night made her tremulous all over; she was, positively, as silly as Kitty, yet she had not the openness or desire that could easily give frank expression to what she felt. Her whole instinct perversely was to conceal, to fight against and refuse to acknowledge the magnetic attraction that vibrated through her dangerously.

"I suppose I'm just nervous," she defended herself. "But let's not talk about me; tell me what you think about Kitty and Jim. Don't you think—"

"Why should either of us bother to think about them?" he asked. "They'll find their way right enough. After all, they are fairly simple. You and I—we are different—we are complex creatures. Haven't you felt that we are similar—that we belong, somehow mysteriously, to a world into which neither of them could ever enter?"

Connie Satisfied

"I felt something — I don't know what it was," Connie admitted.

"When I was telling you today about the things I've done and the crude and vicious men I've associated with—it wasn't easy for me. The life I have lived is something like a difficult problem in higher mathematics—only a person with a certain kind of mind could see the correct solution of it all. I was afraid that you might get me all wrong, but I simply had to tell you. It's not my habit to talk so much about myself. Tell me, now that you know what I have been and am, has it set me back any with you; has it put me outside the pale?"

Connie's voice was almost a whisper. "No."

"I bear all the appearances of evil, but I want you to understand—"

She looked up at him, her eyes luminous with fear.

"What do I care about the kind of life you led?" she demanded. "We're here together now—call it coincidence, a miracle, if you like. I just know that all I can see and feel about you is right here before me. You are YOU! And I—I—"

Her voice broke and she was unable to finish.

DAILY TRUE STORY — The Dotted Line

"Make the old Geezer sign on the dotted line, Kit."

Katherine Morley looked up at Gene Ranlett and slowly lowered one eyelid.

"That's all right — only don't let him make a lot of promises—you can't cash promises. Old Carlin is a slick business man," Gene reminded her.

"The easiest sucker is a man whose head is so full of business that when he gets ready to fall for a pretty face he forgets everything else—he'll sign anything I hand him after I do a little petting."

"Who wouldn't?" Gene answered, with a laugh.

He looked around. They were alone in the reference room of the Carlin Publishing house.

Gene kissed Katherine Morley. She clung to him for a moment.

There was a slight noise. They sprang apart and looked around.

"Thought I heard something," Katherine murmured.

"Outer office, probably," he answered, and crossed and opened the door.

"Some of the cattle coming in," he told her.

Katherine grinned at this.

Gene Ranlett was a salesman for the company, one of many. He had a fair territory and made a good income. But he never intended to work hard all his days. He jokingly called the clerks and others, who toiled daily in the big main office, "cattle."

When Gene became acquainted with Katherine Morley, well enough acquainted to realize that while she had fallen hard for him on the level, she was just naturally a gold-digger, he saw prospects of big money.

And when he met John Carlin at a theater one evening when Katherine was with him, he had a hunch that the money would be forthcoming from Carlin—much and easily.

"This is my cousin, Miss Morley, from Nebraska," was the way Gene introduced Katherine to Mr. Carlin.

And Kit Morley was too wise a little dame to even bat an eyelash over this, although she had never been west of the Hudson to any great extent, and her birthplace was up in the wilds abutting the Bronx Parkway.

Ranlett Plans

Mr. Carlin had been impressed with Katherine's beauty. This was not unusual. Grave and sedate men galore had been impressed with her beauty. They chatted for a while and went to their seats in the theater.

Gene wasn't following the play at all. Afterwards, in a "place" where the food was good and the drinks fair, Katherine said, "What's up your sleeve, Big Boy?"

"Might be something good, Kit."

Gene Ranlett fixed it. He asked John Carlin if he could find some sort of a position for his cousin from Nebraska. He said that she had come on because her people out there had died. He also said: "Come to think of it, Mr. Carlin, you saw her the other night—when I had taken her to a theater."

There was more talk, and Katherine Morley was given a position with the Carlin concern.

Maud Sutton, private secretary to Mr. Carlin, was at first amazed, then angry and finally suspicious of the way that the new girl, Miss Morley, came to Mr. Carlin personally for instruction.

Maud Sutton was 30. She had worked for John Carlin for 12 years. During the last six of these years she had secretly been in love with him. He treated her beautifully, like a daughter — too much like a daughter, Maud realized. He made her generous presents, sent her on trans-Atlantic vacations and was otherwise thoughtful of her comforts and happiness.

John Carlin was 45. He had regarded himself as an old man for some years, and as absolutely immune from feminine charms. Few suspected that beneath his austere exterior, adopted years ago for business purposes, he was a warm-hearted, lonesome gentleman.

By the time Gene Ranlett was back from his third trip Katherine had reported that John Carlin wanted to marry her and that she was pretending to hang off.

Overhears Plot

Maud Sutton saw the way things were drifting. She knew with woman's unfailing intuition that Katherine Morley was working there solely to capture John Carlin, but Maud didn't know just how to prevent it.

She had been in early that morning, had seen Gene sneak into the reference room with Katherine, and had gone to the little stationery supply room where she could listen.

"Make the Old Geezer sign on the dotted line," she had heard plainly, and a great deal more. And, during a sudden silence, she had opened the door a crack and seen the kiss. It was the clicking of this door catch that Gene and Katherine had heard.

She couldn't go and tell Mr. Carlin. It was her word against another, and when a man loses his head over a clever scheming little devil of a beauty, what will save him? Not words, Maud knew.

"You really ought to go to England yourself this time, Mr. Carlin," Maud told him, when a matter came up about securing the next books of three noted English authors.

"Oh, no—you can do quite as well—you can meet them and there is my guarantee. If they refuse you they would surely refuse me—besides, I have other plans. I may—er—make a short trip, pleasure trip — haven't fixed the date."

Then came the day, just at closing hour, when Maud overheard Katherine telling Carlin that her lawyer was there. Maud put on her things, but found a few errands to do in her tiny cubicle of an office and loitered long enough to hear some of the talk and to see that Carlin signed a paper.

Early next morning Maud hired a detective. It was her plan to try and get the goods on Gene and Katherine and then give Carlin the evidence.

Two days later Maud's detective reported that they had made plans to go abroad.

"Find out the exact sailing date and hour," Maud ordered. When he learned this she would see that John Carlin learned of it in time to go to the boat and convince himself.

But her next report was amazing, so amazing that she went that night to an uptown hotel and sent up word that an agent of a certain trans-Atlantic line wished to see Mr. and Mrs. Tierson.

She confronted Katherine and Gene.

"What is the idea, Miss Sutton?" Gene asked.

"I'm going on a honeymoon soon, and my cousin came to wish me luck. He had to go back on the road tomorrow," the nimble-witted Katherine explained.

"The idea is for you to sign on the dotted line, just as you made the Old Geezer sign," Maud said, coldly.

She handed over a paper. The purport of this paper was an admission that Katherine Morley and Gene Ranlett had just been married in Jersey City, that the stocks and bonds given to Katherine had been turned into cash, that they were planning to go abroad, but that now they would turn back all of this money.

"You must be crazy—with all this money at hand would I give it up?" Gene said. "I'll throw you out of the window and say that you jumped!"

Return Money

"And you'll have to jump after me or be arrested when you open the door on my detective," Maud said.

"Cheap bluff," snarled Katherine, opening the door.

Maud's detective walked in.

They signed on the dotted line and turned the money over.

John Carlin found the confession and money on his desk next day, with Maud Sutton's personal card. He called her in. He asked for an explanation and he got it.

"But why did you do it, Maud?" he asked.

"Because I didn't know you could be got, but when I found that you could, I decided to do the getting.

"You are going to England, just as I ordered," he said, "only I am going with you, my dear."

"After we have signed on the dotted line," Maud suggested, sweetly.

"Dotted line—what do—"

"The marriage register," she explained.

They signed, the very next day.

According to "Variety," negotiations were started for Al Capone to appear in a gangster picture built around his past and present activities. Al says it ain't so.

However, Hollywood would be able to show him crimes he never knew existed.

* * *

A crime-doesn't-pay angle was supposed to have overcome the objections to the Hays' morality squad to this commercial candor.

The point, however, was just a little weakened by Mr. Capone's alleged agreement to turn over his $200,000 salary to an unemployment fund.

DOCTOR WINKLER.

Note—In order to counteract the Sinclair Lewis influence, and check so-called literature of despair, we have arranged with a number of Professors of English in various universities to dash off examples of hopeful phases of the joyous life all about us. The first of the series follows—

By J. Rappapourt Winkler

Somnambula College

"Quantum mutatus ab illo!" I exclaimed as I walked gingerly from the Chrysler Building into the street after consulting my family physician, who had warned me not to eat too much sugar.

"Quid faciendum?" I asked myself, smilingly. "Beg pardon!" I exclaimed, for I had absent-mindedly bumped into an old lady. She arose with difficulty, complaining of her knee, but she smiled, and I smiled at her, and went on my way.

I do not know what prompted me to turn about, and go back to this lady, and offer her a word of cheer.

Be that as it may, I approached the lady, but stopped suddenly. I was spellbound by the sweet expression on her face as she gazed upward, counting the windows of the Chrysler Building.

"Three thousand eight, three thousand nine, three thousand ten . . ." I heard her mumble to herself.

Suddenly two middle-aged men and a grown woman began tugging at her, trying to coax her away into a waiting limousine.

At first I was alarmed and hardly knew what to do.

Suddenly I decided I would invite an explanation.

"You see," said the old lady sweetly, "my grown children try to drag me away from here. I am 57 years of age, and my sons and daughters would rob me of the happiness I get from counting the windows of the Chrysler Building."

I offered her a stick of gum, and she went on talking.

"I stand for hours," she continued, "and gaze at those windows!"

"Why?" I asked.

"Well," she chortled, "I used to be a window washer, and there they are—300,000 windows and I do not have to wash a one of them! Ain't I lucky?"

Armstrong Acts

County Commissioner's Motion on Town Hall Site, Though Futile, is a Hopeful Sign.

After months of inaction County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong surprised the people yesterday by moving that the Duquesne Garden property be selected as the site for the Town Hall.

There was no second to the motion and the matter of the location still remains unsettled.

Armstrong's gesture, though futile, is a hopeful sign. It puts him on record as willing to go ahead with the Town Hall project. Still more important, it shows he is sensitive to public opinion.

Because of his evasions, his promises and general policy of delay in respect to the proposed municipal auditorium, he had been accused, and rightly, of dodging the question.

His motion yesterday was intended, he said, to show that he never dodged anything. So the criticism is at last getting under Mr. Armstrong's skin.

With Armstrong proposing the Duquesne Garden site, Commissioner Babcock the [illegible] property, and Commissioner McGovern the Logan armory—all in Oakland—it ought not to be difficult for the board to reach an agreement—that is, if it really cares to.

Musmanno's New Bill

Proposed Statewide Referendum to Determine How Communities Regard Blue Law Is Fair to All.

Representative M. A. Musmanno's new bill calling for a change in the law governing Sunday observance is fair to both sides in this controversial question. It permits communities in which the majority sentiment is in favor of a more liberal attitude to have the innocent amusements that are now outlawed. On the other hand communities which like the present situation will be permitted to retain it.

The status of every city, borough and township in respect to Sunday observance is to be ascertained, under the terms of the Musmanno bill, through a statewide referendum to be held next November.

Mr. Musmanno has subjected his measure, which is to be introduced in the Legislature next Monday, to various tests and is satisfied its constitutionality is beyond question.

It is the opinion of the Sun-Telegraph that a majority of the people of Pennsylvania are in favor of the enactment of some such law. The people of Allegheny County and Philadelphia are overwhelmingly in favor of it—and that is not opinion but fact, established by a careful poll of the voters.

Thank the Automobile!

Boom in the Sand and Gravel Business Is Another of the Blessings Attributable to Motor Cars.

What would we do without the automobile? Not a few of our blessings which, at first thought, seem to have no connection with motor cars, are attributable to them.

Take the sand and gravel business, which has come into the news with the announcement of Capt. William B. Rodgers, president of the McCrary-Rodgers Company, that he is in the market for 10 steel barges for the transportation of sand and gravel in the local rivers. The sand and gravel business is booming because of the demand for the material in highway construction.

Both the quantity and value of sand and gravel produced in the United States in 1929 showed gains over any preceding year, according to statistics just made available by the United States Bureau of Mines. In Pennsylvania last year nearly 5,000,000 tons of stone, slag and gravel and more than 1,500,000 tons of sand were used in state highway construction alone.

If you have pessimistic acquaintances who can see no bright spots in the business situation, tell them about sand and gravel.

Extorting Squires

Fayette County Cases Suggest Need for Change in System Governing Minor Judiciary.

Two cases reported by the State Department of Agriculture in which Fayette County justices of the peace and constables were found guilty of extortion indicate again the need for a change in the system under which our petty magistrates operate.

The culprits' plan was to accuse dog owners of some infraction of the dog law, then to impose fines and costs, which they pocketed. The department's announcement that it "is making every effort, through special investigations, to protect dog owners" from such extortion suggests suspicion that the practice is widespread.

So long as squires and constables personally profit by finding people guilty of petty offenses unscrupulous officials will be under temptation to prey on the unwary.

The United States Supreme Court held that a squire was ineligible to pass judgment in a case in which he would benefit by a conviction, but the decision is steadily ignored in Pennsylvania. Therein lies the explanation for such grafting as has been disclosed in the Fayette County cases.

Mrs. Hershman's Gift

Her Contribution to the Stephen C. Foster Fund Honors the Donor and Her Estimable Husband.

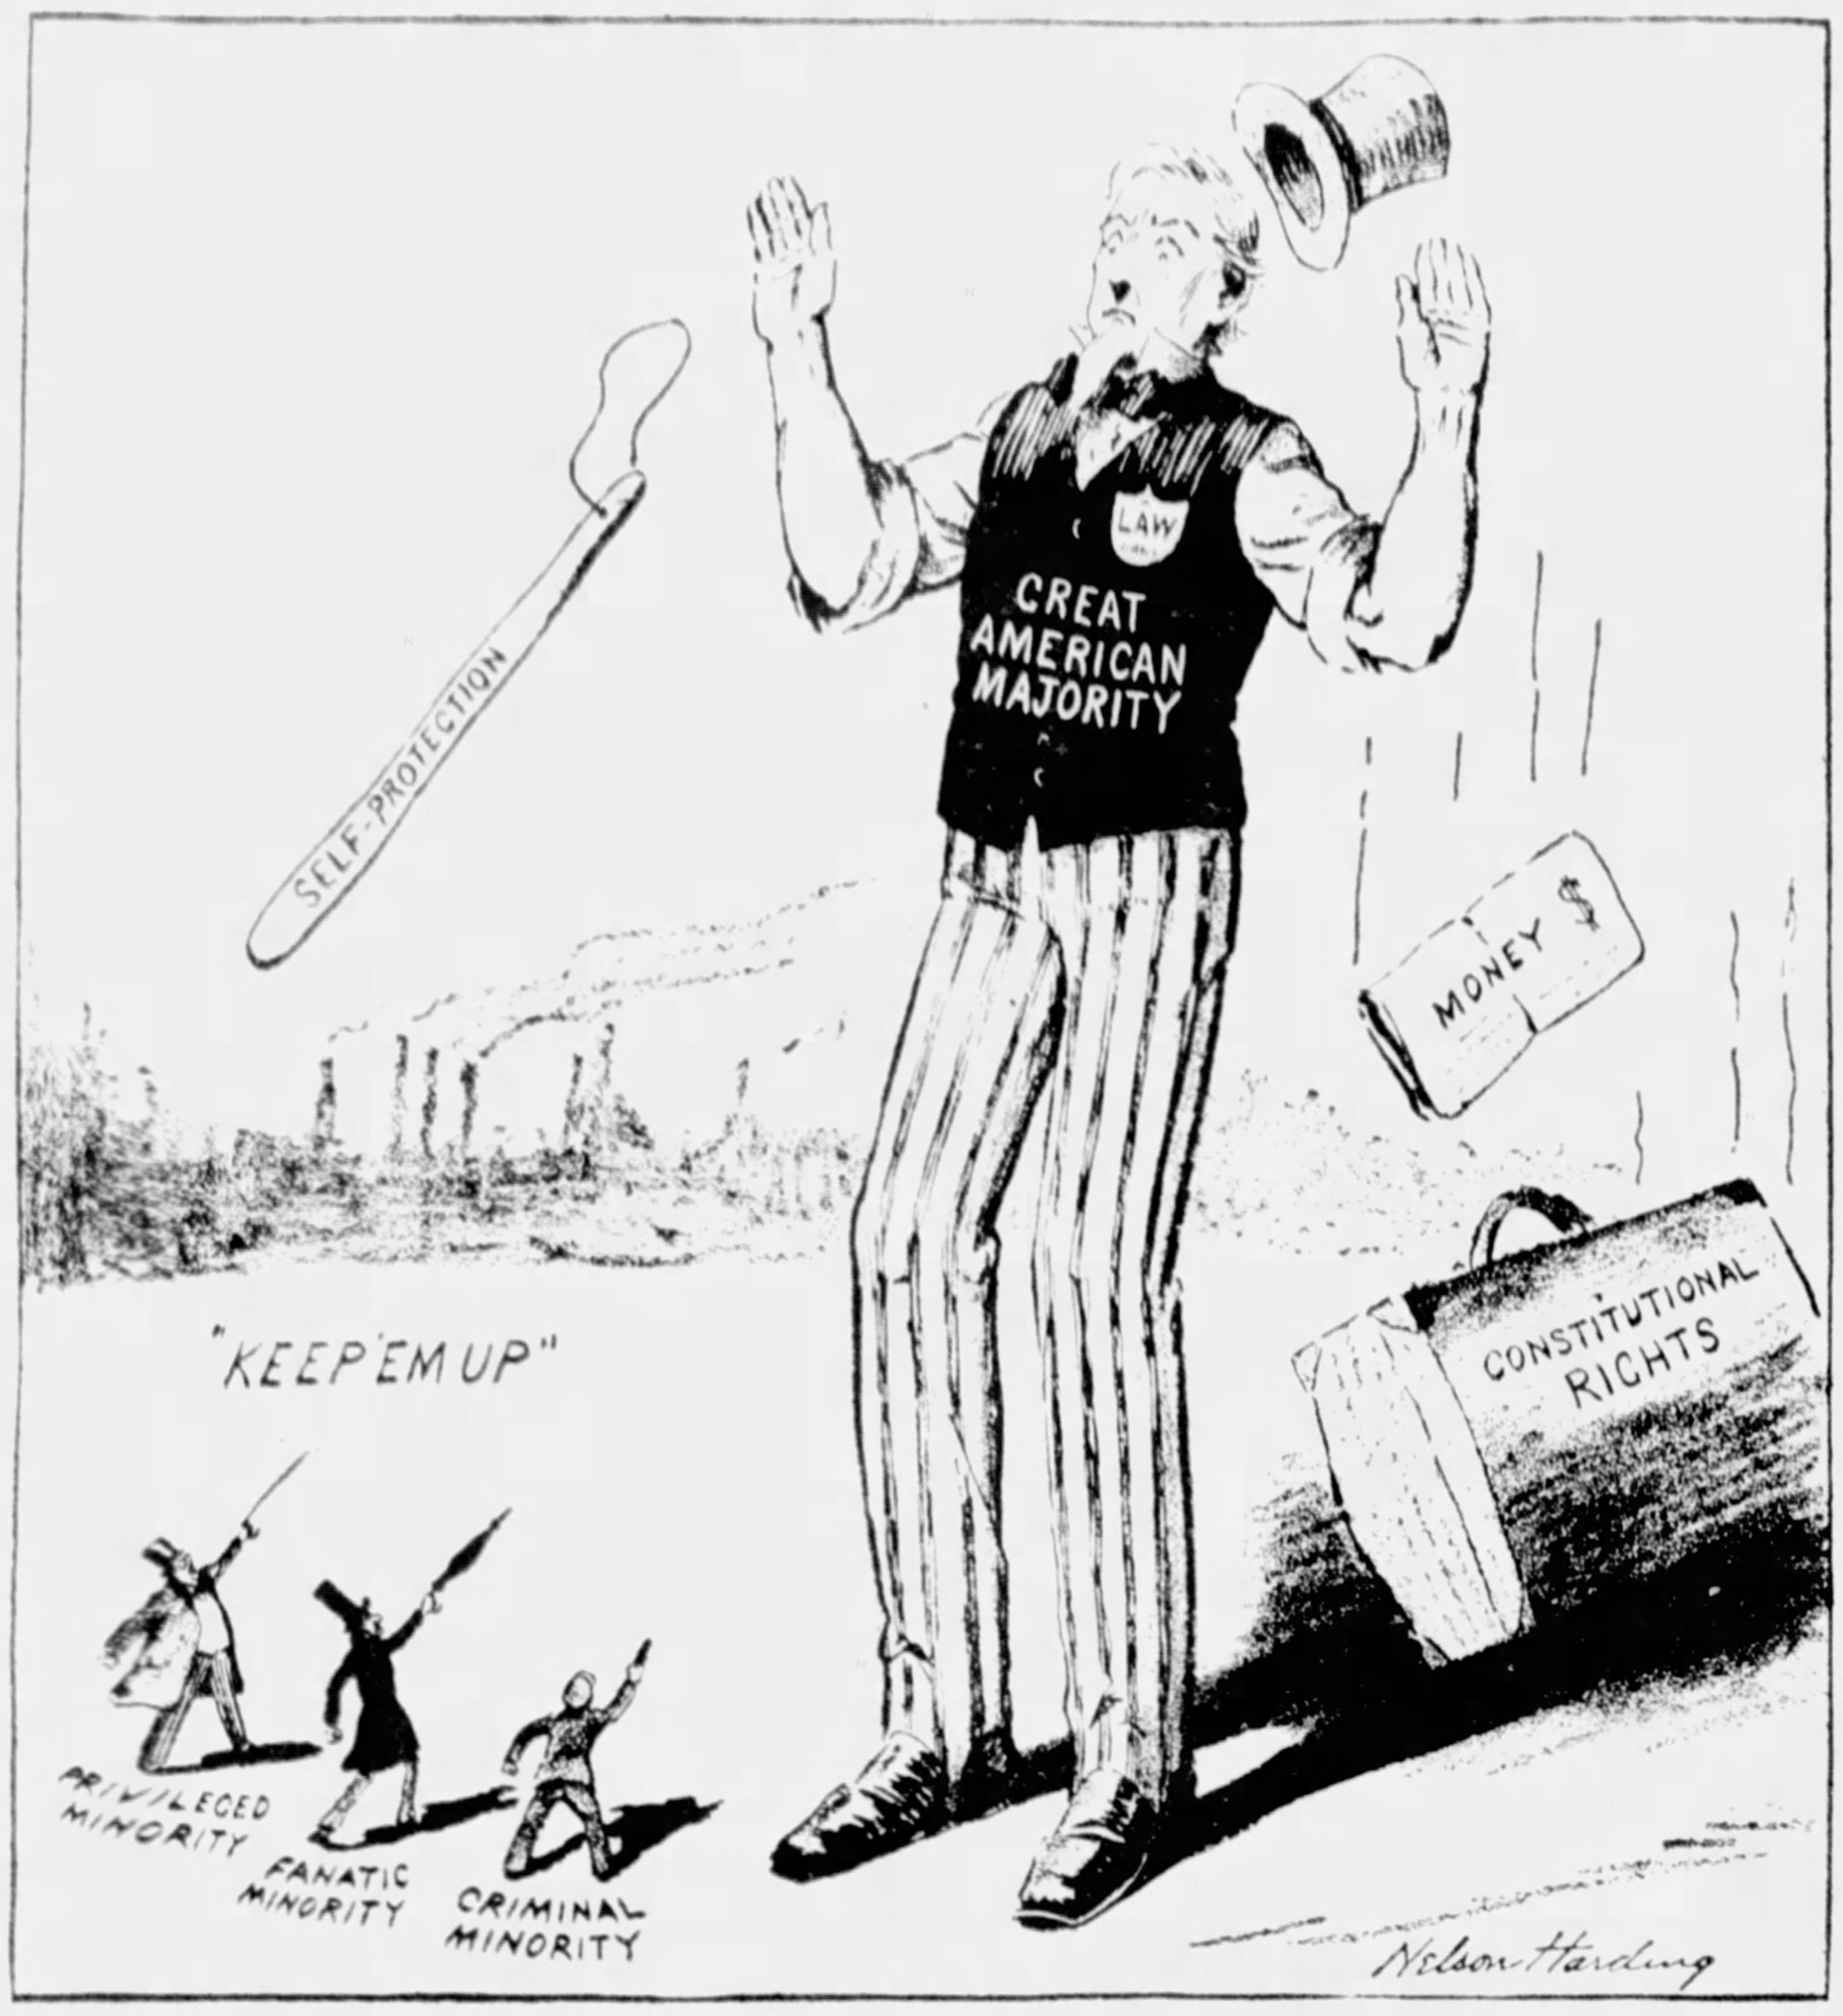
Mrs. Oliver S. Hershman, widow of the former proprietor of the Pittsburgh Press, is revealed as the donor of the $100,000 anonymously contributed to the Stephen C. Foster Memorial Building Fund. Mrs. Hershman has given the money which supplements a donation previously given in her own name, as a memorial to Col. Hershman.

It is a princely gift, and one that does honor to the donor and her estimable husband as well as to Pittsburgh's illustrious song composer, whose fame the money is to help perpetuate.

Admirers of Foster—their name is legion—will be grateful to Mrs. Hershman.

Tom Thumb Terrorism -:- -:-

By Nelson Harding



It's pretty hard to comprehend
Why such a giant won't defend Himself against the pygmies who
Now terrorize him, but it's true.

Why DOES a giant of that size
Let little fellows tyrannize
And keep him holding up his hands
Obedient to their commands?

The Reasonable Sex

Verily, my Daughter, in the eyes of a man all the ways of a woman are capricious and there is no logic IN her.

* * *

But a man is the Soul of Consistency.

* * *

Behold he appointeth Solons to make the laws—and thereafter hireth lawyers, at great expense, to teach him how to evade them.

He employeth cooks to tempt his palate with enticing dishes—and payeth doctors to cure him of the indigestion and the obesity brought on by his folly.

* * *

He maketh magnificent resolutions upon New Year's Day—and, straightway, seeketh excuses for breaking them.

* * *

He appointeth a day of rest—and spendeth it in the strenuous pursuit of a golf ball. He appointeth holidays for rejoicing and merry-making, and spendeth them in sleeping off the headache of the night before.

* * *

He kisseth all the women whom he loveth NOT—and fleeth from her whom he loveth, lest his heart become entangled. Yet, in the end, he is astonished to find himself married to the wrong woman.

He installeth a shower in the bathroom of his house—and, each morning, awaketh with a new alibi for evading it.

* * *

He deploreth the folly of the made-up damsel and singeth the praises of the housewife. Yet he leaveth the unpainted damsels to adorn the wall at dances, and the housewife damsel to sit by her own steam-heat-side while he taketh the platinum blonde to the night club.

* * *

He inventeth airplanes that he may fly among the clouds, and submarines that he may sail beneath the waters. Yet he protesteth bitterly when he is forced to walk upon the face of the earth because his wife hath taken the car.

* * *

He playeth around all the years of his youth with the wild women who help him to acquire his headaches. Yet, when he weddeth one of these, he expecteth her to turn, by some magic, into the tame wife, who CURETH his headaches.

* * *

He spendeth half his life in the pursuit of ambition, money or women—and the other half in wondering WHY!

* * *

Yet doth he continue to scoff at the inconsistency of woman, and to write himself down The Reasonable Sex. SELAH.

SCIENCE'S CRUCIAL TEST

By Archibald Henderson

With the accepted pre-eminance of the mathematical physicist in the world today, there is rapidly coming a sharp break with the science of the past. The objective investigator of the past is giving way to the subjective theorist of the present. The scientists are breaking up into two sharply differentiated schools of thought. The question with which the modern scientist particularly concerns himself has to do with "reality." In the final analysis, science is seeking reality. But the problem is to find agreement on the subject of reality.

According to the older school of scientists, the investigator works in a laboratory on specimens, subjects, data. He uses scales, barometers, test tubes, chronometers, micrometers, microscopes, telescopes, instruments of precision of all sorts. He is primarily concerned with observation, measurement and analysis. He records the results of his laboratory investigations in the laboratory, aligns his findings with the known results of science, and classifies and organizes facts thus arrived at into a homogeneous, coherent and co-ordinated body of knowledge.

At times, he is puzzled to know why he arrives at certain results. He cannot directly observe the operation of the phenomena. So he devises some sort of mechanism to give a picture or material representation of the process. He says to himself: If such a mechanism as this exists in nature—in the atom, the molecule, the protoplasm, the cell—then it would give, in operation, the results I have discovered. Consequently, I will assume for the present that this mechanism does exist in nature. This is the way the thing works.

Is such a scheme as this an infallible mode for arriving at ultimate reality? "No!" replies the present-day scientist. These mental pictures, these intellectual artefacts, are just devices for enabling us to carry on the work of science. Is there really such a thing as a gene? Does the ether actually exist? What assurance have we that there are actually charged articles of electricity known as electrons and protons, which act like tiny spheres? Are quanta realities or merely devices of the human mind, posited to "save the phenomena?" Is a photon an actuality or a mental construct, invented to tide us over an awkward gap in our otherwise unhalting progress?

Science in the twentieth century is facing the most crucial test in history. What will become of science if the law of causality breaks down? Is it possible that nature is not governed by immutable laws, but is essentially irrational, capricious, discontinuous? These are the profound and perturbing puzzles of the twentieth century.

-:- LISTEN, WORLD -:-

By Elsie Robinson

Trouble with you is you think you're Different.

You've certain notions about yourself and your life:

You think you've had hard knocks—

And I guess you have.

You think you're sensitive—the breaks as a youngster—

And I guess you didn't.

You think you're sensitive—

And that people don't understand you—

And that you get upset easily—

And you can't do your best work under pressure—

And you hate to do the same thing over and over—

And you get restless and lose interest—

You think you'd do wonders if you could get a fresh start—

And it's cruel and unfair to be tied down as you are.

All of which is true—

Perfectly true—

But your mistake lies in thinking:

THAT IT'S ONLY TRUE ABOUT YOU,

AND THAT IT ISN'T TRUE ABOUT OTHER PEOPLE

BECAUSE YOU'RE DIFFERENT.

You're wrong!

Those things are true of every one.

You're not different.

Other people are just as sensitive—

Just as easily discouraged—

Are just as restless—

Hate monotony just as much—

Long as ardently for a new chance—

Rebel as fiercely against unfairness.

You're not different—

And nine-tenths of your troubles would disappear.

If you could realize that fact.

For most of your misery

Isn't caused by other people,

Or outer circumstances—

It is caused by your distorted and diseased

Attitude to yourself.

You've cut yourself off from the common life.

You've set yourself apart from other people.

You've coddled and kidded yourself

Until it has become a regular hangnail.

No wonder you're all hot n' bothered!

Stop it!

Stop telling yourself this fairy tale about yourself.

Stop thinking that you're "different."

Maybe it does bolster up your sense of importance

And alibi a lot of cussedness.

But bolstering and alibi-ing come too high.

We pay for them in heartbreak.

So, give it up!

Get wise to yourself.

Get wise to the beautiful and important fact THAT YOU'RE ALL OF A PIECE WITH EVERYONE ELSE.

That we're all eating the same brown bread . . . and drinking the same sour wine . . . and humming the same old song . . . and waiting for the same sun to come over the hill.

Realize that—and your whole life will be changed.

For you'll never again feel alone, or helpless—or different.

Wise Words

History is philosophy teaching by examples.—Dionysius.

People seldom improve when they have no model but themselves to copy after.—Goldsmith.

You may keep your beauty and your health, unless you destroy them yourself, or discourage them to stay with you by using them ill.—Temple.

Superior beings above us, who enjoy perfect happiness are more steadily determined in their choice of good than we, and yet they are not less happy or less free than we.—Locke.

A man is the whole encyclopedia of facts. The creation of a thousand forests in one acorn, the Egypt, Greece, Rome, Gaul, Britain, America, lie folded already in the first man.—Emerson.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Gift of Roses

When someone gives me roses,
Peach-petaled, hearts of gold,
New joy the day discloses,
Fresh hopes the hours unfold!
No pleasure life devises
Affords a deeper thrill,
For with rose-fragrance rises
Love's incense, sweeter still.

The roses tell of raptures
In gardens drenched with dew,
Of spoils the bold bee captures
The whole bright summer through.
And I, like bees, devour
The treasure they impart,
And from each lovely flower
Drink nectar for my heart.

When someone gives me roses,
As golden hearts unfold,
Each petal there discloses
The love that is life's gold.

Text for Today For God sent not his Son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world through him might be saved.—John, iii:17.

THINK IT OVER

Drawn by Hal Coffman.

THE MAN WHO NEVER APPRECIATED THAT MOST PRECIOUS THING OF ALL—HEALTH UNTIL HE LOST IT
Hal Coffman

If you can eat, sleep, work and play, congratulate yourself.

You may eat at a first-class hotel, or sleep as long as you would like, or make as much money as you are worth, or have all the fun that you deserve.

But if you have good health, you are better off than the richest invalid.

Like air and water, we take health for granted. It is only when we don't have it that we know its value.

Health is easy to keep if you have it. But it is hard to regain when you have lost it. Watch your health, therefore, and remember that its worst enemy is not the weather, but late hours, bootleg liquor, and similar stupidities that cost money and get you nowhere.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Few native New Yorkers know that southernly tip of their island below Fulton street. If they go through the section they are whisked underground. Many Wall and Broad office workers see only the deep canyons in which are located their skyscrapers.

But visiting foreigners are always aprowl here. It interests them more than uptown wonders. They want to see the Custom House, the harbor dotted with myriad craft, the damply diffusing grandeur of the Statue of Liberty and Ellis Island, fluttering with darting gulls.

There is a sentimental attachment for the Battery and its historic wall against which are hurled unceasing waves of immigration. Here their ancestors first stepped on American soil. Too, there is the site of Castle Garden where Jenny Lind's voice was heard.

Save for such visitors, the Battery is rather deserted. The little park is one of the most tranquil spots in the city but one most ignored. Now and then there are bursts of civic consciousness, expressed in a desire to beautify the toe of Manhattan but nothing is ever done.

Innumerable New Yorkers have never been inside the Aquarium. They have seen it only from the elevated or motor cars. It is an educational free show yet does not attract so many people as the 50-cent flea circus and freak exhibition on West Forty-Second street.

Someone has described the interior of the Aquarium as "a dazzling submarine ballet." Certainly it is as colorful as a revue spectacle. In each of the deep glass tanks are beautifully tinted fish gliding about in the enticing undersea swirl of rocks and sinuous sea weeds.

There are the tiny sea-horses bobbing like animated figures on a chess board. Also plate-shaped fish of brilliant hue from Japan, fierce black sturgeons, turbots, seals, sharks and coiling green, slimy monsters that seem to be struggling eternally to breathe.

* * *

Many fish suggest in outline celebrities. There is the catfish, the "spit-image" of Barney Gallant, and a trout from the Great Lakes uncanny in its likeness of the sad-eyed Theodore Dreiser. Wilton Lackaye, sans mustache, has his double, as have the graceful Pavlowa, Joseph Urban and Bert Lahr. A sleek and satiny seal might be Vincent Lopez. Too, there is a shrewd-eyed fish so Oriental looking many sightseers have upon seeing it, cried the name of a great international banker.

* * *

Under each tank is a sign giving the name of the fish and its characteristics. One learns trout is indifferent to that biological urge called love, until November. Then begins flirting outrageously. The female of the lobster makes all the love advances, but not until the torrid month of July. A South Sea Island species actually press mouths together in what appears to be a kiss.

* * *

Paul Morand, distinguished French writer, in his first glimpse of the New York skyline, declared it reminded him of "some fantasy clipped in cardboard." No one has touched that description.

* * *

Only one New Yorker has seemingly sensed the beauty of the harbor vista enough to have a home directly on its edge. He is Henry L. Doherty, a financier, who built one of the first pent houses on top of a high building on State street with windows looking down upon the sweeping charm of the Battery and the harbor.

* * *

The West street water front, running off the Battery, offers a slice of port life with clots of seamen—Orientals, Levantines, Scandinavians, etc. They mill about wharf doorways, puffing pipes, and apparently fearful of getting out of ear-shot of their vessels.

* * *

New York is an important moneyed town, where people talk in figures suggesting a barrage of telephone numbers. Those who came here from our $25 a week jobs are continually bewildered. I haven't the courage yet to cash a check for more than $100 without explaining to the bank paying teller what it is for.

* * *

My idea of wealth still is to take a half dozen in a cafe with a player piano and order a double T-bone steak all around.

Isn't It So?

Practice makes perfect, but pains the neighbors.

After a man gives his word he should try to keep it.

Two heads are better than one, especially in a bass drum.

Next to a secret, the hardest thing in the world for a woman to keep is her opinion.

Lightning never strikes twice in the same place, but hard luck isn't gifted with such versatility.

To be a success these days a man must be a man among men and a gentleman among women.

Human nature is so constructed that almost everyone likes to serve on a fault-finding commission.

Nature isn't so very wise or she would have used better judgment in distributing "inferiority complexes."

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

A man in your department has been advanced from a position below you to one above you.

You resent the fact and do not carry out his instructions gracefully.

You feel that you know more about the business than he does, which may or may not be a fact.

Providing it be true, it does not affect your duty to follow out his instructions. He has the support of the firm.

If you were the one held responsible you would expett those under you to carry out your program.

You have nothing to gain by trying to create a feeling against him even though you are not in sympathy with his policies.

He is responsible to the head of the management, but if things go wrong because of you, it is bound to make trouble for you.

If you follow his leadership wholeheartedly and assist him in making a success, he is in a position to do you a good turn.

Do as you would like to be done by and put pride in your pocket.

Feeling antagonistic toward your superior will prevent you from doing good work and may result in your losing your position.
